IN "HER OWN WAY"Clyde Fitch Drama Presented At Grand in Magnificent Manner.MAKE NEW LOCAL RECORDProbably Greatest Success of Amateur Talent in City
For Years.In the presentation at the Grand last night of Clyde Fitch's delightful little drama, "Her Own Way," as part of the characteristic week program, the Western University Literary Society not merely created a new record for amateur theatricals in the city of London, but also provided an evening's pleasure, which will live long in the memories of those who were fortunate enough to witness the play.Presented with a vim and a spirit of realization of the personality of the characters portrayed, the pleasing little love story of Georgina Carley and Lieut.
Dick Coleman was the vehicle of much wholesome instruction, pointed with keen wit and clever satire at the follies of modern day society. Probably, and for the presentation of no play placed upon the boards of a London theatre by amateur or professional actors has there been a closer appeal to an audience throughout the whole of the human experience, which lived their brief existence only to give place to others, than in this cleverly-presented story of life.From the rise of the curtain in the first act and the taking of the audience right into the nursery of the Carleys, a nursery which could be duplicated in thousands of homes in Canada today, on the occasion of the birthday party of Philip Carley, cleverly played by Miss Gwene Williams, the spectator, felt right at home, the oys, the fun, the little worries of life, the tragedies and the outstanding happinesses of the compensate for all the darknesses all were his.As the two sisters of the birthday celebrant, Miss Allison Buchner as Kitty and Miss Katherine Fox as Toole, along with their little guest, Elaine, pleasingly portrayed by Miss Eleanor McCormick, where a most real trio of nursery-hearted children, and only the most critical of critics could find fault in the nursery games of hide-and-seek and blindman's bluff.The outstanding figure of the play was undoubtedly Miss Margaret Genmell in the role of Georgina Carley, aunt of the children introduced in the first act, possessing a fine stage presence, exceptional clearness of enunciation and an unusual realization of the part she played. She showed a balance and judgment often lacking in even experienced actors of the heights and depths of emotional parts which the unfolding of the story placed in her hands for portrayal. Her control in the scenes called for sudden transition from deep sorrow to the heights of joy when the cause of the sorrow was removed, was most clever.
As the hero of the story, Lieut. Dick Coleman, Arthur Waring was all that his part called for, a manly man and a soldier. Beverly Baker, as Ram Coast, the wealthy, but unwelcome lover of Georgina, was at times somewhat crude and unfinished in his presentation of his part, probably through his excess of desire to portray a self-made-man careless of who might sink so long as he was afloat.As Steven Carley, brother of Georgina, who speculates on Wall Street with the usual result, and the consequent loss of his wife, as well as his own money, Winston Harrison, was atypical New Yorker in his readiness to accept a tip on a "good thing" in the hope that it would mean the retrieving of his losses.
In the main the character was well sustained, but some weaknesses were notable in his portrayal of regret at the sorrow he had brought on those he loved.Miss Mary Granger, as Mrs. Carley Sen., grandmother of the lovely children, but younger than their mother in her style of dress and her ambitions, and Miss Blanche Tancock, as Mrs.
Steven Carley, gave very satisfactory presentations of their roles, the former being a frequent source of amusement.
Miss Helen Berdan, as Bella Shindle, a typical New York hairdresser, with her satirical comments on the society women whose hair she dressed, and on life in general, was the comedian of the play. Jack McWilliam in the role of Moles, the butler, and Miss Mary Marshall as Lizzie, Mrs. Carley's maid, while minor characters in the play, presented their respective parts in pleasing manner.The first act, already referred to, was set in the Carley's nursery, the second act in the Carley's library and the third and fourth in Georgina's sitting-room.
The stage setting was simple, but very pleasing, aiding materially to the tout ensemble. The gowns of the ladies were handsome and pleasingly adapted to the occasion.Altogether, the executive management of the play, as well as the actors, individually and collectively are to be most sincerely congratulated on the successful presentation of a play that showed throughout most careful and honest study of its utmost requirements.
The executive were: Director, Miss Jean Walker; stage manager, Miss Helen Baker; assistant stage manager, Miss Edith Anderson, mistress of the wardrobe, Miss Shirley White; business manager, Fred J. James.At the end of the third act, Dean Sherwood Fox, on behalf of the play, thanked the citizens of London for the excellent support given to the dramatic efforts of the members of the University Literary Society from year to year by the well-attended houses.BIRD NOTES (Contributed by McIlwraith Ornithological Club.) In addition to the regular morning trips which occupy about two hours, the field men of the Bird Club take a number of all-morning holiday trips during the year. One of these is on the morning of Victoria Day. They usually go to three or four different localities in order to get as large a list as possible, as this is the last long trip that will be taken before Christmas.
This Victoria Day morning added two new ones to our list, the Connecticut Warbler and the Grey-Cheeked Thrush.
The Connecticut is one of our rarest warblers, olive-green above, yellow below, with ashy-grey on throat and breast, and a white eye-ring which is a distinguishing mark. It prefers damp, swampy locations and stays here only a short time before going farther north.
The Grey-Cheeked Thrush is also rare.
Sometimes it is missed altogether. It looks very much like the Olive-Back, already noted, the main difference beingthat its cheeks are grey instead of buff.
One can readily see that the casual observer might easily miss it by this slight difference. The fact that this bird was seen in our president's garden, shows that by keeping our eyes open, pleasant surprises may often be had in the bird line right at our doors.
Two Loons flying north were also noted. This seems rather late, but some of these birds nest far north; perhaps it is not so late after all.
Seventy-three species were recorded in all. This list might have been increased by going farther afield, but the day was warm, and wheeling the only means of traveling, so the ponds alone were visited.
The migration season is about over.
There only remains a few odd birds, to get which special trips will have to be made to the places where they live. Our early-morning trips will not be taken quite so regularly from now on, and we have a chance to get caught up on our sleep. J. R. McLEOD.YOUR EYESYour eyes, when aided with our mer approaches, the question of "What shall we do this summer?" is in the minds of many. A new publication on Algonquin Park, the wonderful Ontario Government preserve, has been issued by the Canadian National Grand Trunk Railways. It is filled with information helpful to those planning their summer holidays. The booklet is a handsome one, beautifully illustrated and describes the many attractions to be found in the park. It also contains views of the hotels that are situated there, and information as to the rates. There is probably not another section of the country that compares to this extensive territory for the canoe cruiser, camper and angler. With an altitude of two thousand feet above the sea, the air is pure and bracing. Two hundred miles north of Toronto and one hundred and seventy miles west of Ottawa, it is easy of access. For pleasure, rest and recreation there is no place like Algonquin Park. For full information and

