in the Union, when the magnificent and stupendous scheme of tapping the enormous water power of Niagara by a tunnel, and bringing it to Buffalo, is accomplished—a scheme which the energy and enterprise of some of its most prominent men is actually pushing to completion. Factories will then spring up like magic, and thousands of wage-earners will be added to the respectable army of that class of citizens which the city now owns. Like all great commercial centres—the result of the application of brains and energy to natural advantages, its advancement in culture and education has kept pace with its material development, and Buffalo provides for its citizens unsurpassed facilities for general instruction, and in some specialties it takes the lead, and invites the whole continent to participation. Particularly is this the case with respect to a practical business training.

Among the notable institutions of Buffalo is the well-known Bryant & Stratton Business College, located in the new college building, 99 W. Genesee st., corner Niagara Square.

This college was established in 1854, and has a high reputation for giving a most thorough, practical and complete business education. Its patronage extends to every State and territory and all the Canadian provinces. Graduates of this time-honored institution are uniformly successful, and may be found occupying important positions throughout the country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. References and commendations are given of the high character of the school from all sections of the country.
