Prospectus for 1876--- Ninth Year.

THE ALDINE,

THE ART JOURNAL OF AMERICA.

SOLD ONLY BY SUBSCRIPTION.

THE REPRESENTATIVE AND CHAMPION OF AMERICAN TASTE

Steadily since its inception. The Aldine has been growing in the affections of the American people. As the exemplar of national achievement in the highest departments of illustrative and mechanical art, it has won for America respect and consideration from the most restrictive art schools of the Old World. The Aldine plates now go regularly by contract to publishers in England, France, dermany and Russia, and are also copied, without permission, by the punctifious foreigners who have hitherto denounced such appropriation on this side as "piracy" No better proof of superiority could be asked than the fact that it was reserved for The Aldine to start the flow of original American illustrations to Europe in the face of all tradition and experience. This Nazareth of the art world has produced a good thing at last! That this progress has been achieved in a period of general fitancial decression, shows how deep an interest is felt in the enterprise; and now that the support of the American people has brought it triumphantly to the threshold of their centennial jubilee, the condustors of The Art Journal of America are fully impressed with the responsibility of the situation, and are determined to spare no exertion to co-operate with the national idea of demonstrated progress.

Undaunted by the misfortune which in a few moments made ashes and waste of the beautiful work of years, the lapse of a single day found THE Aldine people housed in larger and finer quarters, and bending every energy to restore and replace their lost facilities. Condolence and sympathy, with generous tenders of substantial aid, poured from every quarter; and while relying wholly upon their own resources, the conductors of THE Aldine were deeply moved and strengthened for the work by these evidences of the general anxiety for the welfare of their charge.

The idea of THE ALDINE has always been to win its way as a teacher through the interest and affections of the people—to avoid a technical exclusiveness, and to show rather than to talk of a transfers. Without abandoning the popular feature, the puousners leel that the time has connected with the artistic and æsthetic culture of our people, and to this end they propose to introduce many new featurer.

In attempting to describe what The Art Journal of America will be, it may be expedient to begin by stating what it will not be.

It will not be imported from England, and "published" here by the addition of an American imprint.

can imprint.

It will not be foreign to the ideas and interests

can imprint.

It will not be foreign to the ideas and interests of Americans.

It will not depend for its American character mainly on added pages from the illustrated cataco: uses of large manufacturers.

It will not hinder art cultivation by using superseded processes of illustration because the plates are to be had second-and because there was a popular prejudice, preceding education, that valued "steel-plates" by comparative expense rather than by excellence.

It will be thoroughly American and national, without being narrow or conceited.

It will teach Americans the beauties of their country and the progress of their art workers; but it will also bring home to their firesides examples of foreign masterpleces that shall show the heights to be co-quered, and stir the emulation and ambition of our younger civilization.

It will furnish communications on art topics from a corps of regular correspondents at the principal art centres of the world—making a connected contemporaneous history of the higher branches of human industry.

THE ALDINE AND AMERICAN SCENERY

THE ALDINE AND AMERICAN SCENERY

The glories of the unrivaled scenery of our ountry afford an exhaustless field for the everelse of the painter's art. Many attempts have been made to gratify the popular longing for scenes of "home, sweet home," but it will be universally acknowledged that, so far as our listrated periodicals are concerned, such attempts have hitherto proved miserable failures—mere carleatures or topographical digrams rather than pictures—it remains for the publishers of THEALDINE to inaugurate an artistic movement that shall be worthy of the subject—that shall give American scenery its rightful pre-eminence in the pictorial world. The glories of the unrivaled scenery or our

In this age and country of universal travel, it, In this age and country of universal travel, is astonishing how compare ively few are acquainted with scenes not to be viewed from the windows of a railway car. Toordinary American "tourists" the mission of THE ALDINE will be to reveal the undiscovered beauties, to them "so near, and yet so far." To lovers of nature whose privilege it has been to enjoy the realities, these delineations will come as souvenirs in grateful harmony with the pleasures of memory.

The Aldine and the American Centennial.

The Aldine and the American Centennial.
In accordance with their purpose to give the American people an Art Journal that shall be characteristically their own, the publishers have availed themselves of the approaching anniversary of the birth of the country, to mangurate that which shall hereafter constitute a principal feature of the enterprise; namely, the artistic illustration of leading historical events an our history. The noble proportions of the Titz AtDINE page afford every facility for the mosteffective rendering of details, without which a succession of pictures on any subject become monotonous and wearisome to a degree.

THE ALDINE AND DICTILESCOLE

THE ALDINE AND PICTURESQUE EUROPE.

EUROPE.

While all proper attention is given to national topics as a distinctive characteristic of the work, no fear need be entertained that its scope will be contracted or the cosmopolitan features of art neglected. The publishers are happy to announce the success of arrangements for placing before their readers a series of views of the grandest and most interesting scenes of Europe on a scale which is possible only with the broad pages of TIER ALDINE. These pictures are no mere repetitions of the peculiarities of two or three artists, dealing with nature on so small a scale as to afford no opportunity for variety of detail or effect, but they are magnificent full-page plates in every way worthy of costly frames, were they not so appropriately placed in a work which is in fact an ornamental portfolio or high art. This new series of European landscapes will demonstrate the intention and ability of The Art Journal of America, to satify all demands and to occupy every field of high art illustration.

The art of THE ALDINE, national and cosmopolitan, is permitted to range the entire world of reality, and to soar to the heights of the imaginative, so that a surfelt of one thing, however sweet, is impossible. It subscribers shall recognize that they are supplied not only with the best, but with a healthful and ref eshing succession of topics, as comprehensive and exnaustless as the appetite which is so carefully considered.
