Additional force is given to the remarks

The city of St. John may learn something from Winnipeg in the matter of taking care of neglected children. Canada Monthly for May contains a very interesting article telling in a general way what is done in the western city to look after those children who are not cared for by those children who are not cared for by their parents.

There is in the first place a Children's Aid Society, which was incorporated under the Children's Protective Act to investigate cases of neglected, abused, dependent or orphan children. The society is empowered, if circumstances warrant, to become the legal guardian of such children and find them foster homes or otherwise anitably place them. Before this action was commission would lose its usefulness. and find them foster homes or otherwise suitably place them. Before this action is taken, however, a statement of the case must be given before a magistrate, who issues an order authorizing the guardianship. If there are parents, and they prove by a period of good conduct that they are more fit to have charge of their children, the latter are returned to them. This society only offers temporary shelter, but during ten years it has cared for more than 1,000 neglected waifs. It will be noted that the society has a law behind it.

There is also a Children's Home in Winnipeg, and on the day on which it was visited by the writer of the article in Canada Monthly there were 190 inmates. This home was opened in a small way twenty-six years ago, but now it is well equipped and the public school board provides and maintains a building in which the children of the home attend school. Those who are too young are taken care of in play rooms and a nursery. In this home either temporary or permanent shelter is given, and it is expected as far as possible that the work shall be paid for, although in a great many cases no pay is received.

He the provincial elections are soon to be held, Mr. Flemming has quite a number of fences to fix, and there is some doubt as to his ability to make a thorough job of it. The Liberals are confident and united.

The Hon. Sam Hughes was greeted with the becoming of cannon and met by a guard of honor at Halifax yesterday. Presumably the locomotive tooted when Hon, Frank Cochrane arrived. How these tories lean toward banquets and uniforms and toadyism.

We are not told how this school is supported, but presumably it is conducted by a board and depends upon private contributions for its maintenance.

Mr. Knowles takes a great interest in these boys. Those of school age go to school. Those old enough go to work They hold their own court and try offenders against the rules, the punishment being withdrawal of privileges. Mr. Knowles hopes to see the Home grow until there is a farm with trade buildings attached, where boys might get practical training.

The Children's Aid Shelter is another institution, and there are also the Children's Aid Nursery, the Free Kindergar tens and the Children's Hospital and Free Dispensary for poor children, for which $10,000 was raised last fall to erect a new building. There is also a Home for the Friendless, conducted by a Christian lady, where there may be found about 100 children and fifty to sixty-five women. The Margaret Scott Nursing Mission in one year paid 5,227 visits to infants and children, and it plans to develop children's work more along preventive and educative lines. There are, of course, other and maller organizations which look after children's about the middle of May.

ticket with which he is identified. The outlook for the Liberals in Kings county is excellent, for the people feel that the present representatives have not rendered good service, or protested against the wasteful methods and rank partisanship of the provincial government.

Additional force is given to the remarks of Mr. Hawke by an address made by one Dr. Hamilton before the Single Tax Association in Toronto this week. He declared that he cared nothing for Plato, Confucius, Buddah or Christ, and what he did want was the gospel of Henry George that tells how to build a $1,000 house—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"There will be no sanitarium for consumptives built in St. John this year. Although the county council some time ago adopted a motion to establish a tuberculosis sanitarium and referred the matter to a committee, the necessary legislation to proceed with the matter was not secured at the recent session of the legislature, and no provision was made in the county estimates for funds."

This surely cannot be final. Some provision should be made without delay for the care of advanced cases of tuberculosis, and for a day camp for incipient cases. The citizens should insist upon action being the county estimates the case of advanced cases of tuberculosis, and for a day camp for incipient cases. Those who argue that either socialism or the single tax would bring about a reformation, compared with which the influence of Christianity upon the world in the past would appear insignificent, do not reckon at all with human nature. They propose a cure that will not produce the results which they predict, but they are in deadly earnest about it, and the situation must be faced by the Christian church.

There is also in Winnipeg the Knowles Home for Boys. Mr. W. A. Knowles once took a little boy off the streets to his boarding-house because there did not seem anything else to do. This led to the cstablishment of the home and he had in it last fall forty-nine boys, working, wayward or homeless. Some gathered there because their parents were dead, or the lads were beyond control and were sent there by the judge of the juvenile court.
