die, both above and below ground. The best implement for this purpose is the broad-toothed cultivator; the narrow-tooth is useless in this country. This implement should be run crosswise over the land, just deep enough to cut all the weeds, but no deeper. That the farmer may not forget this work, he should fix on a day in each week or fortnight and make a point of cultivating the weed that day. If the thistle once gets an opportunity to form leaves, it soon revives and spreads quickly. If our correspondent is prepared to summer-fallow according to the above directions, he may hope to greatly lessen and probably destroy the thistle in one summer, but it will require a great deal of work and the exercise of patience. Seeding to grass will not kill the thistles.

WASHY MARE

Have a mare that, if she gets too much straw or water, she will take sick, and get so loose in her bowels that she will take colic. She is heavy in foal. What should I give her?

J. M. Sask.

Ans.—Since the cause of the trouble is so well known, it is simply a matter of avoiding the cause. Some horses are predisposed to indigestion and colic, and no amount of drugging will insure them against it. Water often and before feeding, begin work gently until the blood warms up. Mix a little hay with the straw and feed no other grain than oats.

WHIPPOORWILL COW PEAS

Would you kindly give me some information in regard to the growing of whippoorwill cow peas in the country? They are quite extensively grown in Illinois, and considered one of the best of feeds for horses, cattle, and hogs. When threshed the hay is considered as good as timothy or clover, and the peas are readily sold for $1 to $1.25 per bushel, and they are mostly adapted to light or sandy loam. If there is any grown in Canada I would like to get some seed. What would be the duty on two or three bushels from the States?

L. D. Sask.

Ans.—The cow pea is a plant pre-eminently adapted to the South. It is to the South, what red clover is to the North, but being very sensitive to frost cannot be grown in high latitudes. We do not believe that any attempt has ever been made to grow it in Western Canada, certainly, no variety would produce seed in this climate. The experimentalist at the Ontario Agricultural College in his report, for 1907, states that the varieties of cow peas were grown at the experimental farm that year, and not one variety matured seed. It is only in exceptional years that seed matures in Ontario, the season of growth being too short to enable the crop to ripen seeds. If it will not mature in Ontario, except rarely, and on warm sandy soils, there is little likelihood of the crop being of much value here. In the United States, varieties for fodder are grown as far north as Wisconsin. We would not advise you to bother with it. You would stand better chances with clover.

MILLET AS A CROP

Would millet, grown for hay, as feed for milk cows, be as profitable as oats cut green? What would be the probable yield per acre of millet here in Saskatchewan, the land being a nice loam?

Sask. ENQUIRER.
 Ans.—Millet is not rich in protein, hence is not the most desirable roughage for milk cows. Fed, in any quantity, needs to be supplemented, either by strongly proteid grain foods or with alfalfa or clover. As between millet and green oats, we believe you would get best results from the oats. Oats would not yield so heavily to the acre as millet, but

A Nervous Wreck Now in Robust Health.

Mrs. M. E. Harron, of Newton, Ont., writes: "I must say our son would have been in a consumptive's grave long ago had it not been for PSYCHINE. He was taken down with La Grippe and a severe cold. His who'se system was weak, including his lungs, which were seriously affected, as is always the case after La Grippe."

"After taking several remedies and treatments we procured PSYCHINE, and tongue cannot tell the marvellous results brought about in two months. He gained over twenty pounds in weight, and strength and appetite returned."

Mr. Harron himself is most emphatic as to the beneficial result of using PSYCHINE. He declares, "To-day I am in splendid health and have never been sick a day since I took PSYCHINE."

PSYCHINE is the greatest tonic known to medical science. It builds up the system and tones up every organ of the body, enabling it to resist and throw off disease. Weak nerves cannot exist where PSYCHINE is used consistently. Send for a trial bottle and prove the truth of these statements.

PSYCHINE is sold by all druggists and dealers, 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle.
