PICTURE TAKING

What Photographers Suffer from Some Women and Men.

Truth is, Very Few Faces Are Symmetrical-Wrinkles for Elderly People Now Considered Artistic.

when she sees the photograph she looks grieved, hurt and indignant all at once.

"'Why, that doesn't look a bit like me!' she will exclaim. Then, it she has a friend with her, she will turn and say: 'Well, my coloring is my chief charm, anyway, and, of course, its' all lost in a photograph. Yes, you may semd them up, but they're the last I'll ever have taken.'

"Another type is the woman who 'never expects to have a good photograph taken, because my features never look so well in repose, but when I talk, don't you know, my face is full of animation.' Of course, every-body realizes the truth of this proposition, but every homely woman makes at her excuse, and keeps emphasizing it. I much prefer the candor of a young woman who came in the other day and announced that she wanted a pretty picture, and didn't care whether it looked like her or not.

"'I'm going to send this away to some relatives I haven't seen for years, and will probably never see again, but I want it to look so pretty that they will immediately exclaim: "Why, how Elizabeth has changed!'" will immediately exclaim: "Why, how Elizabeth has changed!"

MEN SEINT BY WOMEN.

"A man is generally driven to have his picture taken," said another photographer; "the old men are made to come by their daughters and the young men by their sweethearts. You know there is a great fad among young people just now for locket pictures. A girl doesn't hesitate at all to say: 'I want a locket picture for my flance,' while a man will simply say he wants a little picture, until we pump it out of him that it is for a locket. In my opinion, very few men care for their own pictures, but simply have them taken when some woman insists on it. They will come in and get the proofs, saying: 'Well, I don't know anything about this, but I'll send back the one that's wanted. A girl, on the other hand, never wants a man to see her picture until it is entirely finished and all the lines taken out."

It is becoming a sort of fad with the best photographers now to make portraits of elderly men and women leaving every line and wrinkle in, and the public is growing to learn the artistic value of this work, which, of course, is a great advance from the stereotyped "pleasant" look of by-gone days.

UNSYMMETRICAL FACES.

UNSYMMETRICAL FACES.

UNSYMMETRICAL FACES,
"I am not at all in sympathy with the idea that the public is a fool," said George G. Rockwood, who has photographed many celebrities in his long professional career. "An artist is supposed from his experience and education in art to be better able to dispose of ,lines and forms and adjust lights than the layman, but the public pays the freight and certainly has rights that a photographer should recognize.
Many subjects, however, are blind to their peculiarities or faults, and it may surprise you to learn that the human face is rarely a perfect bit of symmaface is rarely a perfect bit of symmafamilies do not know of peculiar distinctions in the faces of their own household. I once tosk a photograph in this respect, the difference between the corincular and corner of the mouth being fully half an inch. I did all that my skill could suggest in lights, posing, etc., but could not conceal the unsymmetrical lines. When she saw the proof she threw it down indignantly, exclaming: "Surely my face is not crooked!" But it was.

"I have found little difference in the degrees of vanity in men and women, continued Mr. Rockwood. "The surprising element entered when a plain old farmer who probably had not looked into a mirror for a generation, came in for a photograph and became not only fussy and obstreperous, but very critical.

Mr. Shaughnessy was born in Galway County, Ireland, some 70 summers ago and for the last 50 years he has been a resident of Bangor. Never, however, has he seen fit to take out naturalization papers and never has his loyalty to the crown become dimmed. Although a thorough Irishman, Mr. Shaughnessy is bitterly opposed to home rule and is intensly pro-British in his sentiments. He is as ardent a subject of King Edward today as he was of Queen Victoria 50 years ago, when first he left the Emerald isle. The post, Mr. Shaughnessy, claims, was upon, his own land and not upon the public thoroughfare. For this reason he declared he will replace it. "When it's into the ground," says Mr. Shaughnessy, "I'll put an English Jack on the top and then we'll see who'll dare to chop it down."

In the meantime the city authorities are remaining discreetly quiet. If war does come out of it it is thought that probably Bangor may get that army post after all.

PUBLIC WORKS.

The board of public works was called yesterday to discuss the question of the Douglas avenue repairs, between Phillip Hamm's house and the section repaired last season. In this connection it was stated that during last season 326,000 was expended for permanent streets. The question of the repairs was left in the hands of a committee. The matter of putting up ladders on the ferry boats leading to the pilot houses was left in the hands of the director and Superintendent Glasgow. An order was given to move the west side ferry toll house back further, as soon as possible. The matter of repairing retaining walls and renewing sidewalks in different sections of the city was dealt with. Several members complained that the men employed in the work of the water and sewerage board did not give the city a fair service. The director was authorized to look after this.

EXCHEQUER COURT.

In the exchequer court, Testerday, the case of Guy Baxter v, the King was heard. This is a claim for damages sustained in a collision in June, 189, near Model Farm, on the L.C. R. The judge found for the suppliant, assessing the damages at 18.50. The claim was 355,000. H. A. McKegwm and W. H. Trueman for suppliant; E. H. Makalpine, K. C., and Geo. Blair for the crown.

In the Likely case further documentary evidence was put in and the matter, stands for argument.
