MR. KING:

Sanderson called me yesterday afternoon to say that he was in error in saying that your statement regarding the Peacock speech in London had been killed in Toronto. He said that it had been killed here, and that he had confused it with another despatch which had been killed in Toronto.

Last night, about eleven o'clock, Carnegie, who is in charge of the Canadian Press office here, telephoned me, and said that the matter would be taken up with Mr. Livesay, who was coming to Ottawa last night. No doubt, as a result of this conference, the statement appears in the morning papers with an apology from the Canadian Press.
