TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can - "I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflam-mation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. Frank Emsley, 903 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

F Beatrice, Neb. - "Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."-Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

to war. Their position may be conventionally awkward, for they must decide whether sentiment for their husbands or for their country is the

The Ontario Government has come forward with an offer of $500,000 to the mother country for war purposes. Quebec has donated a million pounds of Canadian cheese, Nova Scotia sends 100,000 tons of coal, and the other provinces have been equally liberal.

The people of Germany are in the hands of their emperor; the King of England is in the hands of his people. Both peoples are loyal to their rulers; but in one case it is a loyalty enforced by law, and in the other a loyalty inspired by love of country and appreciation of freedom.

We along the Canadian border see some of the results of the European war. The canals on the Canadian side are constantly patrolled by soldiers, and strangers going into Canada must be able to give a very complete account of themselves before they will be allowed to land. The steamer Venus is still making trips to Cornwall, but the passengers are scanned very closely by the immigration officials.-Massena Obser-

Some of the Canadian combines are advancing the price of food commodities, with the excuse that the war situation warrants it. Our Canadian flour and meats are sold to-day in England at lower prices than preyail in Canada. There is no danger of a scarcity of food in this country, and prices abroad do not justify the exorbitant prices now charged here. Some of our Canadian Kaisers should have their wings clipped. The subjection of the Germany Kaiser will do much to bring about this much desired result.

One notable characteristic of the present war is the almost entire absence of a spirit of rancour towards our enemies. In drawing the sword the British have not been animated by any feeling of enmity for the German people, but by a belief that in the conflict which was waging British ideals and principles of gov ernment were imperilled, and that they could not, without cowardice, refrain from defending the heritage handed down against a war lord whose success would imperil it. Canada, on her part, counts it a privilege to be ranged alongside the mother country in the defence of the princples of freedom and democracy which our people have been taught to cherish and to regard as dearer than life itself.—Mitchell Advocate.

Safety First on G. T. R.

The Grand Trunk Railway Company is making a strenuous effort to reduce the personal injury record on their lines. personal injury record on their lines. In this campaign for greater safety they find that one of the greatest sources of danger which they have to combat is that of live stock upon the tracks. These usually get upon the tracks by being allowed to run upon the highways near railway crossings. This practice not only occasions serious loss by death of the animals, but is a great source of danger to the out is a great source of danger to the travelling public and railway employees. A number of serious accidents have recently occured due to this cause. The farmers, especially those living along the railways, can greatly assist in removing this source of danger by keeping their eeing to it that stock is not allowed upon the highway in the vicinity of crossings, also by reporting to the company's em-ployees any defects in the railway fences.

The Lion's Whelp

(From The Chicago Tribune.) Kipling never wrote a truer word than when he made Canada say:
'Daughter am I in my mother's house,

"Daughter am I in my mother's house, But mistress in my own."
This expresses Canada, the obedient offspring of the British Empire, but the independent, self-governing Dominion from Vancouver to the Atlantic. Immediately on Great Britain's declaration of war Canada rose to her defence. The lion's growl was echoed by the whelp.
There is no law which compels Canada to do this. Great Britain cannot compelher to contribute to the defense of the mother country one man, one gun, one bushel of wheat, one dollar of Canadian money, and yet the Dominion has already money, and yet the Dominion has already sent millions of flour and grain, three regiments of equipped men, batteries of guns, and the offer of an unlimited num-ber of volunteers.

The men who gave a good account of themselves in South Africa will not be wanting in valor on Europe's battlefields.

An Oil That is Prized Everywhere.—
Dr. Thomas' Eelectric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish over thirty years ago. It was put up to meet the wants of a small section, but as soon as its merits became known it had a whole continent for a field, and it is now known and prized throughout this hemisphere. There is nothing equal to it. m

FACED FOUR LIONS.

Coolness and Daring of a Plucky Kaffir

Four lions attacked a herd of cattle on a farm at Romsey, South Africa, says the Rhodesia Herald. The herdboy was standing on an ant heap examining a pair of boots he had got the day previous, when he heard a low growl near him. On looking up he saw that three lions had got hold of three cows, while another lion stood looking on.

The boy pulled off his boots and threw them at the nearest lion, and then made a rush for them with a stick, shouting at the same time at the top of his voice to another herdboy to bring a gun.

In the meantime two lions had got their cows down, but, nothing daunted, the Kafir made a rush for them, and the lions moved away from their prey. The boy then rounded up his cattle (he had 108 head), and while he was doing so had to chase the lions away several times. When he was at one side the lions would try to catch the cattle on the other. However, he brought all his cattle safely home, though one of the cowsafterward died, the claw of a lion having penetrated her lung.

For cool daring it would be hard to beat the chasing of four lions single handed and with no weapons except a pair of boots and a stick.

LEARNING HOW TO UNLEARN.

Modern Scientists Harking Back to Thales of Miletus.

When we were young and knew without doubt that the molecule was com-posed of two or three ultimate parts, called atoms, we listened complacently to the statement that "science progresses in a straight line, philosophy around in a circle, or at best along a helical spiral." Now that we are older and believe that the simplest atom has nearly 1,800 parts, we find that perhaps the helix is expressive of science as well, observes the editor of the En-as well, observes the earlor of the En-gineering and Mining Journal. We believe, with the alchemists, that the so called elements are fundamen-tally the same. Whether we will transmute one to another remains to be seen; we follow the alchemists in attempting it.

Were one of the Greek philosophers, Thales of Miletius, for instance, to stroll into a modern assembly of physicists and chemists, the language would be more troublesome than the ideas. He would hear the physical chemist matter, for that which we call matter is only energy, and Thales would remark, "Plagiarist." The disciples of relativity, the ultra modern physicists, would tell him that space and time are one, and Thales would sigh to think of his boyish debates.

John Locke. John Locke, whose "Essay on the Human Understanding" was the first work that attracted attention in England to metaphysical speculation, was born at Wrington, England, Aug. 29, 1632, and died at Oates, England, Oct. 28, 1704. The chief purpose of the essay was to find the original source and scope of human knowledge. The conclusions he arrived at in this study were that there is no such thing as "innate idea; that the human mind is as a sheet of white paper prepared to be written upon; that the knowledge thereon written is supplied by experience and that sensation and reflection are the two sources of all our ideas." He made the first sketch when he was thirty-eight years of age and finished it seventeen years later. The book was bitterly attacked.

A Boat Survival.

The dghaisa (pronounced dysa), the gondola of Malta, is a survival, says John Wignacourt in "The Odd Man In Malta," of the oldest vessel ever used and varies little in shape from the Egyptian boats of the dead. Actually the eye of Osiris is still to be seen upon the prow. It is propelled by two experienced oarsmen, one of whom al-ways stands. When the Gregale wind is sweeping the harbors and the steam ferries are unsafe you can still use the trusty dghaisa. It is a gay little craft, painted in brilliant colors—in this respect a contrast to the somber gondola Pleasant For the Callers.

Two ladies made a formal call on a distant acquaintance. The maid asked them to wait until she ascertained whether the person inquired for was Presently she tripped downstairs and announced that "the lady was not at home." One of the callers, finding that she had forgotten her cards, said to her friend, "Let me write my name on your card."

"Oh, it isn't at all necessary, miss," put in the maid cheerfully; "I told her who it was."-New York Globe.
