

CASCARETS 10¢

For Constipated Bowels, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Bilious Liver

The nicest cathartic-laxative in the world to physic your liver and bowels when you have Dizzy Headaches, Colds, Biliousness, Indigestion, or Upset Acid Stomach, is candy-like "Cascarets." One or two to-night will empty your bowels completely by morning, and you will feel splendid. "They work while you sleep." Cascarets never stir you up or grip like Salts, Pills, Calomel, or Oil and they cost only ten cents a box. Children love Cascarets too.

LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;

Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XVI.

More practical thoughts came to Lady Iris with the morning light. Thinking of the face and figure of the man who had befriended her, she said to herself that he must be of noble birth, for such faces were not to be found among commoners. Good blood must show itself; it was one of those things that could not be hidden. She wondered if his lineage was as ancient as her own, if he came from a family like hers, famous in history.

"He could not have a prouder motto than mine," she thought. "Field with honor—no motto could be prouder than that."

Suddenly she remembered that she could find out all about him if she consulted Burke's "Peerage."

More than an hour she spent in turning over the pages of the book. There were Osburns in plenty, but she could not tell to which he belonged. "Osburn" was the family name of the Lords of Gorton, of the Earls of Zandfield, and the Barons of Lowe; he might belong to any of these families. To her highly-strung imagination, none of them was good enough for him—with his face and manner he ought to be a prince at least. What was he doing in the lanes of King's Forest? Where was he staying? where was he staying? Whom was he visiting? Not the Cliffdaries; and it could not be the Bardons. She smiled at the idea of such a man visiting the Bardons.

Then she looked through the landed gentry, and again found several Osburns, of Moore, of Lanreagh, of Sketchley. The Osburns of Sketchley had sons in the army; she made a note of that. They were a very old family, and had declined a peerage, preferring the old name "Osburn of Sketchley" to any other which could be given to them. In her own mind, without any particular reason, she decided that he was one of the Osburns of Sketchley.

The long summer day passed, and to Lady Iris it was one of the longest and dreariest of her life. She did not care for the compliments and flattery of men or the amiable platitudes of women.

"I am weary of it all," she said. "I feel to-day as though I must run away from all of them. I am tired of everybody but papa."

All at once a vague dread came over her. She had met this stranger unexpectedly, and she fancied that his face had lighted up at the mention of her name, as though it were somewhat familiar to him. What if he were only passing through the neighborhood, and she should never see him again?

BABY DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

In Blisters, Itched and Burned. Cuticura Heals.

"My nephew's face and hands were badly disfigured with eczema. He was only three weeks old when it broke out in blisters, and the skin was sore and red. It caused itching, burning and loss of sleep, and the child was so worrisome. He could rest neither day nor night."

"I was advised to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using three cakes of Soap and three boxes of Ointment he was entirely healed." (Signed) Miss Mary Wren, Youngs Cove, New Brunswick.

and train being richly trimmed with pearls. A tiara of rare pearls crowned the fair hair and a pearl necklace was clasped round the white throat. Little Louis had gone to the kitchen to observe old Aunt Sarah, the color-cook, at work making biscuits. After he sampled one he observed: "Aunt Sarah, I can spell now. These are made of d-o, d-o."

"But that doesn't spell dough," Louis mother corrected, as she entered the kitchen to give the cook some orders. Whereupon Aunt Sarah thought she too would enter the discussion. So she said: "Dere's two kinds of de, chiled. 'Do,' what you shuts, an' 'd' what you eats."

The party from Chandos were eagerly awaited at Hyne Court. John Bardon did not seem to be quite himself; he walked from one room to another, inspecting the arrangements, looking with critical eyes at the decorations with critical eyes at the decorations and the flowers, lingering with something like pride in the grand banquetting hall, where the table was laden with gold and silver.

"There is nothing better to be seen 't Chandos—I am sure of that," he said—"and Lady Iris will confess it too. With all his grandeur, the Earl of Caledon cannot match that."

It pleased him to think that his splendid table service outdid the earl's ancient place, and that the hall in which he gave his banquets—and right royal ones they were—was more magnificent than the things. Nevertheless he was restless and uneasy, while his face grew pale at times and his lips trembled.

"She deserves it. I swore to have my revenge—and I will have it," he repeated to himself. "Let it cost me what it may, I will be revenged on her. She almost drove me mad with her scorn; and now she must suffer for it."

He walked round the grounds, and found everything in excellent order. The alleys were to be lighted with colored lamps, the fountains were to play under a lime-light, and in different parts of the grounds bands of music were to be placed, hidden by the trees.

Presently he overtook Captain Osburn, who was enjoying a cigar.

"I think," said John Bardon, "that everything is in order. I cannot see that anything is wanting."

"Nor can I," returned the captain. "It looks to me like an earthly paradise. If I never enjoyed a dance in my life before, I shall do so to-night. I have never cared for balls, but this is out of the common groove."

"My wife knows how to entertain," said John Bardon, with some pride.

"Lady Arive certainly understands everything that is most pleasant," answered Allan.

They had become friends—the honest, handsome soldier and the master of Hyne Court. John Bardon looked upon him with something like admiration, and Allan, although he perceived the other's faults, made allowance for them, and liked John Bardon, of whom he saw only the bright side.

"We shall have some pretty girls here to-night," said John Bardon. "Do you care much about pretty girls, Captain Osburn?"

"I have not had many opportunities to care about them," replied the captain, smiling.

He had never mentioned his encounter with Lady Iris, although he had longed with all his heart to ask some questions about her.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. Family supply stores, or quickly made. Saves about 5¢.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, soothes children like it—and it is pure and good.

Four 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle, then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make 16 ounces—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded.
