THE PRICE OF CATTLE.

During the past week The World has printed several articles bearing on the circumstance that prices for cattle rule much higher in Chicago than in Toronto. Some, as already indicated, attribute the high prices paid in Chicago to the existence of a large wealthy class in the United States, who will pay any figure for the kind of meat they want. Others say that the United States cattle bring better figures simply because of their superior quality as compared with Canadian stock. And still others again base the difference in values in the two markets on the fact that Chicago has a large export dead meat trade, while Toronto confines her attention to the shipping of live cattle. These latter maintain that the establishment of a dead meat industry for export purposes in Toronto or Montreal would result in the Canadian farmer or dealer getting as much for his cattle as does the United States rancher or trader. This position is again pooh-poohed by parties who hold that a successful export dead meat business could not, under present conditions, be carried on in this country.

Now, this live stock business is one of vast importance to Canada, and as there seems to exist among cattle dealers themselves a difference of opinion as to the export trade, we trust that those interested will continue to contribute to the discussion inaugurated by The World. Valuable results are often obtained by the free interchange of ideas in this way.

As England is the great importer of live stock and dead meat, we today, for the purpose of throwing light on the subject in hand, quote some statistics furnished by the British Department of Agriculture, and printed in The London (Eng.) Economist. The following figures represent imports into Great Britain during the first seven months of the current year, and the corresponding period of the previous year:

Animals (living)	1901	1902
Cattle from United States	24,416,613	23,033,384
Cattle from Canada	633,244	605,388
Beef (fresh)
From U. S.	$4,000,421	$3,282,122
Australasia	318,115	292,029
Other countries	143,736	236,092

According to this statement the value of live cattle imported from Canada during the first seven months of this year showed an increase of over £2000 against the corresponding period of 1901, but this was due to this year's rise in the price of cattle. As a matter of fact during the period in question 2012 fewer head were imported from Canada this year than last. It will be observed that in the dead meat (fresh beef) statistics given above Canada does not figure at all. Australasia, for the period under consideration, dropped off £400,000 in her fresh beef exports to England. This decline is probably accounted for by the severe drought which smote Australia this year.

And when we take up the exports from the United States to Great Britain we find a startling falling off for the first seven months of this year, as compared with the first seven months of last. Live cattle shipments declined £725,000 in value, and fresh beef exports £200,000, a total of £925,000, or upwards of £750,000. This decline is a heavy one for seven months, and it is argued that owing to the increased population of the United States that country will not be able to hold its own in its beef exports to Great Britain.

Now the remaining chief source of Britain's dead meat supply is the Argentine Republic, and we find that for the first seven months of 1902 Great Britain imported from Argentina 330,274 cwt. of fresh beef, against 301,370 cwt. for the same months in 1901, and 195,574 cwt. in 1900. In other words between 1900 and 1902 the value of the fresh beef importations increased £100,000.

An examination of the imperfect statistics here given will prove that the United States is fast on the down grade in the matter of supplying Britain with beef, and that Argentina is apparently taking the place of the North American Republic in that trade.

Here is an opportunity for Canada. The United States is becoming occupied with its own home market, and why should not Canada share with Argentina the increased opening in the British market thus created? Canada is forging ahead, and the United States is falling behind in the pork and bacon export trade with England, and the question is asked: Why cannot Canada likewise forge ahead as the United States falls behind in the dead meat export trade?

There is evidently room for a good deal to be said on the possibilities of a Canadian dead meat trade, and we again invite correspondence from parties interested.

BARTON ON THE CONFERENCE.

In view of the fact that no official report has yet been made as to the results accomplished by the recent colonial conference in London, every statement made by any leading participant in that important gathering is received by the public with interest. Hints as to the decisions arrived at have dropped from the mouths of Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and the Canadian Ministers, but in an interview printed in a local paper on Tuesday, Sir Edmund Barton made the most interesting deposition concerning the London meeting that we have seen. And we are pleased to observe that he voices the most optimistic views as to the final results of the gathering.

No failure, no disappointment, does the Premier of the newly federated Australia see in the conference. Sir Edmund's general assertion that all the delegates were satisfied with the results attained, and that if successful conferences of this kind, as well, much will be accomplished for the solidarity of the empire, will prove encouraging to Imperialists everywhere. And when he comes to particularize, we find satisfaction in his statement that the conclusions of the conference point to the adoption of pro-British trade preferences by those of the self-governing colonies which have not yet acted in that direction, that he would present such a plan to the Australian Legislature, and that the Imperial Government and Parliament would probably be recommended by the British delegates to the conference to reciprocate as far as possible.

In the matter of military defence, as in other questions, Sir Edmund, we are glad to observe, says that each section of the empire will retain its autonomous rights, and that at the same time an effort will be made to assimilate the different systems, so that all could more effectively act in concert, should occasion arise.

