In connection with the extensive manufacture of the new bullet invented for the French army several sets of cartridges have been stolen at Lyons. It is thought that they have been sold to foreign powers, and vigorous search is being made to trace the culprits. The new bullet's propelling power is so great as to drive the bullet in a straight course for half a mile, without any of the rise and fall of the present trajectory. (Moncton Times.)

The St. John Telegraph's Moacton despatch puts the attendance at the liberal convention in Moncton at from 250 to 400. The Moncton Transcript publishes a list of those in attendance showing barely 200 names and quite a number of these are bogue or duplicates. For instance in Moncton, B. N. Jones is, down us a city Kelegrate and again in the parieh list as T. B. Le-Blanc. In the Dorchester parish list the following duplicates appear:
E. E. McManus is down twice.
Patrick McGowan.
C. M. Legere is down twice.
Chas. O. LeBlanc is also down as Ches. O. LeBlanc is also down as Ches. O. LeBlanc is down in two places.

David Cormier is also down as D

David Cornner is also down as D. D. Cornier.

This reduces the attendance to considerably under 200, or about half as much as the Telegraph puts it. An analysis of the Monoton city delegation shows one I. C. R., shop, four I. C. R. offices and five other I. C. R. employes, 26 persons who have government contracts, are selling to the I. C. Rr., or are otherwise in receipt of government money, while nine are known to be looking for government positions or other favors. This is a total of 45. There are 66 names on the Moneton city list, of which two are duplicates, leaving 19, or less than a third of those present who can by any stretch of the imagination be said to be disinterested.

C. N. Vroom of St. Stephen, the temperance candidate in Charlotte, now running on the government ticket, was one of a large delegation of temperance men who interviewed the government in this city last year and were greatly disatisfied with the reply afterwards sent to them by the premier.

sent to them by the premier.

THE FORT KENT DAM.

The reprint last evening states as follows: "Hon. Dr. Pugsley is a director of the Fort Kent Dam Company. He perhaps wishes he wasn't, but the fact remains."

The Telegraph is authorized by Mr. Pugsley to state that he is not a director of the company referred to. If Ananias were living today he would bow down to and worship the editor of the evening reprint as being more accomplished than he in the ability to keep at a respectful distance from the truth.—Telegraph.

There lies on the Star's desk at this moment a printed copy of "An act to incorporate the St. John River Dam Company," In the first section is given a list of names of the persons forming the company. The names of William Pugsley of St. John, is one of them. The second paragraph says: "The persons named in section one of this act shall be the first or provisional directors of the company." Does that Make Mr. Pugsley a director—or not?

THE SILLY TELEGRAPH.

To the Editor of the Star:

Sir.—If the Telegraph persists in its present mode of canvassing, the phrase "Silly Telegraph" will become adaptable. A fair-minded public can well enter into the wholesome encounters of rival political journals, but should be expected to gulp down a wince, the unfair misrepre-and flaunting exaggeration to the Telegraph of late en-We aren't all fools. Yours, etc., ANTI-FAKE.

TO LABORERS.

the Editor of the Star:

Sir,—Mr. Tweedle says the present ate of things is all it should be. I aderstand a delegation from the horers went before a committee apointed by the city council to look into the present assessment law and while sere submitted proof to show that our average wage is not over $200 per ar. Mr. Pugsley draws $9,000—in one ar out of the province alone.

What a dreadful contrast! Laborers, art of that comes out of your $200 and one of your $00 comes out of his $9,000. So you see he has the best of you wages and law. How much time as spent in this four years by the seent local government in making was to protect the laborer? Answer: Illiam Pugsley, $9,000; laborer, $200.

NOT GOOD SCOTCH.

NOT GOOD SCOTCH, the Editor of the Star: Sir,-The following appears in the literial column of this morning's Tele-

Horial column of this morning's 'reignaphi'—
"If the reprint publishes any more lasty slanders on St. Andrew's Society and its honored guests, the Indian who-rields the editorial tomahawk may set 'A pickle in his ain poke mooche.' And that's not Milleite either."
The expression which the writer of the above has attempted to quote is from Rob-Roy ii., p. 267, and is as follows:—'Na, na, sir, we stand on our ain bottom—we pickle in our air pockneuk."

For a correct interpretation of this xpression see Jamieson's Scottish

For a correct interpretation of this expression see Jamieson's Scottish Dictionary, Vol. HI., p. 485.

"To pickle in one's ain pock-neuk, to depend on one's own exertions."

It will thus be seen that the writer of the item published in this morning's Telegraph was not aware either of the words in the phrase which he attempted to quote, or of the meaning of the phrase which is misapplied.

If such a travesty upon the Scottish dialect as the above cannot be otherwise prevented might it not be well to reinstate the chemical editor on the staff of the Telegraph?

Yours truly,

Yours truly INDIGNANT SCOTCHMAN.

A very large purchase of black sateen underskirts made by F. A. Dykeman & Co. enables us to put

The 600 members of the Bayonne, N., Volunteer Fire Department yesterday too off their hats to John Donegan, a memb of Hope Hose Company on West Thirt fourth street. All this because Donega won a fishball eating contest. His recomade at the company dinner on Wednesd night in the hose company's house, is fisheakes of regulation size, 7 large silees a pickles. As the championship medal was bing pinned to his red shirt he remarked:

"It's too bad, boys; I wansn't feeling ver well, else I might have made a much bette record."

Donegan confided to a few statements.

well, else I might have made a much better record."

Donegan confided to a few friends that he had eaten a hearty supper, and was not very hungry. After the supper Chief Nathen said he was glad Donegan didn't have all his appetite, else he would have eaten the hay and foed kept for the horses.

