The idea which runs through these lines, and which is so besutifully and naturally carried out, it is said was expressed by a little boy five years old. The whole piece is true to a child's laney.

O, I long to lie, dear mother,

On the cold and fragrant grass, With naught but the sky above my head, And the shadowing clouds that pass.

And I want the bright, bright sunshine, All round about my bed, I close my eyes, and God will think Your little boy is dead!

Then Christ will send an angel To take him up to him ; He will bear me, slow and steadily, Far through the either dim.

the will gently, gently lay me Close to the Saviour's side, And when I'm sure that we're in heaven, My eyes I'll open wide.

And I'll look among the angels That stand about the throne, Till I find my vister Mary, For I know she mut be one And when I find her, mother,

We will go away alone, And I will tell her how we've n All the while she has been gone! O! I shall be delighted

To hear her speak again-Though I know she'll ne'er return to us-To ask her would be vain ! Sall put my arms around her, And look into her eyes,

And remember all I said to her, And all her sweet replies. And then Pil ask the angel

To take me back to you-He'll bear me, slow and steadily, Down through the ether blue.

And you'll only think, dear mother, I have been out to play, And have gone to eleop beneath a tree This sultry summer day.

THE GRASS OF THE OVEN .-- In Cros sing Lebanon, we stopped one day for refreshment, near a rivulet flowing to-wards the East. As I was sitting there, I observed a peasant of the country diging up with a sort of pick-aze, the clump of shrubs and coarse grass, which grow in the thin soil spread over the rocks. He was collecting them to carry home, in order to burn them as fuel. I had seen heaps of the same material piled up near the limekilns in the vicinity of Urtas and I frequently saw troops of donkey; returning from the fields loaded with bundles of such fuel. The scarcity of wood in the East is very great, and the people are obliged to resort to the use of almost every thing that is capable of being burnt, thair houses in winter, and of preparing their daily food. They not only cut down for the purpose shrubs and larger kinds of grass, but gather the common withered grass itself, and the wild flow-ers of which the fields display so rich a profusion. It is from this source that the Saviour derives the beautiful illustration which he employs for the purpose of represing an undue solicitude on the part of his followers respecting the wants of the present life: "Consider the filles of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin. And yet I say unto you that even Solomon in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these. ore if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, shall He not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?" Matt. vi, 20-30.—Christian Review.

WONDEROUS MECHANISM OF THE MIND:—The wisdom of the Creator is manifest in the structure by which the mind retains all the former thoughts which it may afterwards require, in an order that is ever variable, yet ever constant, and that ever adopts itself to the wants of the mind. No magazine in which all the productions of art are stored; no museum, with all the diver-sified productions of nature, is in any degree to be compared to the repository of the mind itself, in which are stored, not only the various objects of external nature, but the cadless combination which the mind forms out of the intimation of the mind forms out of the intimation of the senses; and these, not only sorted and arranged in their distinct compartments, but these compartments changing their places; and while they offer themselves spontaneously, assuming a new order, as well as enlarging their contents according to the need, the disposition, and the pursuits of the mind, which treasures up its acquisitions within their ample and ever enlarging receptacles.

A man in humble circumstances lately produced, at the Aylesbury Bunk, a Bank of England note for £25, dated 30 years back. Upon being questioned, he states that about 25 years since he married, and that his wife's mother gave them, among other trilles, some old books, upon recently turning over which he found in one of them the note. Under the Patronage of His Excellancy Sir Alexander Bannerman, Knight.

CEORGE LORD, begs leave respectfully to intiT mate to his friends and the public in general, that he has resumed his practice in the Veyerental and Line, under the patronage of His Excellency Sir Alexande Brannerman, Knight.

After a successful practice of 27 years—14 in England and 13 in America—in the course of which he has been directly instrumental, through his skill, in saving, for their owners, the lives of many valuable Horses and Cows; he hopes that, in now seliciting a renewal of Public Patronage, he may be permitted to say that he considers himself to be as well questioned to prescribe Medicines and preform Operations, in the capacity of a Horse and Cow Doctor, as any individual who has ever practised in that like in this Colow; and he, therefore, presumes that he may confidently look forward to a renewal of that patronage which he formerly enjoyed in this Island.

Astonishing efficacy of the Oxygenated Bittera.

IN A CASE OF RIGHTERN YRARS TRANDING.
From Fitzhenry Homer, Eq., of Boston, Mass.
Boston, September 28, 1848.

DEAR SIR—It is now eighteen years since I was first troubled with the water-brash and derangement of the stomach. I have taken advice of the best Physicians in this city and New York, in London, Paris, Germany, and Italy, followed their prescriptions, and visited the several sulphur and other springs in this country, the watering places of Germany, and elsewhere in Europe, and had found no relief. Since taking the Bitters I have never had a return of the Water-brash, which daily troubled me of late years to a very great degree. By appetite has returned; the extreme flatulence, severe constipation of the bowels, general debility, and sleepless nights unde which I suffered, have entirely left me. Having found so great relief from this most discouraging disorder. I have recommended a trial of your medicine to many of my friends, who are now using it to great advantage. And I cannot refrain from writing to you in its favour and praise, for the good you have bestowed upon the community; and treat that what little is in my scope to offer in extending the circulation of your "Oxygenated Bitters," will be done with grateful pleasure at all times.
