

Mr. Blake on the Irish Church.

Hon. Edward Blake, M.P., in the course of a speech in Edinburgh, paid a warm tribute to the Church in Ireland. Controversial as certain of his statements and arguments the Tories advanced in opposition to Home Rule, he showed in particular that what Unionists were contending for was the maintenance of the religious ascendancy which Protestants had established even in districts where they were an obvious minority of the population. Taking the counties of Donegal, Waterford, Tipperary, Kerry and Sligo, he affirmed, among other things, that whilst the aggregate population of these was in the proportion of 660,000 Catholics to 79,000 Protestants, the aggregate grand juries of the five counties were composed of 114 Protestants and only two Catholics. He had told many an English audience that they would not stand for twenty-four hours in their counties the state of things they were now forcing upon the Irish people in their counties.

When it was said that what the Irish Roman Catholic priests really wanted was an opportunity to endow and establish the Roman Catholic Church, he, as a Protestant, declared that there was no greater example in the history of the world of the capacity of a Church to stand without endowment, without establishment, as the Church of the poor, kept impoverished to assist the Church of the rich, than the Roman Catholic Church of Ireland and there were no people within his knowledge who were more tolerant, who were more disposed to ignore religious distinctions in secular affairs than the people who belonged to that Church in Ireland.
