Once a Year.—Spring cleaning has commenced, painters and carpenters are beginning to get busy, and the long suffering board is having a dreadful time of it. White wash, paint and varnish are the banes of his existence. But it only comes once a year.

Fresh Buns.—The attention of the reader is directed to the advertisement of G. B. Perkins in this issue. His collection of green head lime are unique in quality, fresh burned and said to be the best in the market. He has been appointed sole agent for the sale of this article here.

Masonic Meeting.—At a meeting of the Masonic brethren held in their hall on Monday evening, grand master Walker of St. John presided and received a right royal welcome. Fraternal greetings were exchanged and the lodge members spent a very pleasant evening together.

A Social Event.—On Tuesday evening the attorney general and Mrs. Blair entertained a large number of guests at their residence on George street. An excellent program of music was furnished by the members of the F. O. M. W. orchestra, and everybody enjoyed the evening.

At Temperance Hall.—Messrs Porter and Smith, M. P. P.'s have kindly consented to address the meeting on Sunday evening. The audience hope to hear something new and fresh, as the old topics are somewhat exhausted. We hope these gentlemen will kindly accept the hint given.

Marysville Orangemen.—A public meeting of the local orangemen took place on Thursday evening at Marysville, when addresses were delivered by Messrs. Rossborough, Colter and McKown. The latter delivered the speech of the evening which was listened to with great attention.

Disturbance on King Street.—A young man named Jeffrey Mount of this city created quite a disturbance in front of the Salvation army barracks a few days ago, by endeavoring to force an entrance into the hall. He was intoxicated, and was promptly led away by some of his companions.

The Salvation Army.—Large crowds have been present at the special meetings held in the King street barracks this week. Lieut. Edgewood, a boy preacher of singular earnestness and power, has been the principal attraction, together with Ensign Fisher, Capt. McDonald and cadet Smith.

A Bad Accident.—Robert Baxter of this city whilst working at carpentry on York street Monday, slipped from the bench on which he was standing, and in falling drove a nail through the wire of the left hand. The wound bled profusely, and became so painful the sufferer was obliged to suspend work. It was a nasty accident.

Visiting Clergyman.—The Rev. William Downey is holding a series of revival services at Rosiergarnish. The Rev. Mr. Payne officiated at Marysville on Sunday last. In the absence of the Rev. F. C. Hartley, Mr. Long of St. Martin's, occupied the pulpit at the F. C. B. church. The Rev. Mr. Foster is conducting a series of services at Tracy station.

The N. B. Medical Association.—A meeting of the New Brunswick medical association took place on Wednesday evening at the Queen hotel, when were present Dr. Walker, Christie, Daniel, Bruce, Brown and Currie. The business discussed was the preliminary and final reports of registration matters, and the proposed legislation in reference to the medical act.

From the Queen's Woods.—John Kilburn returned home on Wednesday afternoon, and the appearance of a large crew of lumbermen at Gibson with seventeen horses, rather astonished the natives, who turned out to witness the unusual sight. Men and horses appeared to be in excellent condition notwithstanding the severe hardships undergone during the winter.

By Documentary Evidence.—There is a young painter named Hewson in this city who was once engaged in the lion taming business, and can produce documentary evidence to support his statement. Some of his companions at Edgewood's factory think he might be of use in the house of assembly, especially when the opposition are inclined to rage, tear, and fume.

A Sure Thing.—One of the employees at the gas works who was sick for a few days, was notified by his medical attendant that he had all the symptoms of blood poisoning. It is not generally known in this city that by drinking a glass of milk before and after work is an excellent remedy for all eruptions in such business. It is a sure thing and is largely practiced in the old country, as an antidote against poisonous inhalations.

Temperance Address.—Mr. Hetherington M. P. P. was the first speaker at the general temperance meeting on Sunday last and gave an interesting address on the work in Queen's county. Mr. McKown, M. P. P. spoke of the progress in temperance work, and Mr. Maxwell of St. John spoke of the old associations in Fredericton when he lived in the city as a boy. Dr. McLeod was the last speaker. There was a good attendance.

Taking the Census.—The work of the enumerators began in earnest on Monday, when eight schedules, comprising sixty-four blanks, containing two hundred questions, were laid before each family. All sorts of statistics are required, from the simple citation of a name down to the thousands of staves and shingles made in an industrial establishment. A penalty not exceeding $20 and not less than $5 is incurred by giving false returns.

