The Morning Post remarks:—"Signs are not wanting that an effort will be made by the more active members of the Opposition to convert public opinion to the desirability of withdrawing, or at least suspending, our mission system in Afghanistan. It is hardly probable the Government will give heed to such a proposal. Our policy is surely based on better foundations than will permit it to be disturbed by a small military revolt. On the contrary, the émeute in Cabul and the increasing activity of Russia should encourage the Government to adopt remedies in Afghanistan which shall safely and fully secure the whole design of the Gundamuk arrangement. Yakoeb Khan has been the first person to benefit by the Anglo-Afghan Treaty. The British alliance not only freed him from the intrigue of Persian, perhaps of Russo-Persian, origin, which threatened to end in Eyoub becoming a rival to the throne, but it is now restoring to him the rule of his capital. He should be the last person to object to any measures which may be proposed by the Indian Government, even if they go beyond the Gundamuk Treaty, provided they are not objected to by the Afghan people. We have already suggested the occupation of Cabul by a British brigade, and the constitution of Candahar into a British fortress. of Candahar into a British fortress. It is suggested by some people, partly as a punitive measure, and partly for strategic reasons, that the centre of Government should be removed from Cabul to Candahar. Considering how much the good conduct of the Candaharees deserves our consideration, and the apparent unpopularity of Yakoob Khaais Afghanistan, such a course should not be adopted without great hesitation. A step of that character would seem to indicate the intention of withdrawing from Cabul absolutely—a very unwise proposal, we should think, considering the commercial importance of that city and its relations to the Bamian Pass. We can hardly suppose that a suggestion of this kind will meet with the approval of the Indian Government. The policy of the Ministry will rather be to strengthen our hold upon the three chief strengthen our hold upon the three chief places east of the Helmund, namely, Can-dahar, Cabul and Jellalabad, either under the treaty or by special arrangement with the Ameer. Nor must we overlook the necessity of advancing even to Herat should any Russo-Persian combination definitely point to the severance of that city from the Afghan rule. She was helping her son to remove a rail fence which was in danger of catching fire from a bush fire, when the son noticed a burning pine tree about to fall. > Monday evening, says the Guelph Herold, a train of immigrants left Toronto for the west. A number of persons got aboard the train and claimed to be runners for Guelph hotels—the Royal, Wellington, City, Queen's, etc. They represented that the train was to remain at Guelph over night, and sold tickets at 50 cents each, good for bed and breakfast. A large number of tickets were sold, and the scoundrels made quite a haul. A number of the deluded passengers got off here, and missed luded passengers got off here, and missed the train, and found they had been swindled. This is a new enterprise, but a repetition of it will likely be prevented by train officials.

THE ANTI-RENT BOOM.

Mr. Parnell's anti-rent agitation, says the London Telegraph, is having a curious effect on the Iriah clergy. The more they know about it, the less they like it, and for an excellent reason. They see clearly that, in spite of Mr. Shaw's soothing speeches, there is no keeping the movement from developing into an ugly raid on every species of property—into a wild fight between the well-fed and the hungry. We all know which side in such a struggle the priesthood, who never starve in Ireland, are bound to take, and much has been expected from their influence on the masses. Yet, from certain doings in the West, it is to be feared that the priests have not the same power over their flocks when these have dangled betore their eyes as the reward of their support of the movement what virtually amounts to a seizure of their landlord's land. One priest has been obliged to express disapproval of the anti-rent meetings, and the result has been that, so far from gaining the support of his people, he has roused their animosity. They take such a close interest in his doings and movements since he has dared to differ from them that, whenever he goes abroad, he has to be armed to the teeth, and whenever he lies down to rest at night an escort of constabulary have to mount guard over him. Hitherto, under the mask of Nationalism, the priesthood have been able to serve the Government as a sort of Prestorian Guard of order whenever the party of action became dangerous. But signs are not wanting that we may net be able to count upen much help from their alliance in future.

THE ALCOHOL QUESTION.

