MOSTLY EMIGRANTS ON BOARD

Several Boatloads Got! Safely Away-Captain Stood On the Bridge Till Vessel Went Down.

London, July 3.-Over seven hundred Danish and Norwegian emigrants, bound for New York, are believed to have been drowned in the North Atlantic. Out of nearly eight hundred souls on board the Danish steamer North, which left Copenhagen June 22, only twenty-seven are known to be alive, and for the rest no hope is held out. When last seen, the Norge was sinking when she struck on the of Rockall, whose isolated peak rises itself from a deadly Atlantic reef, some 290 miles off the west coast of Scot-

Two boatloads got safely away from the side of the sinking ship, and the emigrants who were left on board, seizing life-belts, threw themselves in to the sea and were drowned. Captain Gundel, so say the survivors, stood on the bridge of the doomed vessel until it could be seen no more. The Norge foundered suddenly, and some terrified emigrants were thrown into the water and drawn down with the sinking ship. Those who could swim tried to reach the boats, but these were already too full, and their occupants beat off the drowning wretches with oars. The boats kept together for some hours. Practically all of their occupants were passengers and were not used to handling such craft. They were dashed against the side of the Norge and their helpless inmates were caught up by the heavy seas. The boat occupied by the survivors landed at Grimsby was a life-