Characteristic.—Spring mist surely blew with us at least as the appearance of a honorable member of the house suggests. His covering consisted of a miniature felt hat, a little bigger than a wooden butter receptacle. It was a comical adjustment, but then all the airy adornments of the member in question are comical. Some of his conferees asked on Thursday "Where did you get that hat?" and the reply was "It is a present from the house at Washington."

What a Traveller Thinks.—A dry goods drummer who arrived in town Monday, said that although he was confronted by a motley crowd of hankers crying out the names of the principal hotels, nobly attempted to do him any personal violence. His luggage was not seized, nor was he hustled at once into a coach. Asked for an explanation of his remarks he said he had just come on from Montreal where his experience had been different. He thinks the celestial hanker is a gem, and just the opposite to his Montreal brethren.

Civil Matters.
The usual monthly meeting of the city council on Tuesday last was attended by a full board with Mayor Allen in the chair. The auditor's report was received and adopted as follows:
Roads and streets, $48.00
Public works, $22.00
City hall, 8.55
Sewerage and water, 159.96

Cheques were ordered to be drawn on the bank of Montreal for $204.45 to reimburse the city hall, and to the same bank commissioner for $500; also in favor of Aaron Smith for $38 for snow ploughing. A special committee consisting of mayor Allen, alder Gilman, Farrell and Moore were appointed to confer with the government regarding the Cameron street extension. The administration of justice committee reported that they had adjusted the annual accounts with the county council. The total expenditure is $2,820.21, one third of which is payable by the city. A cheque for $942.07 was ordered accordingly in favor of J. Black.

A communication from W. E. Currie was read asking for a remuneration of $12 for collecting work done in aid of the Spring Hill sufferers, and a cheque for $8 was allowed.

The city clerk reported respecting the lease from Mr. Howie to the city upon which No. 5 levee station is situated, and which expires on May 1st, and which Mr. Howie is unwilling to renew; upon the present terms. A committee with power to act was appointed to wait upon him.

Ald. Gilman submitted the following: Resolved, That a special committee of three be appointed to enquire into the cost of procuring and training a stone crusher and roller for street purposes. Ald. Gilman's motion was carried, and a committee appointed and will report at the next meeting at the May meeting. Adjournment.

Police Penalties.
On Thursday morning John McInevy, John Murray, Mark Sullivan, Robert Forbes and Miles Coghlan, all of Stanley, were charged before police magistrate Marsh with creating a disturbance in the temperance hall at Spring street, at a social held under the auspices of the Methodist church. Alexander Turnbull proved the personal serving of the summonses. Rev. Leonard J. Watson, Methodist minister at Stanley deposed that he was present during the evening of the social, that he had remonstrated with them and forbidden the holding of a dance in the hall, which was the object of the defendants. Robert Sanson deposed with Miles Coghlan over the matter, and witness had to interfere. Coghlan hit his (witness's) finger, Murray was very abusive and violent, and witness had to deal with the defendants. Henry Knudt and Robert Sanson corroborated the evidence of the complainant. The assault case was then taken up. Robert Sanson deposed that he was present during the evening of the social. Before the meeting terminated a number of men, prominent among whom were Mr. Watson, Mr. Coghlan, Mr. Murray, Coghlan and Sanson had an altercation. They intended to hold a dance, and Mr. Watson remonstrated with them. Murray, Coghlan and Sanson had an altercation, and Coghlan, when parted from Sanson by the minister, hit the latter's hand. Indecent and unbecoming language was used and a general disturbance followed. His honor in giving judgment dismissed the assault case for want of sufficient evidence. With regard to the disturbance during the social his honor held that the complainant had been fully proven, and he would therefore impose a fine of $20 with $20 costs in each case, or in default thereof, one month's jail. The defendants, who did not appear, and were represented by counsel, will be communicated with at once.

A Valuable Relic.
H. L. Day, son of Dr. Day of Sanbury was in the city on Wednesday and showed a remarkable relic of Peruvian antiquity in a reporter of this paper. It was nothing more nor less than a veritable female skull of an Inca or Peruvian, which was presented to Mr. Day by Dr. Dudley of New Hampshire. The latter has two specimens of skulls, which exhibit very low types of humanity. The specimen in the possession of Mr. Day has been examined by the New York historical society, and recently formed the subject of an article in the Century magazine. In shape the skull shows the elongated formation of the negro, with some characteristics of the orangutan, and as an object of scientific discussion the skull is unique. It contains three teeth, which are very rare, are almost extinct, and very valuable. They seem to be physiologically and anatomically demonstrate the existence at a distant period of a veritable missing link.