One of the most practical ends obtained was the decision that in future the United Kingdom should give the colonies, and the colonies the United Kingdom, a preference in all government contracts. This recommendation should have far-reaching results, both financially and sentimentally.

When the Imperial Government reduces the present high postal rates on outgoing newspapers, as recommended by the conference, the circulation of old country literature in the colonies will be facilitated, and that is a thing to be desired.

Recommendations on other important matters were adopted by the conference, and, although since the Australian Premier spoke, we have a clearer and more hopeful view of the ends served by the conference than we have previously been able to arrive at.

A CURIOUS ANOMALY.

The maltreatment of foreigners by a United States mob has again drawn attention to a curious incapacity on the part of the Washington Government. The outrage occurred in a city of Oregon, the victims were 50 Chinamen, of whom three were shot, and the authorities at the head of the celestial empire have appealed to the United States for the enforcement of justice in the premises.

But Uncle Sam is helpless in the case. The Federal Government has no jurisdiction. It cannot deal directly with and punish those who commit crimes against foreigners. All Washington can do is offer China monetary compensation, or turn the affair over to the State Governor, who, controlled by local State prejudice, would probably not take any sufficient action.

When United States missionaries are injured in China, punishment of the offenders is demanded, and Pekin generally complies with promptness. But, the United States makes treaties in which it undertakes to protect foreigners resident within its borders. The government has never acquired the power to fulfill its obligations under such compacts.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT THE FAIR.

dicted for the schools a large field in every respect for the future.

Mr. Baldwin said the real achievements of the exhibition could be measured largely by the educational features of the enterprise. These were numerous and most praiseworthy. It was very gratifying to him personally.

D. A. Carey declared it was the duty of all educators to make the exhibition a success. He conceived it to be a splendid educational ideal.

James L. Hughes said he was pleased to note the presence of both elements of the educational system of the city, and he thought it was evident that the old lines were gradually disappearing, and would in time be wiped out.

Principal Scott of the Normal School suggested the appointment by the government of an officer to study the subject of backward students, and see if any of them could not be brought up to the level of the average. He said that the brains that do not appear to respond readily to the teacher's instruction should be aroused to a great deal of interest.

Meetings to be held.

The Agricultural Association was scheduled for a meeting Tuesday afternoon in horticultural hall, but the meeting was postponed until Friday. Several members of the Ontario Evaporated Fruit Association held an informal meeting and looked over the fruit display. It was pronounced very satisfactory. Both of these organizations will hold meetings later in the week.

The exhibition is evidently attracting more than passing attention from the big daily papers of the United States. The Chicago Tribune, for example, has on the grounds to supply an illustrated story for that journal on the educational and industrial features of the fair. The American Journalist who gained fame on the battlefield of Santiago, while reporting and fighting the Spanish. R. H. Odell of Milwaukee, has arrived, and will supply an illustrated article on "How to do it in Canada." It will be printed during the Milwaukee fair. The English of the Associated Press at Chicago was a press building visitor during the day. He is not writing up the fair, but merely a visitor.

DON'T TRY PRESSURE.

Trust to Intelligence.

You cannot be a victim of law pressure anyone from dragging themselves to death. We must meet the evil by appeal to the intelligence.

One of the drugs that does the most harm to Americans, because of its wide use and use in its appearance, is cocaine. Ask any regular coffee drinker if he or she is perfectly well. At least one-half are not. Only those with extra vigor can keep well against the daily attack of caffeine (in the coffee). The heart and pulse gradually lose strength; dyspepsia, kidney troubles and nervous diseases of some sort set in and, in clearly marked effects of cocaine poisoning are shown. The reason why anyone's thought. The reason, able and sensible thing is to leave it off and shift to Postum Food Coffee. The poison that has been secretly killing is thus withdrawn and a powerful rebuilding agent put to work. Good effects will begin to show inside of 10 days. If health and comfort are worth anything to you, try it.

The costuming of this vast horde of characters of the 15th century alone cost $100,000. The fire works were very elaborate and elicited the wildest applause, especially those pieces depicting in fire the facial outlines of the King and Queen, and Lord Dunsinane. This was a very artistic arrangement of display. The performance, about 25,000 of whom were in the arena, and the lawn adjoining. The directors are much pleased with the attendance, and enthusiasm of the people. President McNaughton declares that the Exhibition ought to be better every day.

EXHIBITION NOTICES.

Clever Troupe of Glass Blowers.

Exceptional interest is attached to the entertainment given by W. A. Stark's troupe of glassblowers, on the Midway. Whatever form visitors may wish the glassblowers to impart to the delicate substance under their touch, that will the artists do. A handsome souvenir that would cost in a novelty store as much as a dollar or more is handed to every visitor. Nothing more novel or interesting than the glassblowers' entertainment has ever been seen at the Exhibition before.