The prize was presented to him. It is a medal of -leather, ornamented sith the picture of a sucking pig. The inscription reads: "Champion fishball eater of the universe."

Last night the hose company issued a challenge on behalf of Donegan, who is ready to meet any fishball eater on this or the other side of the Atlantic. The vamps have a large roll of money which they are ready to wager on Donegan to defeat all comers in a walk.

Blair's Strong Personal Appeal at York Theatre Last Night.

Orders His Constituents to Support Tweedle and Pugsley - Says They're Good Enough Liberals-He Talks About Tarte.

The government leaders are not fully estisfied with the meeting last night. York Theatre was packed to the doors. Mr. Blais can always draw a full house in St. John no matter what his subject—but that indefinable something which, breathing infectiously from a sympathetic audience cheers and inspires the leaders of a winning fight, was utterly lacking. The various candidates were received with half-hearied applause, and even Mr. Blair falled to arouse anything like the old lime entausiasm, though his frequent references to the prosperity of Canada and its growth under liberal rule woke the audience at times to hearty plaudits and once or twice to scattered cheers. But as a meeting in support of the present local administration it was a decided failure. None of the speakers offered one acceptable argument in its favor. Even Mr. Blair totally ignored its record, contenting himself with the declaration that it was a good enough government for him, and therefore any liberal who found fault with it was presumptuous or a traiter to liberalism. Division on the lines of dominion politics was the keynote of the whole meeting. The speeches of Mr. McKeown and Mr. Blair from this point of view were adroit and able efforts, but as far as provincial issues are concerned, like the flowers that bloom in the spring tra-la, they had nothing to do with the case.

the flowers that bloom in the spring tra-la, they had nothing to do with the case.

The machine deserves credit for the management of the meeting. Ushers found seats wherever possible for those on the floor, and other ushers took care that the imposing array of chairs on the platform were filled with gentlemen at yelose, support the speakers had a right to feel gratified.

A. O. Skinner presided and Mr. Mc-Keown was the first speaker. He was not at his best, and it is notable that the first cheer of the evening came in the middle of an eloquent condemnation of the conservative party, when some one in the gallery impudently asked, "Who jumped the fence?" The effect of another flight of the same kind was; spolled by a lapse of memory on the speaker's part, which made him refer to the time "we" were in power for eighteen years. Like the other speakers Mr. McKeown, after an attempt at a defence of the government's financial and agricultural policy, branched on line gittering generalities concerning the glories of Canada and its forward strikes under liberal rule, between which and the record of the Tweedle government he failed to establish any connection. A considerable portion of his speech was devoted to an appeal to the labor interest to support him. His argument for this was chiafly that the liberal government in the dominion favored a low tariff. The logical connection here also was difficult of discovery.

Geo, Robertson, devoted part of a half-hour's speech to advertising the Star. Of course he talked dry-dock before he got through and as usual professed his child-like faith in the intention of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to make its erection possible during the coming season.

Mr. Blair was heartily greeted. Those immediately under his eye arose and Mr. Blair was heartily greeted. Thoumediately under his eye arose ar immediately under his eye arose and cheered yociferously. His speech of an hour and a quarter was an adroit personal appeal to his friends and supporters to return the present government—not because they deserved it, though he thought they were fairly good as governments go now-a-days—but because they were friends of his and he needed their backing to do the best work for his province in Ottawa.

The essence of his address was, "I'm your representative. Haven't I been a good one? Have I deceived you? You know that the liberal policy is the best for Canada. I am a member of the liberal government and whatever was do for me you do for the party.

You know that the liberal policy is the best for Canada. I am a member of the liberal government and whatever you do for me you do for the party. I need the support of the present New Brunswick government and a defeat for them would be a great blow at me and therefore a blow, perhaps a deadly one, at liberalism in Canada. Some of you say Tweedle isn't a good enough liberal. He's a good enough liberal for me. So are the others of the government, Therefore, if you are true liberals and not traitors, you will not set up your averse opinions but take mine, who have studied the matter, and do as I tell you, and elect the present government again. It may have made blunders but it's a fairly good government under the circumstances. Anyway it's good enough for me and Laurier and I want it, so it's good enough for you. Now you be good and vote right and maybe you'll get a dry dock and a dredge for the harbor and perhaps a new wharf or two. (Cheers.)

For Mr. Bialir's friends—and he has many—this was the strongest appeal he could have made. They would do a good deal for Mr. Blalir, but whether their faith in him will be sufficient to sugar-soat the bitter Pugsley-Tweedie pill remains to be seen.

The meeting broke up with cheers for Blair, Laurier, the local government and the king.

little man, Tarte," he sneered, "very pleasant. He would come here to St. John and promise you all sorts of things, piers and wharves galore. he'd ask you if there awan't something more you wanted. Oh, he'd promise anything, that man, to please you. But that doesn't pay. If a leader attempts to deceive the people, to follow a time sehving policy the result will be disastrous. Now Mr. Tarte, he wasn't satisfied with the condition of things. He saw the country was wealthy and growing every day, but he wanted to try the effect of a change of diet. So he went around the country trying to work up the people into sympathy with his schemes, talking interminably and where is he now? Out in the cold, enguifed out of sight. The waves of obscurity have rolled over him and there remains not a ripple to mark the spot where he went down."

In thec ourse of his speech Mr. Biair stepped a little out of his way to exult over the fall of his rival in the cabinet. Hon. J. I. Tarte.

"We have had some little family difficulties in the government since I've been here last. Our friend Mr.
Tarte has left us. Nice, pleasant.
