LONDON, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 1.

THE MOVEMENT CANADAWARD.

The New York Sun estimates that within eight years the United States has lost to Canada people enough to make a city with a population numerically equal to that of Cleveland, greater than that of Buffalo or San Francisco, almost equal to that of Cincinnati, with Albany added to it, and nearly as large as that of Washington and New Haven combined.

But that is not all; the movement Canadawards continues. An official Canadian report places the number of immigrants from the United States in June last at 9,208, as compared with 4,884 in the same month last year, or an increase of 90 per cent. Last year 53,312 citizens of the republic crossed the border to make their homes in the Dominion, and it is estimated that this year the number will exceed 75,000. If that expectation is realized Canada will have, since the opening of the century, drawn from the States some 400,000 of their best citizens.

One of the United States consuls in this country reports to Washington that a very large percentage of these people are well-to-do farmers, "who at once establish their strong personality and ally themselves with the best and highest interests of the locality and the country to which they go." The money and effects brought over by those who entered this country from the south last year alone were valued at $52,000,000. One million dollars per week coming into the country means much for the development of the Canadian West.

James J. Hill, the railway magnate, is credited with saying recently that the land-seekers from the Western States who are settling on the virgin Canadian wheat lands are "really former Canadians, who will be all the more useful to the Dominion, because they have been educated along American lines." The Chicago Tribune, however, contends that this hardly squares with the facts, and points out that few of the English-speaking Canadians who go to the United States take to a farming life. They go into stores, banks and the professions, and almost invariably make a success of what they undertake. "The great majority of the men who are now leaving the United States to cultivate Canadian wheat lands are," says the Tribune, "American farmers, born and reared here. They understand their business thoroughly, and Canada could have no more valuable acquisitions." The New York Sun is evidently of the same opinion, for it declares that to the vast number of United States farmers who are flocking to the Canadian west annually, "should be added an unknown number of Canadians of longer or shorter residence in the United States, sons and daughters of the Dominion, who have gone home to share in and to advance the prosperity of their own country."

What means to Canada perhaps as much as this influx of United States farmers and repatriated Canadians is the fact that the exodus to the republic which drained it of its best blood in years past, has come to an end. Canadians now find plenty of opportunities at home.

A resolution passed at the recent meeting at Winnipeg of the Canadian Medical Association revives the question of Dominion registration of medical men. It has more or less agitated the profession since confederation, but sectional prejudices and local interests have stood in the way of a satisfactory settlement, and conditions which Dr. Osler years ago described as an "outrage," the debasing depths of narrow provincialism, and "provincialism run riot," have been allowed to continue.

DOMINION REGISTRATION OF MEDICAL MEN.

A resolution passed at the recent meeting at Winnipeg of the Canadian Medical Association revives the question of Dominion registration of medical men. It has more or less agitated the profession since confederation, but sectional prejudices and local interests have stood in the way of a satisfactory settlement, and conditions which Dr. Osler years ago described as an "outrage," the debasing depths of narrow provincialism, and "provincialism run riot," have been allowed to continue.

A step in the direction of Dominion registration was taken in 1902, when Dr. Roddick secured the passage of an act providing for such a reform. Its value, however, was destroyed by a provision requiring that it could not come into force until assented to in all the provinces, and the result is that each province continues to have its own medical council, and qualified physicians in one province are still denied the privilege of practicing in another until they have expended time and money in passing an examination that should be unnecessary.

In some of the provinces, efforts are being made to reach some sort of inter-provincial arrangement, and the Winnipeg Free Press says that during the past few weeks the official bodies of the four western provinces have come to an agreement, which, however, is by no means satisfactory to the profession. Our contemporary points out even an inter-provincial understanding among all the provinces could be reached if it resulted in a patchwork arrangement merely, and not the national unity that is desired. The impelling motive is not convenience or expediency or the easier climbing of fences so much as loyalty to the highest ideals of a liberal and noble profession and loyalty to Canada. It is a part of the new Canadianism, and aims to remove as far as possible that which separates Canadians and strengthens that which tends to bind them to one another.

The desire of the Canadian Medical Association is to have the Roddick act so amended as to make it possible that when five or more provinces are willing to adopt the provisions of the act it will come into force in those provinces. Once such legislation is secured, and put into force, no doubt little time would be lost by the other provinces in making the reform cover the whole Dominion. As it is, an Ontario practitioner has no more professional standing in any of the sister provinces than he has in a foreign country.

THE NURSES' CONVENTION.

The citizens of London cordially welcome the women superintendents of the hospitals of the United States and Canada, who have gathered here for their annual convention. Theirs is a noble calling, and one which carries heavy responsibilities in the faithful discharge of which they are conferring a blessing upon humanity. They have the satisfaction of knowing, too, that there can be no suggestion that their work is outside the sphere and mission of their sex. They are doing what men are not qualified to do, and are safe from their jealous reproaches.

The story of the development of the nursing profession and its elevation to the plane of dignity and appreciation which it now occupies, is a modern romance. Just as the popular notion of a hospital has been revolutionized in recent years, so has the conception of nursing as a vocation since the days of Dickens's caricatures, with the result that it now attracts the most refined and cultivated women.

It is to be hoped the delegates will be pleased with London and its hospitality, and that they will profit by the interchange of ideas, and return with fresh inspiration for their splendid work.

WORK FOR A CANADIAN FLEET.

Lord Charles Bessborough was more guarded in his formal address yesterday than in the touch-and-go interview recorded by the Montreal Witness, but he sticks to his argument that the patrolling of trade routes is a vital and integral factor in the scheme of imperial defence.