ANNUAL SESSIONSJunior Organization Presents Splendid Reports of Sucday afternoon's meeting of the W. A. of Huron Diocese, was the presentation of a beautiful gold wrist watch to Mrs. G. B. Sage, the president. The presentation was made by the bishop on behalf of the meeting. The reading of the report of the Junior's secretary, Mrs. Bowen, was another interesting feature of the session, which brought the W. A. annual to a close. The Juniors had $315.37 to vote after all their pledges had been met, dividing it in this manner: $100 towards an electric plant at Lytton Hospital, Caribou; $50 towards Christmas presents for the In-at Le Pas; $25 for Miss Strickland's work in Kangra, India; $25 towards Miss Newman's work in India; $10 to-sion of the W. A. at 4:30, the Rev. J.

W. J. Andrew of St. Thomas having given the address in the afternoon.This was followed immediately by a splendid meeting of the Juniors. Cro-nyn Hall being filled with young children keenly interested in the work of the W. A. Miss McIntosh of Honan, China, was the speaker, who made her subject specially interesting by the showing of curios.Announcement was made by the bishop of the following prize-winners in the junior competition, held throug-out the Diocese of Huron. Miss Lillian Adams of Cronyn Memorial being the winner in the senior grade, and Miss Margaret Arkell of St. John's in the junior grade. The winners in the different branches were as follows: St.
Paul's, London, Edith Finlayson; St.
George's, London, Ethel Wood; St.
James', London, Violet Andrews; St.
John's, St. Thomas, Dorothy Brownlee;
St. Paul's, Stratford, Mary Heaver; Warwick, Enid Lester; Mitchell, Marjorie Clark; St. George's, London Town-ter at a hotel as man and wife, was struck from the bill. Another, imposing a penalty of one year's imprisonment, without the option of a fine, for stealing an automobile, carried, although some criticism of it came from both sides of the House.

A third, providing for the spanking of youths guilty of theft, was withdrawn.
"We might as well have the stocks again in public places," indignantly exclaimed Hon. Jacques Bureau. "We aregetting back to the mediaeval ages. It is historical legislation." But the minister of justice—while in view of the opposition he was willing to withdraw the clause—looked at the matter in a different light. Such a punishment, he thought, would take away the dignity of youthful crimes. Budding Jesse Jameses would no longer be able to tell a glorious story of their punishment.
On the question of docking a dog's tail, H. M. Mowat of Parkdale observed that unless its tail were docked a prize dog would stand no chance at a show.
On this clause was made applicable
