You will search that document in vain to find any statement that the treaties were denounced by the in-fluence of Canada. It is too long for me to read it now, but if any representatives of the press wish to see it, they may do so and take a copy of the clause which I have marked. Mr. Chamberlain said that the denunciation of the treaty was a question which had been raised, and that if all the premiers, not Canada's alone, but every other premier from South Africa, Australa, New Zealand and Newfoundland joined unanimously in asking for the denunciation of the treaties, his government would give it most careful consideration. The premiers met together and passed a resolution declaring that they were unanimously in favor of the denunciation of the treaties; the treaties were denounced, and they would discuss with various governments the propriety of riving a entrop is another point in which L joined th Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and that was laration that the great ambition of was to see accomplished a measure would give Canada representation in would give Canada representation in itish House of Commons.
