cancy in Gaspe and thus bring about a cancy in Gaspe and thus bring about a by-election at which Sir Lomer Gouin might be a candidate. In short there is nothing in the story of Sir Lomer's defection from the Liberal party unless Mr. Lemieux is joining hands with him. Yet a number of Liberal members of parliament assured The World corresi. Ment today that Mr. Lemieux would attend the forthcomins national Liberal convention. They were equally positive that Sir Lomer would also be there.

On the other hand there is no doubt that a determined effort has been made to get French-Canadian recruits for the Union government. The Montreal Star, never credited with much admiration for the French-Canadians, turned a complete somersault yester-day and eulogized them in a long edi-torial. This is supposed to be pre-paring the way for the French-Canadians to accept representation in the nion government.

It is also common talk that the big interests, including the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Bank of Montreal, are displeased with the public ownership policy of the Ottawa government and would like to have the restraining influence of Sir Lomer's presence in the cabinet. A prominent member of the judiciary, who was a former colleague of Sir Robert Borden's, is reported as saying that Sir Lomer Gouin would only enter the government upon certain conditions, and that one of these was that a brake should be placed upon further advances toward complete railway nationalization. cific Railway and the Bank of Mont-of the local Liberals say that the Que-bec delegation will be almost solid for Premier Martin of Saskatchewan or for Hon, W. L. Mackenzie King. They do not think that Sir Lomer Gouin wants a strong leader as he aspires to wants a strong leader as he aspires to the power behind the throne in case of a Liberal victory at the next elec-tion. Some of the French papers gave prominence to the rumors about Sir Lomer Gouin joining the Borden gov-ernment. Undoubtedly the many ele-ments in Quebec would like to see Sir Lomer retire from the provincial remiership. They are sweetening the Borden will retire and that a new gov-mment will be formed in which Quebec will be adequately represented under the leadership of Sir Thomas White.

Editor World: While passing down Duncan street this morning to board a street car which was just passing to the west side of Duncan street to take on passengers, a motor delivery car passed and stopped the required distance behind the front door of the street car, on near-ring the street car, another, motor car reme rushing along, swerved round the last-mentioned car in the opening of Duncan street, and piled headlong into the delivery car alongside the street car, making its way true the crowd of passengers boarding the street car in such a way that I could not believe my own eyes. The passengers parted as if by a miracle, in one being injured. I would judge the runaway car was traveling at about 20 miles an hour when passing Duncan street this morning to board a street intersection with our street.

Another thing, in connection with our street railway: I have always been at a loss to know why our street cars pass a street intersection, and then stop within the car's length. This, in my estimation, is a very dangerous practice, and could be easily remedied by stopping the car on the near side of the street; in this way the car would always be under control or moving at such a low rate of one the passing that a very dangerous practice, and could be easily remedied by stopping the car on the near side of the street; in this way the car would always be under control or moving at such a low r an organization with world-wide con-nections, an association as it were with locals all over the world.

One of the western exponents of the O. B. It national system now in force in both Canada and the United States. It was, he said, an organization which could be made practically a national unit in any country in the world, its principle being that of concentrating all economic forces within concentrations of the state of the said of the s trated areas. A Central Council. "I would explain its workings this way," said this official, "A central labor council is formed with large administrative powers. This council would comprise members of many industries, the interests of which would be correlated with a view to centralization of effort for economic adjustment. Should one of the industries affected have grievances, its own industrial grievance committee would attempt to bring the two disputants together. Failing in this, the industrial grievance committee would refer the matter to the central council grievance committee, and if that committee was unable to effect an agreement, it would refer the matter to the highest back of the district

Touching upon the details of such an organization this man stated that under the constitution there would be no large fees payable to international head offices as with the international movement, but that each member object being to reorganize the movement, but that each member would be called upon to pay about 25c a month into the general fund of his own central council, these funds to be used only within the area subject to the jurisdiction of the council. The union has decided to take part in the Labor Day to bolster up his fast-falling friend, Premier Hearst, and a Unionist rally to help support himself by enlisting the same forces. Let us see what right Mr. Atkinson of The Star, have to the confidence and support of Liberals, whether Unionist or not. Early in 1917, Mr. Rowell had been picked as Sir Wilfrid's successor by two men, the then business manager of The Globe and the proprietor of The Star. But the scheme miscarried. It was badly handled, but when the plot against Sir Wilfrid failed, instead of remaining with the Ontario Liberal party, which was loyally supporting him, he entered into the Union gov-ernment negotiations. I make the charge advisedly when I say that in the summer of 1917, before Union government was formed, he made his choice between Liberalism and Unionism. He deliberately joined in the formation of that government, knowing that it was intended to be what it now is, a permanent party.
