of the Province's finances. Licenses and Politics

Reviewing the developments in the license inquiry at Toronto, Mr. Thompson claimed that the Government had fallen far short of its announced intention to remove license affairs from the sphere of politics. Another matter on which anti-election promises had not been kept was that of railway taxation and bonuses. The Conservative Opposition had declared for the Pettypiece bill, and two-cent fares on Governmentaided railways, but had failed to hold to those principles.
