Locke's popular novel by Frances Marion. In this screen play there are two Mary Pickfords, or, to be exact, Mary Pickford in two different characters of extreme contrast. This is the first time that "Our Mary" has ever experienced the feeling of co-starring with herself, and that she enjoys the novelty is evident.

In the part of Stella Maris Mary appears as we know her best—a beautiful child with long curls and pretty frocks. Living in a home of wealth,

MARY PICKFORD
in "Stella Maris"

At the Patricia Theatre all next week. The above production is the famous star's latest, and is conceded to be her best.

surrounded by every luxury and with the tender care of a circle of friends who worship her, the character is similar to those which have disclosed her best efforts in the past. Unity Blake, however, is a part which shows Mary as we have never seen her before. With curls straightened out and hair braided down against a dirty face and over a hunched shoulder the unattractive Unity, slave of an orphanage is as different from pretty Stella as the cactus is unlike the rose. Although of two entirely different worlds, the lives of Stella and Unity become closely linked in the course of the story, a narrative of sublime pathos and charm which lends itself well to the rare talents of "America's Sweetheart" and the production of "Stella Maris" was in the hands of Marshall Neilan, the youthful director whose artistic presentation of recent Mary Pickford photoplays had much to do with their success. At the Patricia Theatre all next week.

"An International Sneak" at the Patricia Theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

At the Patricia Theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday Mack Sennett will show one of his very prettiest of all his company of pretty girls—Ethel Tearse, who with Chester Conklin and Billy Armstrong will appear in the Paramount-Mack Sennett comedy, "An International Sneak." This is a scream from beginning to end, and contains the tale of the adventures of a spy and another spy, the first being Chester Conklin, the second no other than the pretty Ethel Tearse.

"Roping Her Romeo" a Great Comedy, at the Patricia Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Polly Moran, Sheriff Ben Turpin, Walter Slim Summerville, Gambler Ethel Tearse, "Girl from the City." Ben isn't much to look at, but he has the proverbial heart of gold, and

At the Majestic Theatre next Monday and Tuesday. The supreme stage success of its time—featuring the screen's greatest emotional actress, Pauline Frederick, a favorite with Majestic patrons.

At the Majestic Theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Niagara Falls, the mecca of honeymooners, was visited in taking a large number of the scenes.

Polly is strong for him. Doubtless when Ben shows her some cash and a deed for a fifty little cabin protected by miles, hogs and cacti.

But Slim, sick sinner of a gambler, has his eye on Polly too, and there is a little affair in which some dough is concerned which arouses the suspicion of Ben and leads to a bar-room brawl of exciting, not to say hilarious, proportions.

Now Ben's heart might have been gold, but his sense wasn't so much.

The fact that Slim, after the battle, was in wrong all round didn't keep him out of a card game with the slicker.

When it was over Ben didn't have a bean, not only was his money gone, but also the deed to the fifty little cottage, and even Polly's engagement ring. He thought her love and esteem were gone too, and this brought about a series of complications that nearly landed him in the calaboose.

Pauline Frederick, the Greatest Emotional Actress, at the Majestic Monday and Tuesday.

In her latest photoplay, "Mrs. Dane's Defense," Pauline Frederick's portrayal of a woman, hunted to the last stand, straining every nerve to hide the deceit of her life, and finally succumbing in a most human way, is a masterpiece and entirely up to her usual high standard.

"Mrs. Dane's Defense," which was adapted for the screen by Margaret Turnbull, the well-known scenario writer, has been directed by Hugh Powell, who has directed "Mrs. Dane's Defense" in many of her stage and screen productions.

Weber and Ridnor, classy singers and dancers, will be the vaudeville attraction at the Majestic Theatre all next week. Miss Ridnor, a pretty young woman, is known to the girl with the $3,000 wardrobe. Mr. Weber is one of the best dancers on the vaudeville stage. The act is clean, clever and snappy.

Constance Talmadge, at the Majestic Wednesday and Thursday.

"The Honeymoon," starring Constance Talmadge, which will be shown at the Majestic Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, is a merry tale of marital mishaps that will bring a host of smiles to everyone in the audience.

Susan Lane, pretty, high-spirited and lovable, has an ungovernable streak of jealousy which infuriates her within fifteen minutes after the ceremony which makes her Mrs. Richard Greer; for she sees him talking in an aside to Marion Starr, one of the bridesmaids.

Susan's brother, Phil Lane, has fallen in love with Marion, but a previous engagement, which he has broken, prevents the announcement of their engagement.

Alas, to whom Phil had become engaged after a hilarious wine supper, refuses to release him, and the sweethearts are in despair.

Phil draws Dick aside, tells him the whole story, and also informs him that Marion's trousseau will be in Niagara Falls, whether the honeymooners are going, and that it's up to Dick to buy her off.

Dick protests, but Phil declares that his and Marion's happiness is at stake, and the young bridegroom assents.

Francis X. Bushman, at the Majestic Wednesday and Thursday, Matinee Only.

Over two hundred Georgia "darkies" picking cotton in the fields on a plantation will be seen in "The Voice of Conscience," a Metro wonderplay, co-starring Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Saxe, which will be shown at the Majestic Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, matinee only.

Edwin Carewe, director, took his company of leading players to the vicinity of Savannah, Georgia, for the staging of these plantation scenes.

Julian Eltinge, the Most Famous Female Impersonator in the World, at the Majestic Friday and Saturday, Next Week.

Julian Eltinge, the famous Paramount feminine impersonator, who is appearing at the Majestic Theatre on Friday and Saturday, is again taking the role of a woman in "The Widow's Might."

This is a charmingly humorous story of the adventures of young Dick Tavish, who sets himself up as a rancher, only to learn that an older hand at the game is going to beat him. How he wins out, with the help of a wig, a baby and an exceedingly pretty girl, makes an unexpectedly refreshing and original pic-

A Great Soprano and A Great Violinist

SUPPOSE Mme. Marie Rappold had consented to come to your home and sing, bringing Albert Spaulding along to play the violin obligato. Suppose, too, that, for professional reasons, neither artist wished to be seen by your guests but stipulated their being screened from view.

Then you might as well cancel the engagement, for everything else beyond their personal appearance your New Edison can give you. Place on Re-Creation 82536. Your guests will hush spell-bound as the rich tones of Spaulding's magnificent bowing stream out in the prelude to Gounod's "Ave Maria." Then a moment's pause and Rappold is there. She is uttering the prayer as one inspired. The mellow Latin phrases, set to glorious music, grip the audience with a marvellous appeal. You are listening to Rappold and Spaulding. The phonograph itself has no more to do with it than Spaulding's bits of wood and string. Never was Edison kinder to the world than when he perfected this instrument.

Have Rappold sing for you at your will, in solo, duet or in trio, in opera, oratorio or lyric—it is the privilege of all owners of the New Edison.