The Daily Telegraph observes:—"No social Science Congress would be complete without a discussion on alcohol and alcoholism; and it is satisfactory to find that the vexed question has been once more vigorously grappled with in a paper prepared by Mr. James Whyte, of Manchester, but read by Dr. Hardwicke, the Middlesex Coroner. Our old familiar friend, the ounce of alcohol per diem, again made it is appearance. Mr. White held that an ounce and a half of spirit was the outside quantity which could be taken in the course of twenty-four hours by a healthy man without producing poisonous effects; while the maximum which a woman could imbibe with safety was three-quarters of right when he prophesied that if a fatality such as has now happened befell him it would strengthen and consolidate the policy with which he was identified."

DOUBLE MURDEE IN PARIS.

Paris has been startled again by the perpetration of another fearful orime, this time in the aristocratic Faubourg Saint Honoré, and not far from the English Embassy. Most visitors to Paris know the Place Beauvan, where the Minister of the Interior resides. By the side of the entrance to the Ministry is a chemist's shep, kept by a mas servant opened the shop as usual, but was astonished not to see his master, who invariably rose early. He mentioned the fact to the neighbours, who said it was very likely M. Lagrange had gone to see his master, who is it is gratifying to learn that, out of the fact to the neighbours, who said it was very likely M. Lagrange had gone to see his master, who invariably rose early. But suddenly the man servant remarked the absence of the fact to the neighbours, who said it was very likely M. Lagrange had gone to see his master, who had seen that the neighbours, who said it was very likely M. Lagrange had gone to see his master, who had the fact to the neighbours, who said it was very likely M. A daring outrage has been committed by a band of Morocco, his Majesty has promised the missing parties being found in the rooms, the main and t constituting that met the eye was the iron chest of Lagrange, which lay on the floor, rent open and emptied. No trace of the missing parties being found in the rooms, the man servant, accompanied by the Commissary of Police, descended into the cellar, where an awful sight awaited them. Two bodies lay on the ground with their akuils smashed in; they were those of M. Legrange and his female domestic. The police at once proceeded to make an inquiry. As far as can be judged at present the crime must have been committed about eleven of clock, just after the closing of the shop. The weapon with which the deadly work was accomplished was an iron pestle used by the chemist. The crime was apparently perpetrated by somebody familiar with the premises, and suspicion points to an assistant, a young man of twenty-six years, who has disappeared. The murderer had washed the floor in several places. Traces of blood, however, were found everywhere. The two victima appear to have been assassinated, one in the shop and the other in the back room, and their bodies then dragged down into the cellar, M. Lagrange was thirty years of age, and the servant nineteen. The audacity of this double gurder almost surpasses belief. Not only is the shop just opposite the guard-house of the Elysée, where there is a sentry st all hours, but it also touches, so to speak, the sentry-box of the Ministry of the Interior, where there is likewise a soldier on duty night and day, Immense crowds gathered round the spot all day, and the panic the crime has caused among the rich inhabitants of the Faubourg St. Honoré in particular and the Parisians in general is immense.

ATROCITIES IN PRISON.

Horrible Treatment of Convicts at Mil-MILWAUKEE, Oct. 22.—The newspapers publish an account of horrible atrocities in Milwaukee House of Correction, which is used at the discretion of the Court as State prison. An intelligent convict, just released, whose veracity is vouched for by prominent persons, states that he has been an inmate for two years. All that time he was not allowed to write to his friends or counsel. They supposed him dead. He says the breadstuff furnished the convicts, for which the county pays $6 a barrel, is damaged cow feed, and cannot be baked. The meat is putrid. Of the brutalities of the keepers he says men were beaten and put in a black hole, which is a filthy dog kennel five feet four inches by five feet. A man cannot lie at length in it, and there is no ventilation. The floor is covered with ordure and urine. Men are placed there for twenty days, and two men died. There is a chair factory connected with the institution, and it is charged the police are in collusion with the superintendent to kidnap men to work at the chairs. The whole story is the most startling and revolting. It is claimed the charges can all be verified.
