

and unbelief, it did me more good than anything else. I am better in health now, but not quite well, and probably never shall be again, as my heart has become weak, although I am considerably under fifty years of age. I mention my case to you, thinking it might be of some interest to you.—I remain, faithfully yours,

“W. SHEPPARD POLE (Ph. C.)”

I have not heard a single complaint.

„Baldock, Herts, Eng., January 4th, 1883.

“GENTLEMEN,—Perhaps it would be appropriate to state, that it gives me great pleasure to push and advance the sales of your medicines on account of their worth. I have not had or heard a single complaint about your medicines since I have sold them, but, on the other hand, unbounded testimony as to their worth, therefore I can with confidence bring them to the public notice. During 1882, I sold 11½ dozens of Syrup, and 7½ dozen Pills. This, I think, taking into account that the inhabitants are under 2,000, and there are two other agents in the town, will give you a good idea as to how it is appreciated here.—Faithfully yours.

“H. J. IZZARD, Pat. Med. Vender.”

Its efficacy is acknowledged by thousands.

“GENTLEMEN,—It gives me unfeigned pleasure to bear testimony to your remedies, for the many ills that flesh is heir to. Of all the medicines I dispense, I know of none superior to yours for all internal bodily ailments. Although SEIGEL'S SYRUP is a 'patent medicine,' and, consequently, despised and maligned by the Faculty, there is no sham about it, and its efficacy is acknowledged by thousands of sufferers, and its sale does not diminish, which is about as good a barometer as any I know.—I am, yours most respectfully, “J. REED, Chemist.”

I must admit that it has done what no other medicine ever has.

“421, Shoreham Street Sheffield, Eng.,

December 27th, 1883.

“SIR,—I have great pleasure in testifying to the value of SEIGEL'S SYRUP as a curative agency. I do not profess to repeat the hackneyed statements so frequent in letters of commendation relative to advertised medicines. I have not tried doctors without end, or taken mixtures by the pint, but this I can say: I have for several years been subject to a disorder of the digestive organs (whether liver or stomach, or both, I know not), and this complaint has really baffled all the remedies I tried, and they were not a few—carbonate of soda, gentian root, various herbs, besides a careful diet, and constant out-door exercise, but they all failed to effect permanent good. At the outset I disbelieved generally in patent medicines, and my scepticism with respect to many so-called specifics is even now unshaken; but when you come to the Syrup, I must admit that it has done what no other medicine ever has—strengthened the stomach and stimulated the liver to healthy action. I may add, that the prevailing symptom of my particular stomachic derangement was sleeplessness.—Yours truly,

“W. SHEPPARD.”
