"Canadian Goods for Canadian People" Is the Slogan of Our Manufacturers.

The Cunning of Centuries

There are some things that no Canadian manufacturer would ever pretend to make. Oriental rugs, Sevres China, Greek pottery and Valenciennes lace may be set down as a few of them. In such things we are expected to be a very much older nation than we are now before we can compete with people who have been hundreds of years of learning the art.

But when arguments are put forth to show that Canadians can save money as well as show enlightened patriotism by purchasing "Made in Canada" goods, we should not ignore the fact that we have people as expert at making the chief staple necessities of life as the Persian woman who inherited her capacity for making rugs from some ancestor born about the time sun-worship first became a fad.

Christian industry has no hoary traditions as old as the Laurentian hills. Less than a hundred years ago the "Made in Canada" movement was about the size of a man's hand. But the cloud the size of a man's hand fetched a flood of rain for the Israelites in the days of Elijah. And the Canadian industries that date back to the hand of a man or of a thrifty woman are now among the great manufacturing concerns in the world.

$1,400,000,000

That is the value of Canada's manufactures for one year---in money. But what of their value measured in the comfort, the happiness and the well-being of the whole country?

To produce them gives employment to over six hundred thousand workpeople, whose total wages amount to $288,000,000 each year.

These workers, with their families and those who benefit by their purchasing power, number nearly one-third the population of Canada---supported by Canadian manufactures.

How readily it is apparent that the prosperity and happiness of every Canadian---of yourself---depend on the continuous employment of these people---on the consumption of goods "Made in Canada".

Canadian factories support one-third of our population. Are you helping to support Canadian factories?

ENGLISH SIDELIGHTS ON THE WAR

A lieutenant in an English Lancer regiment writes on November 17: "We all feel that the censorship is a little too strict in some ways. Many regiments have done most gallantly. One regiment the other day near here lost 16 officers and 600 men in five hours, and never gave an inch away---but there was not a word in the papers. In times like these regiments make reputations which keep them full and give them their pick of smart men for years after, and we feel that if more news of what regiments were doing were published, recruiting would be far better---for us and the country. The cavalry is still doing trench work, and most of the men have been issued with bayonets---and need them."

Miss Bennett Burleigh and Mr. W. Gore, with the help of some Belgian refugees, have organized an exhibition for the benefit of war victims, which is attracting much attention at the Royal Institute Galleries in Piccadilly, London. This is a remarkable collection of enlarged photographs, showing Louvain and other Belgian cities before and after the German invasion. With these are many tangible proofs and relics of war---shrapnel and splinters of shell, a shot-riddled drum, flags, accoutrements, and impedimenta; but, more eloquent than the rest, perhaps, a bagful of fireproofers made of caked benzine, which the Germans soaked a bagful at a time in petrol, and then slung into houses and churches, to destroy more surely than any artillery shock could do.

In answer to a question in the House of Commons concerning the reported increase in the number of accidents since the darkening of the London streets, the Home Secretary, Mr. McKenna, replied that the police returns showed no increase in the number of traffic accidents occurring by night. The regulations had been made on the advice of the Admiralty, who were responsible for the defence of London against aerial attack. They have now been relaxed so as to allow shops to remain brightly lighted till 6 p.m., and he would be glad to relax them further as soon as the Admiralty advised him that this can safely be done.

War is having its effect upon the fashions. English papers announce that clothes of English cut or millinery of a French pattern are no longer tolerated in good society in Austria. An organization, with Government approval, has been formed to devise special Viennese styles, which all patriotic Austrians, of both sexes, are expected to follow.

A movement has been started in England for supplying the Allied forces with antiscorbutic food. A vegetable products committee has been formed, with Lord Charles Beresford as president, for the purpose of collecting and delivering fresh fruit and vegetables, jams, preserves, etc., and supplying them to army camps and stations, to warships and hospitals. Two thousand cases have already been dispatched to the North Sea.

