St. Agnes' School

HIS School was founded that there might be a place, easily accessible to the people of Eastern Ontario, where girls could have a thorough education and a happy home life surrounded by refining influences, and where they could be trained morally, physically, and intellectually.

As the cost of living in Belleville is less than in Toronto it has been possible to make the fees more moderate than those of Toronto Schools, and there are, comparatively speaking, no outside expenses.

Miss Carroll, the Lady Principal, has had much experience in work of this kind, having been for many years Senior Mistress in the Bishop Strachan School and other Toronto schools.

The place chosen could not be more appropriate—a handsome and well-built building, situated upon the prettiest street in Belleville, and surrounded by beautiful grounds two and a half acres in extent.

To the original building a large three-storey addition has been made, which contains the chapel, art-room, dining-room, room for domestic science, infirmary, and sleeping apartments.

The rooms are large and well-ventilated, the class-rooms bright and airy.

Both gas and electric light are used in the lighting. The house is heated by hot water.