A Big Blaze.
On Thursday evening the residence belonging to Miss Rebecca Russell at Bear-hill was destroyed by fire. The blaze originated from a defective due in the oil and commenced about 6.30 o'clock. There were only two inmates present at the time, Mrs. Russell, her son and her son-in-law. The alarm was promptly given but owing to the difficulty experienced by the firemen in obtaining water the brigade were unable to render any assistance. A crew of willing volunteers assisted to remove the furniture from the lower story of the house, but many valuable articles were destroyed including a valuable piano. Gill Russell was severely burnt about the face and hands, and Mrs. Russell, who was sick at the time, was with difficulty removed. The house was a fine detached one, and the insurance of $10,000 in the Quebec company will only cover a half of the losses sustained.

A Send Off.
The members of the A. O. U. club of this city on Wednesday presented a surprise to one of their number, Peter Owens, on Monday evening at Watson's restaurant. Speciees were made by A. G. Haslin, W. Broderick, H. C. Mackey, and J. H. Barry, who in a brief address presented the guest of the evening with a twenty dollar gold piece. The happy recipient made a suitable reply and with a rattling chorus of "Me's a jolly good fellow" the meeting separated. Peter Owens took the train for Misoulla on Tuesday last, and he took the best wishes of all with him. He was deservedly popular and will be much missed in the circles in which he moved.

The Fredericton Market.
The supply this week has been fully up to the demand. There has been a large quantity of butter and eggs brought in from the country, but prices continue firm. We quote: Beef, 5 to 6 cts; pork, 6 to 6 1/2 cts; mutton, 6 to 7; lamb, 6 to 7; ham, 10 cts; veal, 6 to 6 1/2; poultry, none; lard, 13 to 14 cts; butter, 15 to 17; eggs, 16 to 18 cts; sausages, 12 cts; oats, 50 to 60 cts; straw, 45 to 50; hay, $10 to $13; potatoes, $1.75 to $1.80; turnips, 60 cts; carrots, 80 cts to $1; blackhead, $1.75 to $2; hardwood, dry, $2.50; green, $2 to $2.50.

A Question of Labels.—On the committee of the bill relating to drugs and poisons sent to the honorable members' present on Tuesday indulged in the hilarious. It was thought that as the poisons required labelling some confusion might arise over the right interpretation of the enactment. "When placed on potatoes," said an honorable member "Paris green might kill the bugs, and some neighbors' ducks coming along might get killed by eating the potatoes, therefore it would be an imperative necessity to label the bugs."

Rebuke to Horses.—At St. Mary's the farmers of the district are noted for some very neat turns-out on the road. Isaac Peavy has two handsome colts from a Morris mare, and his two year old by Kieroupa, dark a Blackmont has been much admired. He intends devoting his attention to the subject of horses, and has some well bred mares in foal by a Wilkes.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

A Strange Case of Tragic Disposition by the Evidence. The Dark Side of the Street.

On Monday morning a sad event occurred in the upper story of a house in Regent street, occupied by Patrick Murphy, his wife, and mother. The former, who is a laborer in this city had a short dispute with his wife Mary Murphy about the rent of the house for a short time to attend to his business. On returning about 7.30 he enquired if Mary were in the house, and was informed she had gone out. He sat down for a while then proceeded to the back room to change his boots. On entering the room he was horrified with the terrible discovery that burst upon him. His unfortunate wife had hanged herself. She had suspended a pink apron from a spike in the wall, tied it with a square knot about her neck, and twisting it tight had dropped upon her knees and so strangled herself. When found by her husband deceased was hanging limp from the wall, her face was livid, her hands hung lifeless by her side, and her knees were some three inches from the ground. Her husband immediately cut her down with a jack knife but life had departed. He endeavored to restore animation but failed. Leaving the body of his wife in charge of his mother, the unfortunate man hastened to summon the doctor, and after waiting for some time he saw Drs. F. Brown, and Crockett, he found them away and finally called on Dr. Coulthard. He must have lost some time over the operation for although he gives the time of the discovery as five minutes to eight, he did not reach the doctor's house until ten minutes to nine.

