The Sailor Boy's Last Song.

O Nova Scotia, country dear, Far from thy breast I die to-night ; But dying sing of the ; O, hear My song float o'er the cceán bright,-My long-loved Nova Scotia.

Smiling I see through death's thick haze The vales which I shall tread no more; Thy graceful hills upon me gaze Tear-dinmed as when I left that shore,— My home, my Nova Scotia.

Of all fair lands thou art most fair; The beauty-seeking King of Day, Finding none with thee to compare, Annually crowns thee Queen of May,-My happy Nova Scotia.

He decks thee in a gorgeous dress, Bresprent with flowers of perfume sweet On thy brows kisses doth he press And pours his glory at thy feet, -Sweet-smiling Nova Scotia.

O beautious Queen, thy white-winge fiet, Bespeaks thy purity full well, And the blue waves that kiss thy feet Thy constancy forever tell,— Pure, constant Nova Scotia,

Then canst thy children ne'er forget; E'en now could I with tottering feet Be borne to thee, each rivulet Would hasten forth thy child to greet,-My far off Nova Scotia.

Could I but rest my fevered head Upon thy lap, where once I played,-Where oft I watched the evening red Glow like my life, and like it fade, Beautiful Nova Scotia.

How vain the wi-h ! An iron hand Crushes the life from out my heart ; But cords that bind me to thy strand Death has no power to break apart,-My love, my Nova Scotia.

But when I burst the prison-clay, Ere heavenward I wing fny flight, I'll linger near thee many a day; And gaze on thee through stars of night,-My dearest N yea Sectia.

O Nova Scotia, of all lands Thee have I ever held most dear; Dying, I reach to thee my hands And for thy sake breather my last prayer-"God bless my Nova Scotia."

ally supposed to be past, the case of John Marshall, of 25 Little William exclosion of fire crackers which he car street, is about as nearly miraculous as anything that can be imagined. For three years and a half Mr Marshall has been a victim of a disease known as locomotor ataxy, a spinal affection which deprived him of all feeling from his wait downwards, and left him a helpless cripple, given up by his physicians a incurable. To day he is restored to health, and apart from the weakne natural to a man who has wresteled a long with a terrible discase, he may be said to be as well as ever. The story of his wonderful recovery has been heard with amazement by his many friends, for Mr Marshall is well known in Hamilton of the case and hunted up Mr Marshall to get his story, which he was not un." the "hand of a divine Nantucket." willing to tell, in the hope that his ex-perience might be of benefit to other-who are affected similarly.

"I was taken ill in August, 1887," said Mr Marshall, "and for three years Lord's sheep, but he can't hurt them and a half I was scarcely able to leave my room. My illness, I believe, was the
