Schnee and Incident of Lieut. B. K. Harris's Expedition to the Chilkoot Country.

The Ascent of the Klabinah-Hunting Black, Brown and Chinaman Bears in the Mountains.

Written for The Colonist by H. W. Stone.

LETTER VII.

CHILKOOT COUNTRY, Camp 12, June 14, 1890.

On the 22nd of May, I suggested to the Klabinah an expedition to the head of the Klabinah, taking a half-breed Indian with me. By exercising care we were able to keep to the faint trail that existed on the left bank for some distance. When I had travelled for about five miles beyond the frontier into British ground, I found that the valley twisted abruptly to the right, heading westward north. The nature of the valley beyond this point and the headwaters of a branch of the Klabinah river beyond must be considered as the main part of the expedition. In order to pass this obstacle we had repeatedly to wade the river, and frequently to take to the rocks, or to make a detour to the westward or northward. On the mountain behind, a wide face of granite is exposed, and from the summit a view of the Klabinah valley is seen, and a brief distance higher up the stream some huge blocks of almost pure white marble, rounded by the action of water, and evidently brought down to their present position by some prehistoric glacier of the ice-age, were seen as an alternative. THE SALVATION ARMY.

Method of Seeking Converts, Street Parades, and Drills Described.

Preparations for Establishing a Training School for Cadets and a Beacon House in Victoria.

There is scarcely a city, town or village in the English-speaking world that has been invaded by the Salvation Army. No matter what changes may take place at headquarters, the general policy of the army seems always the same—ever aggressive, and ever ready to march into new fields of work, no matter how uninviting they may be.

Victoria now rejoices in the honor of being a Divisional headquarters, the division being headed by Lieut. General Sir Henry D. Clarke, who is on the staff of the Governor-General.

A Colonel repeter was seeking to recruit in the city of Victoria. He was a man of about thirty years of age, and had a very pleasant appearance.