The Coulthard coroner was quickly on the scene and pronounced the deceased to be dead. A jury was impaneled consisting of Messrs. Moore, J. J. McManus, J. Phillips, Charles Hemming, Daniel Meahan, John Wason and Robert Forbes, and they met at once proceeded with the jury to inspect the body. This was exactly at ten o'clock. The unfortunate suicide lay in a huddled-up state on the floor. Her head had fallen backwards, and eyes were staring dark line around her neck, where the cord had been twisted. This mark extended around the back of the neck. There was a slight abrasion of the skin on the neck, the blood was dropping, but no marks about the body indicated violence or a struggle. At her head was a cup of water. It was clear from the evidence that she had hanged herself.

Nothing by a spike to the wall was the twisted apron, and the situation of the knot showed that the deadly cord had come under the left ear. The spike had bent with the weight of the deceased but had not started, although the plaster was loose around it. The position of the string, the twisted line around the neck, and the absence of marks of violence, all pointed to a suicide. The poor woman lay in a huddled-up state, surrounded with wretchedness, squalor, and poverty. There was no fuel or food in the place, the room was desolate, and save for the semblance of a bedstead, a table, and a few empty barrels, all was comfortless and barren. In the outer room was the half-dressed mother-in-law. The child of the poor mother was lying on a mat on the floor, and the surroundings indicated destitution, poverty, and woe.

The jury having viewed the body were then summoned to appear at the coroner's office on Carleton street at 11 o'clock to hear evidence and to render a verdict. There was quite a crowd of sympathetic and interested neighbors collected outside and some very unpleasant facts regarding the deceased affair were elicited from the intimate acquaintances of the deceased. It is said that Mary Murphy was too proud to accept charity, and that she had refused to accept her mother-in-law's assistance. The presence of her mother-in-law irritated her to such a degree that she acted as times as if deranged. Twice before had she attempted suicide. Surrounded by poverty, irritated by the inebriety of her husband, and galled by the measure by the conduct of a half-witted woman, these are the principal causes—the neighbors say—which contributed to the awful death of Monday morning.

On Monday evening the jury met at the residence of another Coulthard and proceeded to hold an investigation. The first witness examined was Ann Murphy mother to the husband of the deceased. She said: "I live on Regent street in the upper flat of a house belonging to G. F. Gregory. We rented two rooms. Patrick and his wife occupied one bedroom and the other was always slept in the same room." On Monday morning my son got up at six o'clock and went to his work. Did not hear the deceased until Monday morning at eight o'clock. The back room in which the deed occurred was not occupied at all. My son came to me about 8 o'clock and enquired for his wife. I told him I did not know where she was. He then went to the back room and found her hanging and I cut her down. This happened at the Scotch barracks. She also attempted suicide by eating 'bluain'. I did not hear any noise in the back room during the time I was doing. Was positive that deceased bore me no ill will, and that when I returned from the Alms house on Wednesday last she was glad to see me.

(Mrs. Cornelia Cummings said: I was acquainted with deceased, and occupied the lower part of the house, and had my bedroom upstairs opposite the two rooms occupied by the Murphys. My husband died since last October. Ann Murphy her mother-in-law lived in the same rooms with deceased and her husband. They had frequent quarrels, but deceased seemed to be the most violent talker. I recollect one evening that they appeared to me to be fighting from the noise I heard. On Monday morning I heard Patrick Murphy in putting with his wife. I knew him by his name. I went down to my kitchen, and heard him depart to his work by the front door. This was at 11 minutes to eight. Little time afterwards my little girl informed me Mrs. Murphy was dying, and I was too prostrated to proceed upstairs. I never thought the deceased to be deranged or deranged at all. She was a very sensible woman, and I never thought her conduct strange, although at times she would get excited.

