"SOMETHING BIG" HERE SOON SAID MR. HAYS TO MAYOR
The general topic of conversation on the streets today was last night's great banquet and the very satisfactory announcements made by President Hays and Hon. Dr. Pugsley, regarding the commencement of work on the G. T. P. terminals. The function was spoken of on every side as one of the most enjoyable and successful affairs ever held in the city. It has apparently had the effect of strengthening the growing optimism of the citizens in the future of the port and on every hand big things are predicted for the coming years.

Mayor Frink who accompanied Mr. Hays and party on their visit to Courtenay Bay yesterday afternoon, said when the party returned to the city that he was looking around—"Mr. Mayor there is going to be something big here before long." The president of the G. T. P. made a great impression on his audience last evening and showed plainly his friendliness for the port of St. John.

This morning Hon. Dr. Pugsley accompanied Mr. Hays and party to Moncton and will make a thorough inspection of the eastern section of the new Transcontinental road.

ELUQUENT LECTURE IN OPERA HOUSE SUNDAY.
It is said that W. D. McCracken, M.A., Q.C., who is to deliver a lecture on Christian Science in the Opera House next Sunday at 3 p. m., is an orator of no mean ability. As a member of the Board of Lecturers of the First House of Christian Science at Boston (Mass.), he has lectured on this subject in the leading cities of the United States. His subject is one of the topics of the day. A capacity house may be looked for Sunday. No collection, and seats are free.

THINKS WORST OFF.
A break in the water main last night gave residents of the city quite a scare, especially those in the higher levels. The water was shut off from Loch Lomond about 7 o'clock, and in the meantime the Little River supply was drawn upon.

GREATEST DINNER.
Henry Wathan, of Harcourt, N. B. who has recently been superannuated from the railway mail service, after thirty-five years of service, was tendered a banquet at Watham's last night by about twenty-five of his friends and brother mail clerks. John Emerson occupied the chair and had on his right the guest of honor and on his left A. J. Gross, superintendent of the Mail Service. The toast to the King was received with musical honors, and that to "Our Guest" brought forth speeches of appreciation to the sterling worth of Mr. Wathan. A pleasing feature was the presentation of a handsome silver loving cup. The presentation was made by Mr. Gross. Mr. Wathan was on the Moncton Campbellton route.

FREDERICKTON NEWS
Frederickton, Oct. 21—(Special)—Col. Humphrey, D. O. C. and Captain A. H. Borden, of Halifax are here today to meet a committee on the Strathcona Fund at the education office to arrange for distribution of New Brunswick's share. The sum of $700 is available for New Brunswick. Col. Humphrey will preside at a district court martial tomorrow to try Private Galloway on a charge of desertion. A gravel train on the Gibson branch ran off the track at Gibson last night making it necessary for the regular train to be delayed.

VARIED CHARGES IN POLICE COURT
Lying and Lurking in Brussels Street House, One Case

Two Girls and a Youth Arrested One Young Man Escapes—Hotel Chef's Case—"Robert Burns" on the Bench

There were numerous varied charges in the police court this morning including "lying and lurking in a vacant house against two young girls and a young man," "threatening with a knife against a hotel chef," and a drunkenness charge against "Robert Burns."

Hella Scott, aged 18, Minnie Carberry, aged 19, and Thomas McKinnon, were arrested between 9 and 10 o'clock last night by Acting Sergeant Scott, and Patrolman Crawford, charged with lying and lurking in a vacant house off Harrigan's Alley, Brussels street.

McKinnon, said he was sitting on the doorstep of the house and because of the rain they decided to go inside.

Patrolman Crawford said that they had been notified that two young girls and a young man were in the house. A youth named Lavigne, who was said to be one of the young men, escaped by an open window. They arrested McKinnon, the Scott and Carberry girls. On the patrolman asserting that he had been informed that the prisoners had been going to the house at night for a week past, one of the girls called out from the bench "that's a lie," and McKinnon said loudly, "not guilty."

His Honor remarked to McKinnon that he could not have much respect for the Scott girl. After a private conversation with the Carberry girl he sent her to the Home of the Good Shepherd for nine months, and the Scott girl was remanded to jail.

Fred Alexander was charged with threatening Harry Doherty with a knife. W. E. Raymond, said that they were not desirous of punishing Alexander, and on account of the wife and family of the latter, he asked for leniency. All that he asked was that the man keep away from the hotel. Alexander was remanded.

Rey McPherson charged with being drunk and refusing to pay for a meal in a restaurant, pleaded guilty and was fined $5. He also pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk and was fined $5.