"No. 53 Pall Mall," says an English newspaper reporter, "is just now a wonderful sight---as Queen Alexandra must have felt when she came the other day to see the work of the British Red Cross Society in its present home. In the street stand Red Cross motor vehicles; outside and about the doors are piles of Red Cross packing-cases. In the big hall you may see soldiers, British and Belgian, men and women of all the Allied nations, porters, messengers, boy scouts, commissaries, all busy and all cheerful. The lift flies ceaselessly up and down to the many floors of the large building, and on every floor are rows and rows of offices---so many that in each hand a great directory of the rooms and their uses and the presidents of the hundred and one departments into which the work is organized."

"On the 115th day of the war," says a London commercial report, "the port of London remains open and accessible. At no time has there been so large a quantity of food in London, nor so large a quantity of timber, as there is now. This is largely attributable to two causes---the vast purchases of the Sugar Commission and the increased importation of timber for building huts for soldiers. During the month of October there was a considerable decline in the supplies of tea brought to London. This decline was due almost entirely to the activities of the Emden, and very soon after the disappearance of the German cruiser the tea imports began to rise and are increasing every day. Sugar is coming in from Java, America, and Mauritius in unprecedented quantities, and special provision had had to be made at the docks for its storage. The supply of meat from abroad continues without interruption, and the latest available figures show that during the last week of September 13,000 tons in excess of the quantity imported during the corresponding period of last year were brought in."

PRESBYTERIAN

Rev. D. McD. Clarke, who has been pastor of Middle Street Presbyterian Church, N. S., at the year, was recently presented with a handsome silver piece.

Rev. G. C. Robertson, who has been pastor of Owen Sound Presbyterian Church, has held services in the Maritime Provinces, including Tryon and Bonaville, P. E. I., and LaHave.

The choir of St. David's Church, gave a concert in the assembly hall of the School, Hampton, under the direction of the Rev. Mr. Robertson. The proceeds were contributed to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Church Praise Secretary

Rev. A. MacMillan, a member of the Assembly's Committee on Praise, is at present on Nova Scotia in the promotion of the work. Last week he delivered a lecture to the students of the theological college in Halifax, dealing with the history of the church in relation to the work of praise. MacMillan preached at the churches last night, and during the day he visited the churches of the province as Mahone Bay, Windsor, Truro, New Glasgow, and other places. This is his first part of the church since his appointment at the June Assembly. He hopes to have him in St. John's at some later date.

Church Re-Opening

The last Sunday of the year, the re-opening of the Church at Shubenacadie, which Rev. Hugh M. Upster, the church had been in repairs for some time. The re-opening was held on Sunday, Dec. 27, and was presided over by Rev. Robt. Johnston, Church, Halifax, while Rev. Ross and A. V. Morison, ministers, gave assistance. The church was opened to the late pastor, Mr. Irving, who had been in the church since his appointment at the June Assembly. He hopes to have him in St. John's at some later date.

A Forty Years' Past

In these days of comparative peace, the minister of the past, who has extended well into the century, holds a place of honor among his fellows. Rev. Gilray, D.D., has rounded off his forty years in the ministry of St. John's Church, and is said to be "as vigorous as he was a score of years ago." He has seen the city of St. John's grow from a population of 67,000 to 400,000. When he became a member of the church, the number was only 50; today it is 1,300. At the evening service in the presence of a large congregation, Dr. Gilray spoke of the "forty years' past" and of the high character of the congregation throughout the years.

Dr. K. J. Grant's Work

Dr. K. J. Grant, of the missionary fame throughout the world, writes interestingly in a paper of his work among the people of the British Columbia, who are laboring for some time past with the trouble caused by among them, of the conversion to the Roman Catholic faith, and of the difficulties which the mission has met with. He says that a stiff head-on breeze, which was able to hold up against the tide of progress. On a bath the first convert was St. Andrew's Church.
