MAY BE ATTAINED AT THE ST. LOUIS AIR MEET.

ST. LOUIS—(A.P.)—The Barling bomber, superairplane of the United States army, whose initial flight at Wilbur Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, attracted wide attention, will be on exhibition at the International Air races to be held here October 1-3.

General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the Army Air Service, has promised that the plane, which is the most powerful in the world, will fly to St. Louis for the air meet and aeronautical exposition. It is planned to have daily exhibition flights.

More than 200 airmen are expected to participate in the races. Italy, France, Canada and Mexico will be represented, and efforts have been made to induce other foreign fliers to enter. The cash prizes and trophies, respectively $13,000 and eight cups, will be awarded the evening of October 3.

The third National Aero Congress will be held in connection with the races, and Secretaries Weeks, Denby and Hoover, Postmaster General New and General Pershing are expected to deliver addresses.

In an effort to retrieve its laurels

the navy has nominated only its speed craft and most experienced fliers, and will have two new planes entered which are expected to develop a speed of 250 miles an hour. It is asserted. General Patrick has advised the committee that among the army entries will be the two Curtiss racers and the Vedvillia Sperry, which were in last year's races at Detroit.

Miss Bertha Dale Hordhem of Ranson, Kansas, who recently set a new altitude record of 16,300 feet for women, was one of the first formally to announce her entry. She will compete in the "On-to-St. Louis Race," an event for civilians who will fly their planes here from various parts of the country.

The principal event of the meet will be the Pulitzer Trophy race, in which fliers will contest for $4,000 in cash prizes and a trophy, which is the emblem of superiority in the air so far as speed is concerned. The trophy now is held by Lieut. Russell Maughan of the U.S. Army. Entries in the Pulitzer event include:

Black-Papa, Flying Fiat racer.

First Lieut. A. Pearson, U.S. Army, Verville-Sperry racer.

First Lieut. J. D. Corkille, U. S. Army, Curtiss racer.

First Lieut. W. Miller, U.S. Army, Curtiss racer.

Lieut. S. W. Gallaway, U.S. Navy, Wright racer.

First Lieut. L. H. Sanderson, U.S. Marine Corps, Wright racer.

Ensign A. J. Williams, U.S. Navy, Curtiss racer.

Lieut. H. J. Brow, U.S. Navy, Curtiss racer.

It is expected that a speed between 210 and 250 miles an hour will be attained in this event.

In addition to the regular three-day programme, exhibitions will be given of various types of aircraft which recently have won distinction, such as the Barling Bomber and the ZR-1, first American built Zeppelin. Both of these have recently made their maiden flights.

What is described as the greatest searchlight in the world will be mounted at the flying field, and will throw its rays 50 miles.

Just Folks.

MONEY

Money buy motor cars,
Laces and things,
Diamonds and rubies
For princes and kings:
Money buys raiment
And foodstuffs and wine.
But money won't buy you
A character fine.

Money can dress you
And feed you, and hire
Servants to bow to
Your slightest desire;
Flatterers and fawners
Will smile as you spend.
But money won't buy you
One genuine friend.

Money is nothing
But purchasing power;
It is good to possess
For the need of the hour.
But who will be welcomed
At every man's door,
Whatever his fortune,
Must have something more.

Money will take you
As far as it can,
But money has never
Yet fashioned a man;
Give all the world's money
To one who is base,
You will still see the leer
Of the brute on his face.

Toil for the money
And go for the goal,
But still keep a thought
For the good of your soul;
Be friendly, be kindly,
Be gentle, be true,
And make of yourself
What no money can do.

Greece Orders

Return of Lands.

SEIZED FROM BULGARIA.

ATHENS—(A.P.)—As an assurance of its desire to cultivate friendly relations with Bulgaria, the Greek Government has notified the provincial authorities that all Bulgarians interned on Aegean islands from Western Thrace during the operations of the war with Turkey must be returned to their original homes.

The restoration of all seized properties of these interned inhabitants, on no more direct proof than the testimony of their neighbours, has also been ordered.

All Bulgarians who have fled from Western Thrace will also be permitted to return to their homes, and their properties, which have been seized by military authorities or by deserters, will be restored on the same conditions as those of the inhabitants now released from internment.

It is estimated that these orders of restitution affect between 150,000 and 200,000 persons.

