A Link With the Past

In going through some old archives in our possession yesterday, we came across a copy of the Telegram, dated October 26, 1881. What a difference between the sheet of that age and to-day's issue. That at present on our desk is a 12 by 18 inch four page print, made up principally of advertising matter, the prices quoted for certain lines being a criterion on rates asked for similar articles now on sale. The foreign news despatch is composed mostly of head lines the solid matter making what is known as a stick of type. Police Court proceedings are given in extenso and the following write up of "An Unpleasant Affair at Lazy Bank" now known as Pleasant Street, is without doubt worth re-printing:

TUESDAY, Oct. 25.
(Before Judge Conroy.)

"The only important case to-day was that of William Hollett and wife of Lazy Bank, against Robert Hollett and daughter of the same locality for assault and battery. It seems that some considerable time back a misunderstanding arose between the two families, and little 'wordy skirmishes' frequently occurred among the ladies when they happened to meet; but these significant omens—such as the classic editor of the Newfoundland would call them—gave rise to nothing that could be regarded as a 'serious breach of the peace' until about dinner hour on Monday last, when open hostilities commenced. As the time for the mid-day meal approached, Robert's daughter found it necessary to go to the well for water, and in doing so she had to pass the door of William's residence. The latter's wife immediately availed of this opportunity to bring matters to a crisis, and when the young woman was on her way back from the well, Mrs. Robert seized a bucket of water and emptied the contents over her. Of course the other bucket was emptied on the other side, by way of returning the compliment, and the fight now went on in downright earnest. During the combat Robert came home to dinner, and, taking in the situation at a glance, threw himself between the combatants, at the same time pushing his daughter into the house, and Mrs. William down on the pavement. Hence the action for assault. His Worship heard the case with extraordinary patience, and in summing up said he should regard the reprehensible affair as a woman's row, and order the parties to be turned out of court only that an assault had been committed. Robert's interference was of such a character as to make him amenable to severe punishment; but as much provocation had been given, he would act as leniently as possible under the circumstances. Judgment for the complainant was assessed at $4 and costs."

The humorous story on the front page concerns the loss of "Our Locomotive," which is captioned "Melancholy Marine Catastrophe." This refers to the first engine purchased under the Blackman Contract for use on the new railway line to Harbor Grace, the said "piece of mechanism" as it is styled in the copy, having been shipped as deck cargo on a small schooner. The winds and waves, however, became tempestuous and the devoted engine being stowed in a "rickety sort of a way" soon began to feel the unsteady motion of Father Neptune's sea floor and rocked about in a very ominous manner, finally after a more agonizing lurch than usual precipitating itself through the bulwarks and into the sea. The scribe who reported this occurrence concluded his article thusly:

"No doubt some ill-fated 'anti-railwayites' will see in this a special interposition of Providence, and a special act of poetical justice. Since the fishermen of Newfoundland have to pay for the locomotive at last from their spoils of the sea, it is only natural that the first engine should go down as a meat offering to feed the great and little fishes. We don't know whether the fishy tribe will be able to extract much nourishment from this strange visitor that has so suddenly and uninvitingly arrived below. We are certain that no whale will try to swallow this iron Jonah, and if our old friend—the devil fish—of whom Rev. Penstock, the self-elected patron, proves able, with all his winding limbs and spickers, to make anything of it, he will be a cleverer manipulator than even he gets credit for. We are sorry to hear that the lost Locomotive was uninsured."

Masonic Service.

The annual parade of the Masonic Fraternity for the purpose of attending Divine Service in the C. of E. Cathedral, takes place tomorrow. The sermon will be preached by Rev. (Bro.) C. A. Moulton of St. Thomas Parish. A collection will be taken up on behalf of the Taske Educational Fund. A large number of the Fraternity are expected to attend the parade and service.

Berge's Ave Maria at St. Patrick's

Berge's beautiful Ave Maria will be sung by Miss Ida Howlett at St. Patrick's church on Sunday at the 10.30 Mass. The violin obligato, which was written by the Organist, Mr. P. J. McCarthy, will be played by Mr. Bowers of the Majestic Theatre.

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, MAY 27.
Among recent arrivals we note a consignment of Daggett and Randall's Toilet goods, and one of Colgate Goods. Our lady customers will be particularly interested in these items, and we invite them to look through our stock of these and other toilet specialties.

A bottle of Red Cross Oil in the bottle will never get away. Red Cross Oil is so handy and so effective for all kinds of pain, that it is one of the greatest conveniences known. Price 30 cents a bottle.

Doing Good Work.

Padre Nangle is continuing his good work on behalf of the War Memorial, and accomplishing successfully. A message received yesterday says that Herbert Grace's contributions to date amount to $500.00; Carbone's to $215.00; Northern Bay's to $65.00; Heart's Content $90.00; and Bay Roberts to $300.00. In all $1275.00. The message concludes with the characteristic "cheerio" preceded by the welcome commentary on the Padre's work—"still going strong."

Will Start "Who's Who".

Next week we will publish a "Who's Who" of the leading members of the Manhattan Musical Comedy Company. Most of them are "stars" whose work will be long remembered locally, and they have brilliant careers before them. Many actors now prominent in stage and on the screen visited here years ago with Mr. W. S. Harkins Company, and others. Similarly we may be reading before very long of the rise to international fame of members of the Manhattan Company. Although young in years, several have already attained national prominence, and the record of their successes will be found in our columns next week under the heading of "Who's Who".

Buyer Gets Bargain.

SCHOONER SOLD CHEAP.
The schooner Dallas B. 28 tons register was sold at auction yesterday by Mr. Canning of A. S. Rendell and Co's. for $35. The schooner is partly submerged. The Dallas B. it will be remembered was abandoned whilst coming from Trinity Bay some few weeks ago. There was about one hundred barrels of Scotch-cure herring on board which sold at $4.25 per barrel.

