GHASTLY RETREAT BY HUN ARMY

Grim sights this war has had for the men who passed up and down these trenches during the long and bitter nights of winter.

trenches during the long and bitter nights of winter.

It has been an enthralling thing to stand by the British guns in the last three or four months and wonder what was the meaning of all the continuous roar. There was no set battle in progress, and the gunners said it was merely the "daily hate" going on to keep Fritz unhappy. The hideous revelations of the German trenches, however, give the gruesome answer to what the guns were doing. In some places there were veritable mangled masses of what were once human beings. Neither by day nor by night had the Germans rest. Their trusted harbed wire, in which they always weep to make the standard of yards, and they dared not venture out to repair it.