The Long Arm of the Law

CRIME DRAMAS THAT ARE STRANGER THAN FICTION.

The Lancashire labourer who recently gave himself up for an attempted murder thirty-one years ago was fortunate in evading the arm of the law for so long; but his record has been eclipsed by not a few other criminals.

A few years ago, Sydney, in New South Wales, was horrified to learn that one of its most respected citizens had been arrested on the charge of murdering a man fifty years earlier. For more than a generation Mr. John — had been one of Sydney's most prominent and successful business men. He was a devout churchgoer, a lavish dispenser of charity, and in his old age he was surrounded by a family and a host of friends.

Then one day he was recognised in a Sydney street by an old miser as Jim Barker, a man who, fifty years earlier, had murdered his chum at the Ballarat diggings, robbed him of his pile of dust worth several thousand pounds, and vanished so completely that all efforts to trace him failed.

The miser communicated with the police, and, to the consternation of all who knew him, Mr. John — was arrested as a murderer. On the morning after his arrest he was found dead in his cell.

Still more dramatic is the story of M. Jean Blanc, who in his youth stabbed a man in his native village in the Department of Haute Marne. He escaped to Paris, where, under a false name, he spent long years of struggle before at last he found his way to the French Bar through Journalism.

After twenty years of successful practice he was promoted to a judgeship.

A score more years passed when one day, while trying a murder case at Lyons, an aged witness was called for the prosecution. As the witness entered the box he looked fixedly at the Judge. Then, pointing an accusing finger at the man on the bench, he exclaimed: "Jean Blanc! Jean Blanc!"

White-faced and trembling with excitement, he shouted: "The man who murdered my brother more than forty years ago."

All eyes turned to the accused man, who, with ashen face and eyes filled with horror, was staring at the accuser. Then, rising unsteadily from his seat, he staggered through the doorway at the back and vanished from view.

A few minutes later a shot was heard. The officials rushed to the judge's room and found him lying dead on the floor. In his left hand was a slip of paper on which were the words, scrawled in pencil: "My sin has found me out at last. I go to appear before a Higher Tribunal."

A Gambler's Downfall.
In a South African prison to-day is a man who is paying the tardy penalty of a crime committed six thousand miles away and forty-five years ago. In 1878 Alexander — was a junior clerk in a Scottish bank—a clever young fellow, who, unfortunately, developed a passion for gambling. Unable to meet his losses, he embezzled three thousand pounds of the bank's money and disappeared.

From the day of his disappearance, all trace of him was lost until last year, when he was recognised in Johannesburg by a retired police-official.

During the long years that separated the crime from its punishment the Scotsman had led a life as strange and adventurous as any in fiction. For some years he had been a seaman. He had been a cow-murderer in Arizona, a lumberman in Canada, and a navv on Australian railways. He had dug for gold on the ice wastes of the Yukon and on the Vaal.

Then at last he settled down in the Transvaal; and by lucky speculation during a boom in mining shares accumulated a large fortune. At the time of his arrest he was one of the richest and most respected men in South Africa.

Household Notes.

Cup custards will cook very nicely in a shallow pan, surrounded with hot water, covered and placed over a low gas flame.

If you wish to powder the yolk of an egg for sprinkling, cook the egg longer than usual, so that the yolk will not be tough.

When mixing cakes, if the shortening is too hard for the proper blending, warm the bowl slightly before you start to mix.

A very attractive way to serve plain boiled rice is covered with grated cheese, sprinkled with paprika, and garnished with parsley.

An unusually delightful relish can be made by pickling red, white or purple grapes on their stems. This also is an attractive garnish.

When selecting vegetables for winter storage, use those that are not quite mature, as they will ripen in storage, and will keep longer.

Swedish meatballs, cut in small pieces, and mixed with diced celery, and cucumbers, make a good salad.

Rice omlet should be seasoned with finely minced green pepper, a little grated cheese, onion juice, and paprika and served with crisped bacon.

For grape conserve use one pound of broken meats of English walnuts, three pounds of seeded grapes, three pounds of sugar, the juice and rind of one orange.

Deviled bananas are quite delicious. Slice the skinned fruit, mix with them chopped pickles, salt and red pepper, and fry for a few minutes in hot vegetable fat.

Stuffed beets are rather a novelty. Boil them until tender in salted water, peel and hollow out centres. Then stuff with well seasoned, buttered breadcrumbs, and bake.
