ONLOOKER'S COLUMN.

What he Sees to Admire or Criticise.

While the 12th of July and the political struggle now going on at Ottawa seem to absorb the greater part of public attention, it appears, Mr. Editor, rather out of place to turn the hands of time backwards a few days to consider our national holiday. From many parts of the country comes the same story—the decadence of Dominion Day, until now it has become nothing better than an occasion to be taken advantage of by the enterprising village to bring a crowd with a view to turning a "nimble sixpence." It is surely to be regretted that this is true but I think your readers, from what they know of the facts will agree that after all but little patriotism has entered into the affair for years past. The mean, mercenary spirit of the age has entered into even this and the day which commemorates, as we hope the brightest and noblest nation on the American continent cannot be honored for itself but must be made an accessory to the mighty dollar. The day should be honored and imperatively impressed on our young people as being the anniversary of an event of which they have many reasons to feel proud and one that should not be forgotten.

Mr. Mulock, the indefatigable member for North York, wants the Governor-General's expense bill reduced and moved a motion in the House of Commons to that effect. He did not succeed, however, but his vigorous comments will find an echo in the minds of most intelligent people. The entire business is an outrage pure and simple and those who vote to perpetuate such a waste of the public money as is represented by the salaries and expenses of the Governor-General and his Lieutenants is no friend of the people of Canada. Mr. Mulock, has Onlooker's gratitude in this matter I hope to see him keep hammering away until some change comes as it must before long.

Just now the Montreal press is engaged in discussing the necessity of a new flag for Canada with an heraldic device to represent the Dominion a trifle less complicated and less like a crazy quilt than what we at present possess. The move is a good one. Let us have something simple and then see that its use be made effective by having it displayed on all public schools during school hours and public buildings on special occasions. By this means our people, and especially the youngsters, will become acquainted with the fact that Canada has a flag and will learn to know what it is like.

Onlooker has never been an admirer of the bumptious member for North Victoria but Major Hughes' motion in the House of Commons in the matter of unsectarian State schools is one thing in which I heartily agree with him. His motion was of course defeated but it will come up again some time when it has acquired strength from the struggle with Manitoba, now just beginning, and will wax strong and bye-and-bye Ontario and Quebec will join with the other provinces down by the sea in wiping out the anomaly of a separate school for a special denomination and will declare for one broad, free, national system of education from the Atlantic to the Pacific, where the children of our country will be educated side by side and not be made to know each other through the medium of the school as antagonistic even in matters of religion.

Onlooker happened to be in Orillia on Friday and had an opportunity of listening to the various speeches on that occasion. With the exception of one by the Rev. Mt. Barker, of Orillia, they were all the usual stereotyped 12th of July utterances and apparently studiously calculated to avoid the disagreeable topic of the Manitoba School Question which showed how slightly the political affiliations of the leaders have been removed from the party they have followed so long. The Rev. Mr. Barker was not a politician, however, and dealt with the Roman Catholic question as it affects the Dominion of Canada in a masterly and scholarly manner and by the manifestations of displeasure displayed by the large audience when he proceeded to score the Government for its truckling to the hierarchy in the present trouble it was very evident that whatever view the leaders might hold in this connection among the rank and file the feeling of discontent was very general.

In this connection I was somewhat interested by the remarks of Mr. James Glendinning, ex-M.P.P. of North Ontario. This gentleman told the Orangemen of the great deeds of their forefathers and declared that if the occasion demanded it the Orangemen of to-day would boldly walk up to the cannon's mouth in defence of their religious liberties. Of course this was the veriest of humbug and intended only to fill in the usual 12th of July speech but what a possibility it presented to the thoughtful people of Canada and what horrors the bare suggestion brings before us. There are no more brutal wars recorded in history than those that have been prompted by so called religion and when we reflect that the coercion of the province of Manitoba by the Dominion Government at the dictation of the Roman Catholic church in Quebec is really now in progress we must ask ourselves how far we are just now from the cannon's mouth and how long it may be before these Orangemen may be called on to either take part with a rebellious province or violate their obligation by following the laws of the land.

DENTISTRY.

