MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Stevenson Re-Elected Mayor

BY 74 OF A MAJORITY OVER BOTH HIS OPPONENTS.

The Aldermanic Elections THE MAYORALTY CANDIDATES AD-DRESS THE AUDIENCE.

No doubt owing to the disagreeable state of the weather, the interest in the municipal elections was not so keen yesterday as it otherwise would have been, but nevertheless, there was a large vote polled for Mayor and Aldermen. Shortly after five o'clook, the hour of closing the polls, the electors began to come in an kept coming in until after six, when the City Hall was well filled with people anxious to learn the result of the contest. One of the returns—from Brill's store—was in eight minutes after five, but it was a quarter to seven before the last came in, which was considered an unnecessary delay by the impatient ratepayers. When the figures were totalled up it was found that Mayor Stevenson had polled 677 votes, Mr Howard 285, and Ald, Walker 218, thus giving Mr Stevenson a majority No doubt owing to the disagreeable state votes, Mr Howard 285, and Ald. Walker 218, thus giving Mr Stevenson a majority of 74 over both his opponents. It was a noticeable feature in the election that quite a number of ladies availed themselves of the privilege of the franchise.

When the result was made known, the candidates, who were in the Clerk's office waiting the returns, were called to the City Hall to address the meeting.

The Mayor moved, seconded by Ald. Brill, that Ald Goldie take the chair. This was carried, but Ald. Goldie could not be

In opening the meeting, Mr Chase mentioned that he had been put in an unfortunate position, as he was one of those who nominated Mr Howard. The battle had been hardly fought and fairly won. He would call upon Mr Stevenson, Mayor elect, to address the meeting.

The Mayor on coming forward was received with enthusiastic cheers. He thanked the electors for the houor which they had done him in again re-electing him to the Civic Chair. It had never once entered his mind that he would be elected by such a handsome majority, and he keenly felt the weight of the heavy obligation which rested on his shoulders. Last year he was an untried man as regarded tion which rested on his shoulders. Last year he was an untried man as regarded the executive of the City. He told the electors then, as he did now, that he would do all that lay in his power for the wellbeing of the City in every respect. It appeared from their verdict that the electors were satisfied with the manner in which he had conducted the business of the City, and he thanked them from the bottom of his heart for the hig majority they had

were satisfied with the manner in which he had conducted the business of the City, and he thanked them from the bottom of his heart for the big majority they kad rolled up for him. During his candidature several things had been spoken against him, one or two of the worst of which he would briefly refer to. It had been said in the Herald that he was behind the times and could not push on the work of the City so vigorously as a younger man. The record of the past year was sufficiently refutation of that. The Council of 1885 had done more work, with less noise, than any previous Council for a number of years. He did not know of single matter that they had left unsettled for the Council of 1886. During the anvass he had never said an unkind we at of his opponents, and he thought the contest had been honorably conducted on every side. During his canvass he had met with some strange things. It had been told him that he had veered around, like a weather cock, on the Scott Act question. He had defined his position on the Scott Act last year. Every one of them knew what that was, and his opinions had not changed. A writer in the Herald had stated that the present Conneil had elected the worst men that could have been found to look after our railway matters. He would ask if such men as Ald. Goldie, one of our largest shippers, Ald. Macdonald with all his legal experience, Alds. Brill and Hortop also large shippers, and, Ald. Bruce with his practical knowledge, were the worst men that could be found to fill he position mentioned. He would ask where could a better committee be found? Then reference had been made to the Union station. Every one present knew as well as he did on what conditions the railway authorities were to build it. They desired to shut up the Huskisson and Neeve street crossings, two of our principal thoroughfares, and this, while he had anything to do with the

on what conditions the railway authorities were to build it. They desired to shut up the Huskisson and Neeve street crossings, two of our principal thoroughfares, and this, while he had anything to do with the City, he would never consent to. It was well known that these large corporations always tried to get the advantage of smaller ones. He would make it his aim to secretly guard the interests of the City, nor bend to any corporation however strong. In a letter in the Herald written by Mr. C. Davidson, the corporation was charged with neglect in railway matters for not entertaining Sir Henry Tyler when he passed through here recently. The Council received no notification of Sir Henry's visit, and he supposed, like himself, they were personally ignorant of it. Why did not Mr. Davidson, who appeared to be so attentive fo the interests of the City, inform the Council, and then there would at least have been an opportunity of considering what was best to do? It had been said that the present Council had done nothing in the matter of railways. He would ask what the Councils of the past ten years had done? Nothing much beyond running all over the country and having a high old time at the City's expense. Yet the present Council had done something towards railway matters. They had made a rough survey of the proposed routes to connect with the Credit Valley, so as to have some idea of the cost. It was in answer to his letter that Mr. Lumsden came here recently, and was met by the business men of the City, who talked over the matter with Mr. Lumsden. Some people can see great possibilities after they have passed away. He had been twitted about the remark that he made on the hustings regarding shaking the horny hand of the working man. He would rather shake the hand of a man of honest principle although load in rags than the hand of an unprincipled man clad in broadcloth, no matter how high his station. Some nasty things had beensaid about him inthe Herald, during the campaign, to which he thought it beneath his dignity and part of the afternoon. Was there any skulk in that? Citizens would find that wherever the interests of Guelph were concerned there would be no skulk ound in him. This year the Council would probably have to deal with the enforcement of the Scott Act, and he would ask the cooperation of the ratepayers in assisting him in protecting the morals of young men, and against the illiotis sale of liquor. He did not dread the license victuallers, whom he considered too honourable to do such a thing, but the dives which will spring up as they have done in other places. He wanted to do all he could for the moral welfare of the City as well as for its material interests. A few weeks ago an indecent show came here, and he had taken such steps to squeeze out the nastiness of it that there was nothing left worth seeing. The police must do their duty, and he said it kindly. The Mayor took his seat amid cheers.

Mr George Howard was received with cheers. He remarked that during all the times that he had appealed to the electors for municipal suffrages this was the second time that he appeared as a defeated candidate. He tbanked his supporters for the vote given him. Last year he was nominated without his consent, and retired. He was again nominated this year, and did not feel at liberty to retire. He had no hesitation in saying that a more vigorous policy should be pursued in our railway affairs, which had he been elected he would have attended to, but as he was not, he was at liberty to attend to his own little business, which would pay him better perhaps than attending to the interests of the City. Had it devolved upon him to administer the law in connection with the liquor question, he would have striven to do what was right between both parties, and give justice to every man. The Mayor's remarks savoured somewhat of an ante-election speech. In contest of these sort he had always allowed bygones to be bygones. The former speaker had made reference to writers in the newspapers. He could take up, if he desired, and critisis placed before the ratepayers for their approval or disapproval. A reflection had been cast on the Councils of previous years. One of his first suggestions when he was elected Mayor in 1876 was that the by-laws of the City should be consolidated. The Council, on the score of expense, did not see fit to deal with it. Again when elected in 1879 he made the same suggestion. A committee was appointed on these by-laws, and it recommended the matter to be put in the hands of the City Solicitor, which was done. The work was one which involved a great deal of labour. This labour was in getting the by-laws in shape. All the Council had to do was to assent to them, so their share of placed before the ratepayers for their approval or disapproval. A reflection had was to assent to them, so their share of he work as a whole was small. He again the work as a whole was small. He again thanked his supporters for the vote given him and took his seat.

Ald. Walker thanked the gentlemen who had voted for him. All that had been said in reference to the last Council by the Mayor he agreed with, and he hoped that the Council of 1886 would continue in the same policy of economy as that of 1885. The meeting broke up at half-past seven with cheers for the Queen.
