friends of the victims that their bodies will be found on the shores. The saddest scenes, which caused hardy sailors to break down, were enacted in this town all day, and will be for days to come.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Nov. 30.—The following constitutes a list of the bodies which were washed ashore of Cape Cod, up to midnight to-night.

THE IDENTIFIED DEAD: At Orleans—Body of E. Dudley Freeman of Yarmouth, Me., a prominent member of the governor's council, identified by name on inside of watch case and on paper in pockets.

THE UNKNOWN DEAD: At the undertaking rooms of Thomas S. Taylor, Provincetown, is the body of a woman about 50 years of age, with large frame and features, iron gray hair and dark eyes.

three days. Several pieces of white painted cans were picked up at various points. One theory is that the boats and life rafts were carried far out to sea and were not blown anywhere near this coast.

The place and exact manner in which the Portland was swept to destruction has furnished an unusually interesting topic of discussion in marine circles here. Old mariners say they cannot understand why the steamer, which was sighted about 9 o'clock Saturday night, just before the gale set in, in its full fury, before Thatchers' Island Light and eastern point Cape Ann by the ghr. Maude S., did not put into Gloucester harbor when it was apparent from the fall of the barometer that a violent northeaster was approaching.

When the wreck was at first reported it was thought the boat had possibly struck on the terrible Peaked Hill bar, which are known among mariners everywhere as the graveyard of the New England coast. The wreck was quickly put to flight, however, by careful investigation.

Another incident that tends to place the time of the wreck on Sunday morning was reported by the crew of the Race Point life saving station. The life saving crew there during the height of the driving snow storm heard four sharp whistles from a steamer, which were recognized as a danger signal.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. All the most painful and most fatal diseases arise from deranged kidneys. The liver and stomach are affected; digestion interfered with; biliousness and constipation are an accompaniment; headache, loss of energy and ambition, a dragging down feeling, low spirits and despondency; these are some of the symptoms.

With the steamer bare above the deck and the hull smashed and leaking it seems to me that with the weight of her machinery she must have plunged down, carrying every soul on board with her. The wreckage that has come ashore consists of splinters of the light wood-work of the deck houses. This shows that the Portland did not go to pieces on any rocks, but when her deck houses were swept away by the sea and the gale, she foundered as I said.

VERY LATEST. BOSTON, Nov. 30.—A message was received by G. B. Dudley, at the Portland Steamship company's office here, tonight, from Agent C. P. Williams, that he had obtained a total loss, with all on board. "Have arranged with Captains Thomas and Lavender to look out for cargo in interest of underwriters. Three bodies here, one being a saloon colored boy, other two passengers. Boat still floating for Orleans to look out other bodies they are all along the beach.
