Air.

THE SMASH --- AND WHY

"What is taking place to-day is what I predicted a good many months ago, viz., that, for nearly two years now, the loaning concerns of New York, and by that I include many of the banks, the loan companies, the mortgage companies and the trust companies, have had falling into their hands immense amounts of stocks on which they had made advances. The so-called purchasers of these securities were unable to pay further, and as their brokers were unable to protect them, they gradually came into the hands of these loaning concerns, so that, day after day, week after week, the accumulation continued; the managers of the loaning concerns hoping day after day that the public would sooner or later come in and take the securities all back again, and so relieve them. In this hope, these loaning concerns held together to keep up prices, and maintained the pool for months.

"But they have at last come to grief, and many of these loaning concerns, and especially the trust companies, have had their depositors suddenly asking for their deposits to be cashed. It will be found that some of these trust companies, as it has already been found in the case of the Knickerbocker, are only able to pay back a portion of their deposits, that the rest of all the funds, including the shareholders' capital, have gone into stocks, and now that these stocks are away down in price, there will be no money for the balance of the depositors until these stocks can be sold. In the meantime, the concern must close its doors, and the shareholders in these trust companies and loaning companies will lose every dollar of the share capital they paid in.

"Not only will the ten-point margin investors be wiped out, and many of the brokers who endorse their propositions have already been wiped out, but a new class will come to the front, and they will come to the front in large numbers, viz., the people who, as shareholders in these trust companies, and who thought they were beyond all danger, will find themselves ruined. These people were not themselves speculators, never were speculators, were looking for simple and safe investments; and if they are wiped out it is because those who, as managers of the companies in which they placed their money, more or less lost their heads and put all the funds of the company in advances on stocks."
