LOVE IS A DELUSION, SAYS LEARNED CHINAMAN

Distinguished Lecturer Compares Domestic Life of Orient With Conditions in the West

CALLS OUR METHODS CRUDE

Marvels That Practical Americans Are Guided Solely by the Heart in Choosing Wives

Taking "Domestic Life of the Orient as Compared with Domestic Life of the West," Ni Moon Chew, Chinese editor and lecturer, gave the Berkeley Hills Club, of Berkeley (Cal.), something to ponder over. He said in part:

"As we Chinese understand it, love is a hallucination, delusion, intoxication, mirage in the desert of passion, a perverted product of a deluded brain, a diseased, and most deadly contagious, and a demoralizing American. It is a symptom of a disordered brain, a nightmare is a symptom of a disordered stomach."

Yesterday the four-year-old son of Percy York, of Victoria Corner, fell on the ice and broke his arm. Mrs. Edgar Kilpatrick and Miss Fitzpatrick, of Portland, were visiting friends in the village yesterday.

Mrs. Phillips, wife of the Rev. C. T. Phillips, of Jacksonville, continues very ill. She has been confined to her bed for four or five weeks. Her daughter, Miss Kate, a graduate of the General Public School at St. John, is nursing her.

T. J. Hurley has announced his intention of remodeling the store now occupied by J. C. Everett, increasing the size of the building by one-half. He also intends to put up a larger building on the opposite side of the street. Mr. Everett intends removing his establishment to the west side of Main street.

Mr. Hazen (who was seated at the far end of the dining hall) said Mr. Belyea to speak louder. "If I don't make myself heard tonight," his honor continued amid a roar of laughter, "my friends will not know me."

"In this matrimonial affair, Americans go at it blindly, in all other things, even at the most inconsequential ones, you follow reason; but in the most important of all life's affairs, marriage, you follow the blind impulse of the reason defying emotion of passion."

"You throw deliberation, logical conclusion, reasoning, all the products of the matured brain to the winds, and, rushing along under the influence and stimulation of one of the by-products of passion, which for a better name you term love, you come to grief on the shoals of matrimony. To the Oriental mind such a course leads only to disaster."

"We admire the American people for their intellectual attainments, their material progress; yet we cannot but marvel at you, who see you seem to be, permitting yourselves to be led and guided by the mischievous, brainless kid you call Cupid in the most serious affairs of life. Now, since marriage is arranged in such a haphazard manner, you are not, you call it a lottery and so many draw blanks."

"In China marriage is regarded as the means, while in this country it is the end. It is the parties assume, in the first place, individual concerns, pleasure, convenience and happiness are merely incidentals and not the sum total of the purpose of marriage. It is merely performing the necessary function of life. Once assumed it is final, and there is no prospect of future generations."

preciation of the uniform courtesy extended to him.

J. D. Hazen proposed the toast of the Bench. He paid a tribute to the chief justice and to the popularity of his appointment. He referred in terms of praise to Sir John Allen and Ex-Chief Justice Tuck, his predecessors.

Mr. Justice Hanington was greeted with musical honors in rising to respond. He referred to his early acquaintance with the chief justice in his student days, the warm friendship which had always existed between them and expressed the pleasure he felt in the expressions of appreciation by other speakers.

Hon. A. S. White also spoke. In common with all those who had spoken, he said, he appreciated the high character of the bench. As the bar of today so would the bench be of tomorrow. It was needless to say he joined heartily in all the eulogistic things said of the chief justice.

WOULD IMPORT LESS AND MANUFACTURE MORE

so and the government was getting the advantage of it.

One thing that Canada wanted was the organization of a statistical branch to deal with amounts and currents of home trade. The United States had a most elaborate system of statistics. He hoped that some government would rise and get a hustle and organize an adequate and modern department. He had to write all over for information and was told there was no way of getting information. He got scraps but that was all.

"Import Less and Produce More"

"How then was Canada to stop drifting?" he asked. "We have to import less. We have to produce more and the articles we produce better our balances. If we instead of importing $100,000,000 we would produce $100,000,000 we would have a balance. Then we should have greater exports and more population. There should also be greater economy in expenditures. Mr. Foster should be a self-denying man. He never held any of the departments. And if he had done so the Lord knew that the most of those present were boys when he was admitted to the bar in 1853."

Mr. Foster next took up the Yukon railway deal, the Crow's Nest Pass, the management of the I. C. R., which the premier had said in 1904 was under a vicious system, but which was never corrected.

Are Your Children Nervous, Weak?

Nervousness, just like weakness is a family predisposition. Without tendencies to disease just as we inherit physical traits, we inherit nervous troubles among children. No duties, work at home, these all tend to make nervous troubles among children. Nervousness is a family predisposition. Without tendencies to disease just as we inherit physical traits, we inherit nervous troubles among children. No duties, work at home, these all tend to make nervous troubles among children.

It is nothing short of criminal to permit any member of your family to complain of nervousness. If you neglect the signs of nervousness in your child, you are neglecting the health of your child. THOSE ALBERT COUNTY RESOLUTIONS

To the Editor of the Telegraph: Sir—Today's Telegraph in referring to the meeting of the Liberal Conservative party held in Hillsboro last Monday says that at a later session the resolution, asking for the dismissal of all office holders under the provincial government, was modified materially. Such a statement cannot be borne out, for the resolution which appears today is the original resolution which favored the dismissal only of those who have acted in a partisan manner. There was no second session, as it was impossible to make any amendments at a later session; and further, the resolution which appeared in print today was the only one offered in connection with the dismissal of office holders.

Kindly give the above prominence in your valuable paper in order that Albert county may not be misled.

Yours truly, W. M. BURNS, Hillsboro, N. B., March 18, 1908.
