I heard a story about a chimney-sweep which I would not believe true if the person who told it had not stated that it was told ballowed to the memory of my mother .him by a person who had it from the lips of Macaulay the ex-sweep himself. I will relate it.

A little sweep who had somehow learned to love the Saviour, was trotting along a London sidewalk when a gentleman stopped him what surprised at the novelty of the request.

'You will find it in the fourteenth chapter of John, sixth verse: 'I am the way, the truth, and the life,' Christ said that, sir.'

The northead at the novelty of the request.

Advice. Never insult the humble, as they may some day become your superiors.'

the toy, and then asked:

hillings worth of tracts,' said the sweep.
With his pile of tracts on one arm and his oot-bag on the other, the little fellow left the shop. Once is the street he took a single tract, held it out, and said to the passer-by:

whose genius created a substitute for the passed away since we laid her beside my father in the old churchyard, yet still her voice whispers from the grave, and her eye watches over me as I visit spots long since

AN ALLEGORY.

A humming bird met a butterfly, and, being pleased with the beauty of its person, and the glory of its wings, made an offer of perpetual friendship. 'I cannot think of it,' was the by saying:

'Boy, I will give you a penny if you will tell me the way to St. James's Park.'

The sweep pointed out the route to the park, and a look with which gravity was blended with comicality said:

'If you will give me another penny I will tell you the way to heaven!

That I will,' replied the gentleman, some'That I will,' replied the gentleman, some-

The gentleman smiled, gave the boy eixpence, and walked on.

Sixpence ! a whole sixpence, and all his been said, is a bundle of habits; and sowe! How rich that poor sweep felt! After diving his fingers to the bottom of his pocket to make sure there was no hole in it, he carefully placed the precious sixpence in it, he carefully placed the carefully placed the precious sixpence in it, he carefully placed the precious discussion and temptaton, as teaching the more and temptaton, as teaching to six. As habits belonging to the body, osin. 'As habits belonging to the body,' osin. 'As habits belonging to the body,' osin. 'As habits belonging to the body,' osin. 'As habits belonging to the body.' osin. 'As habits belongi has been said, is a bundle of habits; and knot, and the whole unthreads. Wherever formed, habit acts involuntarily, and without The man of books looked with surpres on he toy, and then asked:

'Where did you get surpence to spend in sacts?'

'All didn't steal it, sir's said the boy, 'but I is done once and again, soon gives facility and proneases. The habit at first may seem to have no more strength than a spider's web, but once formed, it binds as with a chain of iron. The small events of life, taken singly, may seem exceedingly unimportant, like snow that falls eilently flake by flake; yet, accumulated, these snow-flakes form the avalanche. Self-respect, self-help, application, industry, integrity—all are of the nature of habits, not beliefs. Principles, in fact, are but the names which we assign to habits; for the principles are words, but the habits are the things themselves; benefactors or tyrants, according as they are good or evil. It thus happens that as we grow older a portion of our free activity and individuality becomes suspended in habit; our actions become of the nature of fate, and we are bound by the chains which we have woven around ourselves.—Samuel Smiles.
