While the men were being ferried across on Friday, an Italian boy known as "Cigarette," became frightened and fell overboard, but was rescued. On Saturday morning 70 or 80 men got aboard and the boat started, leaving a big crowd on the bank waiting for the next trip. When 80 feet from the shore the water splashed against the rail and the Italian boy who had fallen over the previous day, seized one of the tackle ropes which ran from the overhead cable to the stern of the boat. Some of the men started toward him, and instantly the boat careened and filled, everyone being thrown into the water.

The Hudson, swollen by the freshet, The Hudson, swollen by the freshet, bore a score or more of the struggling men down the stream. Many others succeeded in catching hold of the boat, which had righted, and they clung there until pulled ashore. The wildest excitement prevailed, but the current carried many of the men in toward the shore, where they were rescued.

Teams were sent down along the river to points where the bodies would be likely to land. Dozens of dinner-pails, hats and coats were fished out, but it was nearly 4 o'clock before the first body was found. This was found in a log jam two miles below the dam, and was recognized as that of Fred Forran, an Italian interpreter.

Plan "Drunkards Strike."

Brussels, March 9.—Because the Government recently passed a law increasing the tax on all kinds of alcoholic spirts, the Socialist leaders issued a manifesto today requesting workingmen to become teetotalers for the purpose of causing a deficit in the public treasury. Conservatives laugh at the manifesto, asserting that the "drunkards' strike" will never take place. Count de Smet de Naeyer, the Minister of Finance, who is the promoter of the new tax, says: "The Socialists will never imitate their leader, M. Vandervelde, who is a total abstainer, but will rather copy the rank and file of the Socialist deputies, who like to brag that they are hearty drinkers."
