How They Were Conducted In the Days of Henry VIII.

One of the events of the London seaon is to be a graphic representation of tilting as it was practiced in the times of Henry VIII. The viscount, appropriately enough, contributes to The Pall Mall Magazine a bright and informing afticle, full of rare facts and illustrations, which goes far to clear away a number of our misconceptions as to what the art of tilting and jousting used to be.

The expression "a tournament" has, the viscount says, much changed in its significance from the days when such exercises and displays of warlike action were common. Young men who aspired to shine in the use of arms seized the occasion of the proclamation of a tournament to display not only their proficiency, but also their magnificence and ability to spend large sums of money in support of it. The tournament was, so far as those taking part in it were concerned, only for the rich, or at least for the proteges of the great.

Unfortunately for the interests of truth, the tournament has been selzed on by the romancers and other artists and so disguised with fiction and fancy that the real thing is hardly to be recognized in such works as "Ivanhoe to content of the content o of prohibitions by those kings of these projected tournaments. The reason for these prohibitions is pretty clear. The assemblage of large bodies of people, some of them at least skilled in the profession of arms, could hardly be regarded with satisfaction by the authorities when the position of the crown was not as assured as it now is. And again, the call on the nobles and leaders of men for service in foreign wars would not allow of the expenditure of so much energy and money on what were displays of comparative personal power. Certainly during the great war with France we do find magnificent tournaments taking place, as at St. In-glevert, near Calais, where for the purpose safe-conducts were given to knights and others attending. Froissart has given us description of this meet-ing, and the splendidly illuminated manuscripts of his works (executed, of

These, with three or more rich suits of clothes for the different exercises of the tournament, and the necessary varieties of armor for horse and foot combats, and banners and standards, not to mention his weapons, were a handsome allow-ance for one who was not a rich noble but a simple "ecuyer tranchant" to the king. Nature, But Health as Well.

For people who are run-down and nervous, who suffer from indigestion or dyspepsia, headache, blliousness, or torpid liver, coated tongue with bitter taste in the morning and poor appetite, it becomes necessary to turn to some tonic or strengthener which will asist Nature and help them to get on their feet and put the body into its proper condition. It is becoming more and more apparent that Nature's most valuable health-giving agents are to be found in forest plants and roots.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. R. V. Pierce, now consulting physician to the Invalids Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., discovered that by scientifically extracting and combining certain medicinal principles from native roots, taken from a merican forests he could pro-

N. Y., discovered that by scientifically extracting and combining certain medicinal principles from native roots, taken from our American forests, he could produce a medicine which was marvelously efficient in curing cases of blood disorder and liver and stomach trouble as well as many other chronic, or lingering allments. This concentrated extract of Nature's vitality he named "Golden Medical Discovery." It purifies the blood by putting the stomach and liver into healthy condition, thereby helping the digestion and assimilation of food which feeds the blood. Thereby it cures weak stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, or billiousness, and kindred derangements.

If you-have coated tongue, with bitter or bad taste in the morning, frequent headaches, feel weak, easily tired, stitches or pain in side, back gives out easily and aches, belching of gas, constipation, or irregular bowels, feel flashes of heat alternating with chilly sensations or kindred symptoms, they point to derangement of your stomach, liver and kidneys, which the "Golden Medical Discovery" will correct more speedily and permanently than any othar known agent. Contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed in plain English on wrapper.

Does Your FOOD Digest Well?

When the food is imperfectly digested the full benefit is not derived from it by the body and the purpose of eating is defeated; no matter how good the food or how carefully ada pted to the wants of the body it may be. Thus the dyspeptic often becomes thin, weak and debilitated, energy is lacking, brightness, snap and vim are lost, and in their place come dullness, lost appetite, depression and langour. It takes no great knowledge to know when one has indigestion, some of the following symptoms generally exist, viz.: constipation, sour stomach, variable appetite, headache, heartburn, gas in the stomach, etc.

The great point is to cure it, to get back bounding health and vigor.

Lord Strathcona Gives Caps to Guests

There are still one or two houses England where quaint ceremonies of older days are strictly maintained, Lowther Castle, Penrith, is an instance in point. One picturesque incident always

At the service which is held every morning in the private chapel no woman is allowed to be present with head uncovered. Should a visitor, unaware of the rule of the house, appear bareheaded, she is requested to don the regulation cap. There is the less excuse for the omission, as a white cap of the required description is always placed on the dressing table of each lady guest before her arrival.

There are still heads of old and wealthy Scottish families who would not on any account allow a billiard ta-ble to be placed in their houses. Among these may be mentioned Lord Mansfield. Though a good sportsman and devoted to country pursuits, especially curling, he will not have a billiard room fitted up in his magnificent old manslon, Scone Palace, Perthshire.

A curlous custom in connection with the birth of an heir to the earldom of Carnaryon is still observed at Highelere Castle. The tradition of the family re-quires that on such an occasion 500 gal-lons of ale must be brewed, to be kept in Fourteen Years Fos Robbery.

It is said that during the great bat-

The duke took the dog home, and his duchess, the famous Sarah Churchill, cared for it famous Sarah Churchill, cared for it until its death. This dog, the story goes, was the progenitor of the well-known Blenheim spaniels. Ever since that time it has been the custom in the Churchill family for each duke to present a Blenheim spaniel to his bride when she enters Blenheim Palace for
