the Picture Game
Favorites and What

ation on the part of producers. Special pictures are being put out for children and even special programs are being devised for the entertainment and education of children. This class of the moving picture patrons is going to receive special attention as there goes on the following extract from an article in the Toronto Star Weekly, is of interest:

"A book and news trade expert remarked recently that the motion picture had about ended the day of the five-cent novel for boys, and that, where, before the advent of the film entertainment, the youth of the country gained his first idea of romance and adventure through the 'penny dreadful,' so called, today the pictures supply the need.

"If, however, as seems to be the case, their place has been usurped by the pictures, it behooves producers to aim for the best material obtainable for juvenile audiences. There is a tendency in American cities just now toward arranging children's matinees, and though it may prove a difficult matter to adjust the business that young people will be excluded from shows where pictures intended for adult spectators are given, it seems probable that, if the special performance for children are made attractive enough, the problem may solve itself with the aid of parents and exhibitors."

Just as the small candy store that serves the school trade grows rich on children's pennies, so may the wise exhibitor who takes the trouble to cater for his juvenile trade.

Hazel Dawn at Washington.

Hazel Dawn, musical comedy star and photographer who was first introduced to Washington in "The Pink Lady," and William Courtney, Jr., led the grand march of the ball given at the Convention Hall, Monday night of the past week, for the benefit of St. Ann's Infant Asylum. Miss Dawn and Mr. Courtney are with the Famous Players Company. They were sent to Washington to participate in the ball as representatives of that concern.

William F. Russell, whose company is the only one at the American studios making five-reel features, came to Los Angeles and remained four days in renewing the acquaintance of his many friends in this city. "The Guide," by Russell E. Smith, will be the next feature, and that after that will be one affording Mr. Russell a strong dual role, unique arrangements for the making of which are already under way.

OWES IT ALL TO THE STANDARD

Former Prize Winner Tells of Her Success, as a Result of Being a Winner in a Standard Contest.

Yesterday morning an employee of The Standard while waiting at one of the tellers' windows in a local bank noticed a man in front of him handing over a fifty-dollar bill and asking to have it changed. Having a slight acquaintance with him, The Standard man remarked that nothing like that—referring to the fifty-dollar bill—was ever seen around a newspaper office. The man with the fifty "spot" having finished his business drew the other aside and showed him a number of other bills totalling in all some-thing over three hundred dollars, and told him that it was the weekly pay-roll which he was just going to distribute among his men, and that he attributed the possession of this money, and a good deal more, to a newspaper and that newspaper The Standard. Questioned further regarding this remarkable statement he told the following story:

Two years ago he was following his trade, that of a carpenter, for which he was paid at the then prevailing rate of two and a half or three dollars a day; he lived in a rented house, and seemed unable to make any headway in the game of life. On day on picking up his morning paper he noticed that The Standard was starting a competition and, that in exchange for anyone's spare time they would give him the opportunity to earn considerable money. He read the conditions of the contest over two or three times and then began to see light. His spare time was not very much, for he worked from seven a.m. to five p.m., but he had a little and decided to sell it. During the period of the contest he devoted every effort and every spare minute towards winning the prize, with the result that at the end of the contest he won $350.00.

This was the first time he had ever been able to get ahead in the game. With this money he bought a house on the installment plan in one of St. John's thriving suburbs. That was two short years ago. Today he owns the house outright, has put many valuable improvements on it; owns at least two acres of land which he can sell at any time for sum-mer-house sites at any time what the land cost him; he owns an excellent modern hansom which provides him with a hobby and a good many extra dollars; and while two years ago he was working for other men two and a half dollars a day, he is now a successful contractor, employing a goodly number of men. There is nothing wonderful about this story. It is just a little tale of moderate success. The carpenter man told it in a quiet manner that makes one believe that he will keep on succeeding.

At the present time The Standard is offering thousands of dollars to those who will devote their spare time during the next few weeks as directed by us. It is offering college courses to the ambitious ones; free trips to Alaska; or the value of the trips in money amounting to nearly four hundred dollars each; extra cash prizes for work done during the period of the contest; and ten per cent. commission to all those members who do not secure one of the main prizes. To all those who have been looking for an opportunity, here it is plain as day. Any live and ambitious young men and women can during the next few weeks secure one of these prizes by entering our Travel Club. Those who are already in the race can do it much easier.

(The name of the gentleman referred to above can be secured on application to The Standard office.)