Concert and Dance, St. Mary's Hall, Southside, Monday night, 29th inst. Leading artists assisting, viz., Mesdames Dunfield, Small, Garland; Misses Maun-der and Day; Messrs. Ruggles, Canning, Trappell, Halley, Dobbin, Chaplin, Steele, Holmes and C.L.B. Band. Admittance only 40c. C.L.B. Band for Dance—may 27, 28.

"Profession."

Profession! Yes there are professions varied, As much the plant life of profession great. And yet, in such as plant destruction carried, The quality of worth, above its mate. And speak you of the treasure of some beings, Of great works, of a noble one. More flesh. Of wondrous mind, heart, and soul, agreeing, To some predestined thing, remaining meshed.

And speak you great of hearts, in terms of softness, Of glorious souls, of ready destinies, marked; Of characters, greatly magnified by loftiness, A paragon aloof, all things embarked. But stay! there are such frames arranged in living, Arrayed in cloth to mark their dignity, Composed by qualities, unsurpassed in giving, Affected, the spheres of variety. And yet but flesh, those creatures of the self-elected patron, prove able, with all his winding limbs and spickers, to make anything of it, he will be a cleverer manipulator than even he gets credit for. We are sorry to hear that the lost Locomotive was uninsured."

Professions, yes! There are Professions varied, But who can claim the greater as the first; A work of noble, grander, can't lay buried, For that she lives—a woman—and a Nurse. R.B.H.

To the Public.

"Saturday Night" regrets that owing to installing a new plant that publication must necessarily be suspended for a few weeks. When ready we promise even a better paper than we issued up to last week. The work of installing a plant can not be done as expeditiously as the average person thinks, and we hope that any delay will be overlooked.

"SATURDAY NIGHT."

Personal.

Mr. Ern Fox has severed his connection with the Imperial Life Assurance Co., and is now a representative of the Manufacturers' Life. Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Sutherland leave by S. S. Sabie this evening, for St. John, N. B. Mr. Sutherland has been manager for the Singer Sewing Machine Company, in Nfld the past two years, and during his stay has made many friends who wish him success in the future.

Obituary.

Fred Parmiter laid down his life at the General Hospital yesterday, as the result of frightful wounds received in France. The brother died in battle whilst Fred was desperately wounded, and only the best surgical skill of this and other countries lengthened out his brief span of life. Twenty and six years of age, life bright with promise, the splendid young fellow sustained by the characteristic British spirit of joyous buoyancy placed his life on the Empire's altar, a willing sacrifice for home and native land. Fred was born in the old homestead at Topsail, son of John Parmiter—a good son of a good father. We are confident that the warmest feelings of all will go out to the sorrowing father and sisters in their silent suffering.

Weather Report.

Clear Bay—Strong N. E. wind with rain.
Seal Cove—Wind east, dull and cold; no ice in sight.
Little Bay—Strong N. E. winds; bay full of ice.
Little Bay Islands—Gale north wind, slack ice in the bay.

Gypsies Charged.

The man Markovitch and his wife, who came here recently with their family from Canada, have been called upon to appear in court to answer a charge of fortune telling preferred against them by the police. The case will be heard on Monday. The "Gypsies" as they are known, opened a palmistry shop on Water Street some time ago and this was recently closed by the police.

A Wrong Impression.

The impression has been created by a recent article in the Telegram that Judge Morris declared that Le Marchant Road would be closed to motorists from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday. This is incorrect. What the article should have said was that the Judge had suggested that the Council should make this ordinance, and with this the Inspector General concurred. It is now up to the Council.

The Time, the Place, and the Girl.

Commencing Monday, "The Time, The Place, The Girl" will be produced by the Manhattan Musical Comedy Company. Billy Clifton starred in the role of "Johnny Hiker" when the original performance took place at the La Salle Theatre, Chicago, and created a character which has been the envy of all comedians since that date. Mr. Clifton has given Director Callan the benefit of his experience and advice in the preparations for the local production, so all can look forward to a Musical Comedy staged with all the care and attention to detail manifested in the largest theatres in the world. Don't miss it.

Lawsuit Begun in 1232.

France holds a record for the longest drawn-out lawsuit in legal history. The case, begun in the distant of the thirteenth century, originated in a dispute between the two neighbouring villages of Charchillat and Meusis. In 1232 a certain knight of the Holy Empire divided the wood between the two villages. Though it was but a little wood, the dispute, which arose over the boundary line has lasted through the centuries to the present day. During the progress of the suit so many judgements have been rendered and many appeals made. Last December Charchillat was awarded a third of the wood instead of a fifth, as settled before. Each of the towns were condemned to pay its own costs since 1232. Meusis has appealed from the award.

The Loving Cup.

How did a loving-cup come to have three handles? You may say it is for convenience in passing it from one to another, but who first thought of putting those three handles? It was King Henry IV. of France, and this is how it happened. When the king was hunting he often used to pull up at a lodge far from the palace and the woman would bring him a cup of wine. The cup had but one handle, and as the woman held this she had to lean forward in taking the cup from her. So he ordered his silversmith to make a cup with a handle on each side, and to send it to the lodge in the wood, so that it might be ready for him when next he went there. But, when she came to present the cup of wine to his Majesty, the woman in her anxiety not to spill the wine, held the cup firmly by both the handles, and King Henry was no better off than before! But he set his wits to work, and ordered a cup with three handles to be made and sent to the hunting lodge. "Now, pouring," he said, with a laugh, "there will be a chance for me to get a handle."