For this purpose cruisers are the most useful type. The place for the Dreadnoughts is in the midst of an armada, and in the line of battle. While the main strength of the British navy should be concentrated in home waters to repel or attack an invader, there must be protection for British merchantmen plowing the seven seas, and carrying food and the raw materials of industry to the United Kingdom, so long as Great Britain refuses to assent to the doctrine that in time of war the enemy's flag shall be respected if it flies over cargoes of merchandise.

Here is work for the fleets of the daughter nations. They can relieve the mother country of this function in a large degree and enable her to maintain ships in home waters that would otherwise be detached for the protection of commerce. If the British market were closed to Canada by the fortunes of war, even temporarily, the effects would be disastrous. We have almost as much interest in keeping the Atlantic trade route open as has Great Britain, which is largely dependent upon supplies from this side of the Atlantic. This consideration is ignored by those who argue that Canadian warships could be useful only as an indivisible part of the British fleet in the North Sea, and that it would be waste of money and effort and a strategic weakness to have a distinctively Canadian fleet.

At the present rate of progress the airship will soon become a staple attraction at every fair fall.

The fire in the heart of the city last night during a high wind would have had more terrors a year ago. The city would be in a serious position at the end of this dry summer but for the addition to the water supply.

Premier Asquith has refused to reopen the question of the exclusion of Canadian cattle from the British market. After all, the British Government is simply treating Canadian cattle as the Canadian Manufacturers' Association wishes to treat British woolens.

The cause of woman suffrage in England will be promoted by the mobbing of suffragettes. It is revolting to a sense of fair play and to the chivalrous instincts of the other sex. But what of the moral and mental condition of such mobs? Are these hoodlums worthy of the ballot than the women whom they attack?

WHY HE WAS BASHFUL.

A Huddersfield girl declares the story is true. She was visiting at a small Kansas town recently, and while there her hostess gave a party in her honor, and invited the pick of the whole countryside. Among the guests was a boy who had been to Topeka, so she had heard.

She had some acquaintances in Topeka and tried to draw him out, inquiring: "How did you like Topeka?" The young fellow blushed and looked down before he murmured: "Oh, pretty well."

"Do you know many people there?" she continued, trying hard to get him interested, and attributing his reticence to bashfulness.

"Why, not many," he said, tugging at his collar, as if it were strangling him.

"I suppose you went to the park while you were there?" she asked.

"No," replied. "I did not attend any of the affairs at the park."

She talked to him on the side furthest from Topeka, where he has been in the reform school.

"We simply had to invite him," she replied. "He belongs to a good family. As a matter of fact, he has just returned from Topeka, where he has been in the reform school."

ADVICE TO AMATEURS.

Scott spent a part of one summer in the country, and hence was an authority on agricultural matters.

"In milking a cow," he wrote his friends, "always sit on the side furthest from the critter, and nearest the soft spot in the pasture."

Patient—Yes, I wish I had some other doctor.

WAR ON DRINKING CUP.

[From the Springfield Republican.]
The New Jersey State board of health is waging war on the insidious drinking cup, and has asked companies which operate lines in New Jersey to discard glass cups and supply cups of paper, to be discarded after use. These could either be supplied free, which would not be a heavy tax on the railroad, or provided for a cent by a slot machine. Certainly it is taking chances to drink out of a public cup, and the wise traveller already goes provided, sometimes with a pocket-cup, sometimes with a paper cup. For the greatest risk of travel in these nearly but not quite civilized times, is what is drunk by the wayside. Sanitary drinking cups are good, but a guaranteed water supply would be better yet.

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL RACE.

[London Spectator.]
While Germany speculates naturally at the moment, naval activity is not limited to the German navy. The facts as to new construction in the United States, France, Japan, Italy, Russia and Austria are set forth in all the annuals, being substantial agreements with statements made in the series of articles on the "Navies of the World," published in this journal about six months ago. Attention is also called to the new departure made in minor navies, such as those of Brazil and Argentina. The latter country has a programme, and is about to place orders for new ships. Italy will probably follow suit, even Venezuela is on the move. In France and Russia steps are being taken, after long delays, to meet the German menace. Austria has not yet definitely decided on her programme, but has practically done so, and will probably work in harmony with Germany. Italy has decided to build four instead of two large battleships. On all sides the struggle for naval power and supremacy is becoming keener.

WALTER JOHNSON INJURED

Star Twirler of Washington Americans May Never Pitch Again.

Washington, Sept. 1.—Walter Johnson, Washington's premier pitcher, and one of the star players of the American League, may never pitch another game for the league. Because of an injury to his shoulder, Johnson was forced to leave the team at Chicago and return to his home in Maryland. He hurt his arm during a recent game at Cleveland. He says that his condition is such that he cannot play another game this season. It is feared that one of the ligaments of his arm is torn, and in that event there is slight chance for the complete restoration of the arm. Johnson has pitched 40 games this year, and shown splendid form.

KLING TO MANAGE BIG LEAGUE CLUB

Johnny Has Two Propositions, and Will Go To Team in Either National or American.

Kansas City, Aug. 31.—John Kling, the baseball catcher, former member of the Chicago National, baseball club, will manage an eastern team in either the National or American League next year. This statement was made by Kling today after he had wired Clark Griffith, manager of the Cincinnati Nationals, declining Griffith's offer to join his club next season.

"I have two propositions now before me," said Kling, "and I surely will accept one of them. Anyway you can say I will be back in baseball next year as the leader of an eastern club."
