

this time did not even trouble with the door, but left it swinging open.

But on the threshold he sniffed again, and asked again if Æneas smelled soot. "Ye don't?" he said with disappointment. "I could swear I do, and maybe it's the lantern."