For many years nearly all dental work done in Beaverton has been done by outsiders, who come at certain fixed times and carry out of the place large sums which go to build up other towns. Now a graduate has come here to stay, and gives the following reasons why he should receive the patronage of the people:—

(1)—He can always be depended upon to be at hand in case of any immediate need of dental work, such as extracting an aching tooth or treating one which requires attention at a time when a visiting dentist would be absent: for instance, devitalization of the nerve and the after-treatment of the pulp chamber and root canal preparatory to filling. Cases of this kind have been atempted which for want of proper treatment at the right time, have only put patients against getting work of that kind done.

(2)—He has in his office everything necessary to do first-class work, and as he has had good college training and years of practical experience, he is prepared to give as good satisfaction as any other graduate in the province. He has the best Wilkinson dental chair, and the latest improved dental engine, also one of the very best local anaesthetics for extracting teeth with the least amount of pain possible (in most cases entirely painless) and a full stock of forceps and other instruments for the various operations of dental science. In this he has a great advantage over travelling dentists, who cannot, or at least do not bring so many things with them when they come. He has every facility for inserting gold fillings, also phosphate cement, gutta percha, silver amalgam and copper amalgam at very moderate rates. Teeth made white by removal of stains and scales of tartar with properly formed instruments and preparations which do not injure the gums.

(3)—As he is in the office every day, the coming of patients in crowds on certain fixed days is avoided, and there is, therefore, no danger of the work being done in a hurried manner and of operations being imperfectly performed. Visiting dentists are useful in small villages not large enough to support a resident dentist; but there comes a time in the history of a place when the former should give place to the latter. That time has now come in Beaverton.

(4)—All the money he earns is spent right here in the village, and not carried out of it as is the case with that earned by resident dentists.

(5)—He guarantees all work done to be satisfactory, and if not satisfactory he will promptly make it so or refund the money. Being constantly on hand, he will attend to any matter of this kind without any vexatious delay such as sometimes occurs when the work is done by outsiders who only come at certain times.

(6)—Patients will not have to wait weeks or months for their plates after getting impression taken, but can have them in two or three days. Beautiful sets of the very best teeth inserted at the lowest prices going and guaranteed to fit. Broken plates promptly and skillfully repaired and made as strong as new ones. Neither in Huntsville nor in Toronto, where he has practised, has any of his work, either operative or prosthetic, been complained of as unsatisfactory.

(7) People sometimes forget what day the visiting dentist comes on, and when he does come it happens to be on a day when it is not convenient for some patients to leave home or their work; but when there is a resident dentist people can suit their own convenience as to the time, and go any day they choose.

DR BOWERMAN and family have come to make the village of Beaverton their home, and the doctor trusts that the seven good reasons given above are sufficient to entitle him to at least a fair share of the practice heretofore given to outsiders. He is a graduate both of the dental college where he took the degree of L.D.S., and of the university of Toronto, where he passed with honors for D.D.S. He is therefore fully posted in all the latest and most approved methods of dental surgery and prosthetics. His office is now fitted up complete and he invites one and all to come and see it and inspect his various dental appliances. He makes no charge for examination of the mouth and giving best advice where needed, nor for writing prescriptions for dentifrices, mouth washes, etc., nor for removing stains or tartar unless found in large quantities. Office over D. N. Smith's store. Hours, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Wonder if there will be any excursion from this place on civic holiday. We would suggest something at home this year.

The council met on Monday night to consider the cases of a few delinquents as regards poll tax.

ORILLIA.

The event of the week was the mammoth celebration of the 12th of July in this town, altogether the largest gathering of Orangemen ever seen here. A very conspicuous feature of the event was the great improvement noticeable in the personnel of the lodges and the entire absence of that spirit of rivalry which formerly marked these assemblies. The Orange order is rapidly undergoing a change for the better. Altogether the procession in Orillia was a credit to the Society. The rain which fell in heavy showers while the procession was on the march somewhat marred the pleasure of the day as well as prevented the speakers from spreading themselves as freely as they otherwise might. Among the many lodges present Beaverton Lodge No. 129 took no second place. Headed by the town's fine silver band the members presented a very neat and imposing appearance.