Holman was fined $8 and John McKelvey $4 for drunkenness, and Jeremiah Murphy remanded in connection with the heavy case.

Robert Burns pleaded guilty to drunkenness and as he remanded him, his Honor said—"You had better change your name if you are to be a police frequenter."

John Leary, the milkman whose horse and wagon were taken by Wm. White, gave evidence. Daniel Mullin, K.C., was present, in the interest of White, and asked that the case be dismissed as it appeared plain that the action was the result of a drunken orgy, and that it was not pretended that he ever intended to take the horse. His Honor took the matter under consideration.

Harry London, reported for allowing his horse to go at large in Adelaide street, and for allowing his horse to be loose during the past five years these remains could have been put there?

Crippen—"I don't say it is probable, but it is possible."

Crippen was next confronted with the pyjamas which played an important part in the case. He was shown two suits, fairly new, which were placed in front of him on the witness box. He said they were his and he thought he bought them a year ago last September at Jones Bros. Shown another pair of pyjamas trousers not so new, he said it was part of a suit he brought previously.

Mr. Muir—"This is very important. Do you remember buying these pyjamas?" Crippen said he could not say when he bought the suit of pyjamas of which the trousers remained, but it was soon after he went to Hilldrop Crescent, in 1905 or 1906.

"What became of the jacket," asked Mr. Muir.

"I could not tell you, worn out probably."

"Did your wife buy those pyjamas for you at Jones Brothers in January, 1909?"

Contradictory
The judge—"Listen, because it is very important to yourself."

Crippen—"I would not say she did not buy some; she might have bought some and I some."

"Did not your wife buy you three sets of pyjamas at Jones Bros. sale in January, 1909?"

"Will you say she did not?"

"I won't."

Mr. Muir—"Did not your wife buy you three suits, one of them minus a jacket, on January 5, 1909?"

"She bought some; I don't know whether these are the one or not."

The judge—"Two minutes ago you said your wife never bought you pyjamas, but you now say she bought them. Now you have said your wife did buy some, which is true?"

CRIPPEN GETS A GRUELLING
"Crippen, smiling, almost laughing—"I do not see why you should keep on questioning me as to this. I am willing to admit I have told you, that they were lies."

Judge Speaks Sternly to Crippen
"The Judge, rather sternly—"That may be so, Dr. Crippen, but it is a very serious part of the case. You must really answer the question, lies or no lies."

Mr. Muir—"The awful shock was purely imagination."

"It was entirely."

"How did you know your wife might not write to Dr. Burroughs?"

"I did not think she would write to anybody because she told me to cover up the scandal. I only inferred she would not write."

"Do you ask the jury to believe that, not knowing your wife might write the Martinetti or Dr. Burroughs, you told them she was dead?"

"Yes."

"Where did you think she was?"

Crippen—"In Chicago with Bruce Milner."

Mr. Muir called attention to letters which Crippen wrote to relatives in America, writing of his wife's death. Asked how, if his wife had gone to America, he did not know she would call on her relatives, Crippen said if she had gone with another man he did not think she would face her relatives. These were, said the counsel, a very elaborate series of misrepresentations to a number of persons.

"For whose sake," he asked, "were you going through this elaborate process?"

"For the sake of us both."

Mr. Muir—"What did it matter?"

Crippen—"I did not wish friends to think I had treated her badly or that she had left me."

Mr. Muir spoke of Crippen living in open adultery with Le Neve.

Crippen—"It was not so open as you seem to imagine."

"You had treated your wife well, giving her money, fun and jewelry. For four years you ceased to cohabit. Then she treated you with ingratitude, and left you. Why seek to cover a scandal with such a wife?"

Crippen—"I cannot explain in any other way than I have done."

A Glimpse of Home Life
Mr. Muir then passed on to the cellar of Hilldrop Crescent, where the remains were found. Crippen said he had been a tenant in the house for five and a half years, but did not know whether, during that time, the floor had been disturbed. Sunday was about the only time he was at home, whilst his wife would go out in the afternoon sometimes and not return till 1 or 2 o'clock the next morning. He had been in the cellar.

Mr. Muir—"You know, of course, that these remains were found in the cellar?"

"I was told by my solicitor when I returned to England."

"As far as you know they could not have been put there while you were not there?"

"Not that I know of."

"You say that was impossible, because these times when you were away. During my absence in the day-time my wife was also away."

The Judge Again Queries
The judge—"Do you really ask the jury to understand that without your knowledge your wife's knowledge, sometime during the past five years these remains could have been put there?"

Crippen—"I don't say it is probable, but it is possible."