Montreal's Famous Whale.

Last November Montreal was thrown into a great state of excitement by the presence of a whale of enormous proportions in the harbor. The thrilling capture of the huge monster is well known, and writer commendable enterprise Mr. A. M. Lafrance secured it, and it is now on the Midway, in a splendid state of preservation, and Mr. Lafrance is constantly in attendance explaining the history of what is probably the most interesting whale ever captured.

Enough to Make One's Mouth Water.

One of the great attractions on the grounds is the display of the Canadian's pioneer biscuit manufacturing. It is a household word, and is a conspicuous one, and thousands have daily expressed their admiration for it. This is an exception to the rule; on the contrary, the display is, if possible, even more artistically arranged than any other amount of interest. From the Atlantic to the Pacific the name "Christie Brown" is a household word. Christie's biscuits are omnipresent. Everyone has used them, and in the display are shown, and in the display are shown, dainty little ones, scarcely a mouthful, but arranged prettily in jars, and made a very striking display, and a desired acquisition to the main building.

Electric Theatre on Midway.

The wonderful use that electricity can be put to is exemplified in the electric theatre, showing the city of a day in Switzerland from sunrise to midnight. By means of a marvelous bit of mechanical ingenuity that is as surprising as it is novel, one can see the city of Lucerne, Switzerland, from the sun gradually rising and in a moment or two the daylight breaks with remarkable realism. The various cloud effects are also shown as natural as one could possibly imagine. Then, too, the scene changes to a night scene, and gradually the picture grows darker and darker. Presently streaks of lightning shoot across the sky, the thunder echoes, and re-echoes from over the mountains, and finally with a great crash the picture fades from view. The electric theatre is truly a masterpiece of modern art, and that it has already proved an immense success is shown by the large crowds that are flocking to it. ### Pretty Little Heavily Sisters.

There is a juvenile theatre on the Midway, but it is quite as interesting to the older folk as it is to the little ones. The feature of the performance is the really an excellent one, and the clever dancing and singing of the two pretty Heavily Sisters, who are really a little girl, with charming voices and manners, and are already immense favorites with visitors to the Midway.

Among the Carriages.

There is much to be seen in the carriage building. One of the most interesting exhibits is that of the Dunlop Tire Co., which shows the progress of the rubber and pneumatic tires, rubber door mats, rubber horse shoes, and the many other products of the Dunlop Rubber Co. The Dunlop Creepers Comfort heels for men and women.

Can Get a Good Meal.

Olegg's dining hall, at the west end of the grand stand, with its accommodation for 2000 persons, is a fine example of the name of "the finest on the grounds." Patrons of former years find the cuisine and service as good as old, unexcelled. A private dining room for Exhibition parties at the west end of the grand stand, for former years will merit a trial this year.

Popular Instruments.

The Doherty Organ Company once more occupies a place in the music hall. This company, in its existence of over a quarter of a century, has evidenced itself justly popular with the public. Its popularity is entirely due to the instruments' merits. And thus the sale grows every year. The world's firm of church organs have never before, in any other country, been so widely known. The instruments are, in fact, the most popular of their kind. The Doherty Organ Company, please the owner, and give a credit to the makers.

Magnificent Showing.

The Dominion Organ and Piano Company of Bowmanville occupy a large handsome decorated space in the eastern entrance to the music hall. This year the company has made a magnificent showing. The instruments are of the highest quality, and the exhibition this year endorses their reputation. Their names have been complemented by some of the world's most eminent musicians, which is a further guarantee of their excellence. Their trade extends to all parts of the world. The Dominion Organ and Piano Company have their city agents, Messrs. Goulray, Winter & Leeming, 188 Yonge Street, who will be pleased to show the merits of these instruments.

Don't Fall.

See the display of bicycles, automobiles, wood and wire wheels and bike driving wagons. Heavy and light double and single harness being exhibited by the International Carriage Company. This reliable company exhibit their products in their regular style, none finished extra for Exhibition purposes, and sell direct to customers for less than prices to agents. Mr. J. H. Morrow is their Canadian agent, and he is very anxious to be pleased to give all information.

Look at This.

Blacksmiths and workmen examine Henderson's famous hand-power tire setter, the only machine that sets the tire and keeps the proper dish in wheel.

Farmers See It.

Farmers see the Daisy Fruit Grader as it is unquestionably the best on the market. The Daisy has succeeded in putting all other graders in the background, and was the only grader that received recommendations from the Fruit Growers' Association in Cobourg last year. Write the A. H. Pettit Manufacturing Company, Grimsby.
