One is a doctor and one is avowedly a Socialdoctor and one is avowedly a Socialist. Some one has said that this is a poor group to choose from. I do not agree with that. I should be well content if any one of three should be elected. I am not in favor of class distinctions and therefore would not favor one of the candidates, and as for the other I think no self-respecting citizen would wish that he should represent him. We should have some standard. A city like this should demand that its mayor should at least mand that its mayor should at least have the confidence and respect of the whole community. The chair of the mayoralty should be far beyond the reach of any low class, wire pulling, unscrupulous politician.

"It is our privilege, opportunity and position whose record entitles us to believe that the best interests of the city are safe in his hands. A Citizen of no mean city," St. Paul's reference to his own birthplace was the text taken last night by Rev. J. V. Smith, pastor of Central Methodist Church. A Christian's duty to his city was the subject of his sermon.

"This city cannot afford to have any but men of unimpeachable integrity in its council chamber. Not wealth, but virtue, justice, public spirit and love of country, makes for national greatness.
