At the regular quarterly meeting of the Board of Directors of the late Hon. A. G. Blair at the instance of Mrs. McLellan, widow of the late Hon. David McLellan, formerly provincial secretary in the Blair government, Messrs. Blair and McLellan were stockholders in the Caribou Gold Mining Co., of Nova Scotia, and finally obtained full control of the same with Mr. McLellan as president. Mr. Blair acted in the capacity of trustee, although it is alleged he had no power from the company to do so. The claim is based on the belief that Mr. Blair sold the McLellan shares and that Mrs. McLellan never received a proper accounting.

HUSBAND RUNS AWAY FROM HIS SICK WIFE

Pale and emaciated as the result of weeks of trials and tribulations a woman was taken into a Jewish home at 608 Main street to be cared for until arrangements could be made to have her sent to the hospital.

The woman's name is Mrs. Bokowski, an Austrian. According to her story she is without support, her husband having deserted her.

About a week ago the man suddenly disappeared from St. John and left his wife with no means of support. At the time she was in confinement and she believes that he left to avoid paying doctor's bills. On one previous occasion it is said that her husband left her in similar circumstances and did not return until she had recovered.

Last night the police were notified of the woman's condition and it was arranged for her to stay over night at 608 Main street. A permit to enter the Alms House will be applied for today.

GOOD PROGRESS MADE AT BEULAH CAMP

BROWN PLATS, July 6.—The Reformed Baptist church of Beulah camp is making good progress in its work.

On Sunday resolutions were passed, thanking the railways and steamship companies for giving reduced rates, and J. P. Bullock, of St. John, took his personal work at the camp and for his contributions.

The temperature was debated at length. It was pleasing to the Alliance to find that all attempts to beat down the Scott Act, the only law we have to protect our homes from the ravages of rum, have been unsuccessful. Reference was made to the brave struggle of the women of the world in Woodstock, Sussex, Moncton and other towns.

Delegates are arriving by every boat. The visit of Evangelist Morrison is looked forward to with delight.

HOUSE FAT—A VITAL PROBLEM

Shall a fat woman decide during the summer months to sit on the porch or on the lawn, or shall she take off her heavy garments and make a little room at the expense of a few pounds more of house fat? Here is a problem as momentous as Hamlet's "To be or not to be."

Hamlet ended where he began, however, whereas fat folks can solve their problem. All one has to do is take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of the following simple, harmless remedy. It is known as Marmola. A ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 4 ounces Sirup Simplex, and in a reasonable time the loss of fat should amount to 15, or even 16 pounds a year. This home method of reducing flesh quickly and safely gets results without disturbing one's regular diet or the formation of wrinkles, and these advantages, which are not to be despised, are gained with the use of a small sum, make this receipt unique.

TRURO MAN WATCHED SMALL BOY DROWN

TRURO, N. S., July 6.—A colored boy named Jewell, eleven years old, son of Stewart Jewell, young street, was drowned in a pool in Victoria Park this afternoon. The little fellow was playing about the bank of what is known as the Lily Cauldron, a pool formed by the whirling action of the stream as it rushes over a short ledge of rock.

The boy fell in and two young ladies walking by a few minutes afterwards noticed the boy lying on the bottom. One of them wanted to go in, but was dissuaded by her companion. Finally, presently a man came along and was shown the still twitching body. He removed his shoes and took off his watch from his pocket. By this time the drowning boy's struggles had ceased and the man concluded it would be no use wetting his clothes. He then went for a pole and returned ten minutes afterwards and fished out the body.

A doctor was summoned and worked for a long time to resuscitate the lad without effect. The rescue of the child could easily have been accomplished, as the water deepened gradually to the bottom not quite five feet deep. Inquest tomorrow.

AMERICAN SHIP BUILDING.

