To-day we want to call your attention to our Tailoring Department. The new tweeds for suits are on view now, and deserve more than passing notice. Our Tailoring is Not the High Price Merchant Tailoring on Credit Kind

The suits we make to order are sold only on a cash basis, which means that you have only to pay for your own clothes, and not for part of some other man's outfit. It means that for $15 we will make you a nice fashionable tweed suit that would cost you $18 or $20 elsewhere. We sell for cash and have no bad debts to saddle the cash buyer with. We want you to come in and see our stock of Trouserings and Suitings, and know that in so doing you will save money for yourself. Self-preservation is the first law of nature, and it's the merchant that sells the cheapest and best goods for your money that you want to deal with.

DON'T FORGET Our Fashionable Tweed Suits to Our Splendid Tweed Pants to order, $4.

A New York dispatch says the small reserves of the New York banks, with a surplus of only $3,700,000, leave the money market in a somewhat critical position. It would be an easy matter for the bears on stocks to lock up this surplus, and ratos could be manipulated to the high figures that ruled at the beginning of the year.

Business on the London Stock Exchange still shows little indication of a revival. American railroad securities were duil during the week. closing weak yesterday under the unfavorable associated bank roturn, combined with unsettled rate questions, thusiness on the Paris Bourse was inactive and prices closed heavy. Duliness prevailed on the Berlin Boerse.

It is said that the whole of the Havemeyers' $17,00,000 Sugar Trust certificates were sold out last summer from $10 to $125 per share, and they did not begin buying them back until a few days ago. The movement and the selling were managed by James R. Keene, and assuming that they have regained the entire $17.00,000 it would seem that he has made for them a profit of something like $2,000,000.

day. As they stood trembing an oppressive silence filled the air, followed by a series of choking, gasping, gurgling sobs. Then came the sounds of an unseen struggle, seeming to take place between two invisible persons in the room where they stood. Gasps, grans of pain, moans of despair, and shouts of defiance mingled together. At one time it seemed that the victim had escaped from the grasp of his foe, for an unseen form seemed to be flying before a pursuer. Around the room they flew, the 'pursuer gaining every moment upon his victim, until at length he held him in his grasp again. Finally there was a fall faccompanied by a series of moans, which grew fainter and fainter until they ended in the death rattle. The party now attempted to leave the house, but the air became thick and they were obliged to grope their way to the door. There were four in the party, all well-known people, and all agree on the facts as given above. The house is being watched night and day.

$1,060,000 Offered for the National Franchise.

New York, Feb. 24.—The most gigantic baseball deal that has ever been heard of is now being carefully considered by the magnates of the Nation Baseball League. It has transpired that the modest sum of $1.000,000 had been offered by a syndicate through the law firm of Tracy, MacFarland, Ivins, Boardman & Platt, for the franchise of the entire National League, which embodies ten clubs. Several members of the law firm who had made the offer were visited, and it was learned that they had made an offer in writing to Mr. John B. Day of $1,000,000 for the franchise of the National League. They have not had a reply to their letter yet. Mr. Boardman acknowledged having written the letter to Mr. Day making the offer, which is a bona fide business proposition, and is made by a wealthy and responsible citizen of New York, who, no doubt has other wealthy associates with him in the scheme.

Coughs, Croup

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it fonly taken in time. For Consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it fonly taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such at Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN's LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. # IN SEARCH OF FORTU

Then came the wonderful news. I'd away for two days on the farmer's busi and when I got back there was your waiting for me, telling me that you'd into a fortune, and that I was to back, and that we should be gentlagain and have everything that we want.

I couldn't believe it at first. But as I realized what it meant, and that wanted me to come back to England, I straight off up to Spriggs Farm and Belle, and then I saw her father mother and told them, and then I sumn mother and told them, and then I sumn up courage and ask them if Belle a might be engaged to be married.

I expected it would be a bit of surpr them, but, bless you, it wasn't at all. Sandys laughed and said he'd seen was in the wind all along, and asked m thought he was blind. Poor Belle bluwhen her father said he'd known we in love all along, but her mother tol there was nothing to be ashamed of, was a steady, hard-working young was a steady, hard-working young and if they hadn't thought highly o they shouldn't have allowed me to they shouldn't have anowed me to go to England, and that you wanted me there, they hesitated a little. They clike the idea of Belle having to live s away from them, and Belle sa would grieve her too much to ha leave her mother.

So we talked it over and then the felet out that he had an idea of giving varm, for which he had a good offer, coming to England, where his wife ha atives, and that perhaps things mig arranged so that after all 'it woulds such a big break up.

But it was agreed that Belle and Is be engaged, and wher I got home I'w tell you about it, and write and let know what you said, and perhaps by time Mr. Sandys would be able to cot England with his family. If not I shave to go back and get married there. One of the first persons who hear news of my having come into a fortun Mark Hewitt. The day after he hee he came over to the farm. He conglated me on my good luck and aske all about it. Of course, I told him ething.

alt about it. Of course, I told him e thing.

"By Jove," he said, you are a luck low. You'll live like a gentleman now the rest of your days and have your pe always stuffed with gold and banks and there won't be anything you can't. By Jove, what a time I'd have of it if your chande."

We sat smoking and talking, and almoden he said:

"Will, if I ask you to do me a will you be offended?"

"Certainly not," I said.

"Then look here, old chap; pay my sage to England and let me come with You will be lonely traveling alone, a want to get to London badly. If I can y uncle he'll give me another start in old country, I know, and I'm sick odog's life I'm leading now. I'll pay back every pennyyou advance me as so I have seen my uncle."

What was I'to say? It would have mean to refuse, especially as I had p of money to spare out of my savings you sent me far more than I wanted consented, and it was agreed that Hewitt and myself were to sail by same ship.

A week after that I said good by to promising her that she should soon from me and telling her the pa wouldn't be for long, and Mark Hewit I set out for Quebee, from which plat were to sail for Liverpool.

We didn't leave together, but we ma place some 50 miles from my stapoint. Hewitt had begged me not to a soul that he was leaving or that he be my traveling companion. He expl that if it got known he might be preveand I foolishly gave him the promise kept it.

Instead of going direct to Quebec, he two or three days to spare, Hewitt suaded me to make a detour in order he might call on some friends of his
