

---

apparently transferred to the superior Naval officer on the Newfoundland station. In spite of many applications and representations, the Home Government would commission no governor in the modern sense until the appointment of Captain Henry Osborne in 1728.