Cooking.

Cooking, says Youth's Companion, is in reality a partial digestion of food previous to its introduction into the stomach. It is employed by man alone, and distinguishes him from all other creatures.

Many articles used as food are entirely indigestible in a raw state. Some of the most nourishing of them are actually harmful if eaten uncooked. Cooking, to be esteemed a science, mus-

be performed in such a way as to render the raw products of the earth as easily digested the system is supplied with the greatest iture of vital energy in the various proce of the digestive chemeitry. But good cooking must not only render food digestible; it must make it at the

NOTICE OF SALE

Dated this 15th day of May, A. D. 1894

During the last two years I have sent out a great many accounts for small amounts at considerable trouble as well as expense in the way of rostage, etc., the greater number of which have not yet been settled. I am, therefore, compelled to ask all those indebted to me for medicine to settle their accounts

On or Before the 1st July, next, as on that date all accounts remaining unsettled will be sued for without further notice. I will be glad in the future as in the past to accommodate customers who do not find it convenient to pay for their medicine as they require it, but I must first insist that all outstanding debts be