Patrick Murphy said: I am the legal husband of the deceased. We have been married nearly three years. We lived on Regent street in the upper part of a house rented to us by George F. Gregory, we occupied two rooms, and my mother lived with us. We all slept in the front room, I rose this morning at a quarter to six, and left my wife in bed. I went to the post office to register a letter but was too early, as I was returning home I saw my wife standing near Neville's shop. As soon as she observed me she hurried home and I ran after her. The reason I ran was because I feared she might be wandering in her mind. She had got upstairs when I arrived home. I asked her where she had been, and where she was going and she refused to answer. I told her to go to bed and I would make a fire. Deceased wanted the stove removed and I refused to move it from its present position. A quarrel then arose. The fire happened at seven o'clock. I went out but before leaving deceased told me I would be sorry for not removing the stove. I returned after watering the priest's horses, and not seeing Mary in the front room enquired of my mother where she was. She told me she had gone out, and that I had better apply for my (wife's) admission to the asylum. I replied that Mary would be right soon. This conversation took place between 7.30 and 7.45. Did not hear any noise in the back room. I smoked for a while then I proceeded to the back room to find my boots. I found the door fastened. I burst the door open and saw my wife suspended from the wall by a twisted apron which was about her neck. Her hands hung down; her feet were near, her face was turned to the wall, and her knees were three inches from the floor. I ran to my mother, informed her of the occurrence, procured a jack knife, and cut the deceased down. I then tried to restore her by sprinkling water over her face but she was apparently dead. I then ran to Dr. Brown's, then to Dr. Crockett's and lastly to Dr. Dr. Coulthard's who came at once with me.

Would swear positively that deceased and I had no words that morning. It was a trivial quarrel respecting the stove. The plan of her conduct when you ran after her at half past six o'clock, you stated you thought she was wandering in her mind. "I did not feel alarmed as I knew it was Mary's custom to quiet down after a 'spal.' This closed the evidence. The jury deliberated for some time and then returned the following verdict: The Jurors having heard the evidence as to the cause of the death of Mary Murphy say that they believe the said Mary Murphy committed suicide this morning by hanging whilst laboring under a fit of temporary insanity. The Jurors are unable to separate with out expressing their utter disgust at the beastly condition in which they found the premises occupied this morning, and if there be such a thing as a board of health in this city they would respectfully call their attention to this locality.

The evidence given above and the verdict of the jury expose one of the darkest spots of the city of Fredericton, a city that is renowned for its temperance advocates, its moral legislators, its reform agitators, and its national advantages. It is a terrible fact that "one half of the world does not know how the other half lives." Where is the practical Christianity of this temperance reformer? Will temperance lectures, moral platitudes, and reform speeches give food, clothing and spiritual advice to the poverty stricken and the destitute? It is said that the woman who hanged herself had been a patient sufferer from consumption. A walk would be the next manœuvre, the whitish animal would increase his pace to a run, whether the leg liked the same or not. It would then be a struggle between the pole and the two would gyrate round one another for a few minutes, much to the amusement of the on-lookers. A half would use every means in his power to obtain a few minutes breathing time. The interval for refreshment passed, the weak would indulge in upon the coil's glossy flank and of Queen street the pair again, this time up would start as far as the officers' quarters. There was plenty of mud in the road and the spluttering was awful. Back again to Regent street, and so on ad lib.

Recent Deaths.
John White of the Royal road died on Monday at the advanced age of eighty-two, after a brief illness. He is much regretted by his family.

At Gibson, Mrs. Hallett wife of John Hallett of that place expired on Tuesday morning from la grippe. Deceased was in her seventy-seventh year, and was a consistent member of the Baptist church.

On Thursday, Timothy Harrington, an old and respected resident of St. Mary's, died from cancer. He was in the eighty-second year of his age. The remains will be buried to-day (Saturday) at Ormoco, his former home.

On Monday evening two deaths occurred at St. Mary's. Mrs. B. B. Estabrook, wife of Herbert Estabrook of this city, died at her residence on Charlotte street from an internal disease. Deceased was only twenty years of age, and had been a patient sufferer from consumption. She leaves a husband and three little ones to mourn their loss.

EXERCISING COLTS.
A Few Observations Noted Down on Regent Street.

The ordinary pedestrian on Regent street cannot have failed to notice the extraordinary gyrations indulged in by a youth and a colt. The former is supposed to be exercising the latter, but the latter is evidently a teacher of physical exercises to the former. And so on ad lib.

On Wednesday afternoon a crowd of idlers congregated at the corner were curious observers of the incident. The plan adopted by the versatile youth was original and select. Standing beside the colt he would grab the same by the halter, and winding the extreme length of the rope round his hand the end would be sent with a smack upon the colt's flank who would respond with a vigorous snort, and then for a few minutes the pair would jog along Regent street, most modestly, and cope to a halt through sheer exhaustion. A walk would be the next manœuvre, the whitish animal would increase his pace to a run, whether the leg liked the same or not. It would then be a struggle between the pole and the two would gyrate round one another for a few minutes, much to the amusement of the on-lookers. A half would use every means in his power to obtain a few minutes breathing time.