1566 New Vessels Were Built This Year, Establishing Records.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 6.—This has been a record year for American ship building. Eleven hundred and fifty-one sailing and steam vessels, aggregating 500,327 tons, and 355 unrigged vessels, of a total tonnage of 88,990 tons, have been constructed during the fiscal year ending yesterday. This is a total of 1,506 vessels, having a tonnage of 588,317. The centre of the industry has been on the great lakes.

Last year the total tonnage of vessels constructed was 510,985, representing 1,264 vessels, of which 989 were sailing vessels. The largest annual output heretofore was in the year 1855, when 2,024 vessels, of 525,429 tons were built. In that year the great lakes built only 263 vessels, of 45,423 tons.

This year steel vessels built numbered 142 of 417,157 gross tons, compared with 340,553 tons built last year. These two are the years of the largest steel construction in the United States. The tonnage built is entirely for domestic transportation, no vessels exclusively for foreign trade having been built in the United States.

FRENCH MURDER GANG MAKES COURT SUDDER AT STORY

They Vied with One Another in Glorifying in Remorseless Acts.

PARIS, July 6.—A court of justice has seldom listened to a more cold-blooded recital than that of the perpetrators of the atrocious triple murder at Violaines (Pas de Calais) in January, 1906.

The notorious gang of three—fourteen men and thirteen women—are now undergoing trial at Saint Omer, being charged with no fewer than 118 crimes, many accompanied by violence and murder.

The three leading members of this organized band, Abel Pollet, his brother August Pollet, and Constant Vromant, yesterday told the judge in boastful language how they did it.

The aged couple, named Lecocq, 59 and 75 years of age respectively, and their daughter, aged 55, who were living together in the centre of the village of Violaines.

The self-confessed murderers appeared to vie with each other in glorifying in their remorseless brutality. They described how they broke into the house towards midnight, Abel, the chief of the gang, armed with a poker, and Vromant with a heavy iron stove-lid.

Lecocq's daughter gave the alarm, but on getting out of bed she was seized with the poker by Abel, and at the same moment the candle was extinguished. Madame Lecocq, roused by the noise, made a rush for her quarters, but was seized by the head of the gang, and a scene of confusion ensued in the darkness. The murderers slipped in the blood of their first victim, but succeeded in stopping the unfortunate woman before she reached the window. Vromant, feeling her throat, hobbled to the stove-lid, lighting the candle, Vromant dealt the prostrate old woman several more blows, and then went to the adjoining room, where he found August Pollet standing over the half-murdered octogenarian, who had fallen on his knees and sobbed.

"Strike," cried August, "he has got about enough, but finish him off," and Vromant added, "I gave him a tremendous blow with the stove-lid."

Abel, too, answering the Judge's questions, far from denying, was only anxious to magnify his own share in the crime. He vaunted his ruthlessness as the leader of the gang, and described how he spurred on the flagging courage of his confederates.

Addressing the Judge, he added, "When you break into a house to steal, Monsieur le President, and someone cries out, it is too late to run away; you must see the thing through. So I struck, and we all struck. As we had been recognized, we could not hesitate to finish them."

It appears that before finally killing the old man they forced him to tell where his savings were concealed. In the place indicated they found $230 in notes and gold, several valuable antique cups, and a quantity of jewelry. Abel, the ringleader, gave $120 to his accomplices, kept the remainder.

The brothers Pollet, during the hearing of the case, indulged in vehement recriminations, each accusing the other of treachery, and loudly proclaiming to the Court that all were equally guilty.

AN EXPERIMENTAL COLONY OF ANARCHISTS

When Emile Chapelle started an Anarchist colony at Stockol, near Brussels some three years ago he painted on the front of the little cottage which served as his headquarters, a simple reason that few of our people yet have a sufficient mastery of it; but we are all studying it.

Fallen into decay. "It is necessary for our international communication, as you know, that there are anarchists in every land, and besides, we do not believe in the popular conception of patriotism."

Little by little the Anarchists' colony has fallen into decay. Today its members—there were less than twenty in the old days at Stockol—are spread up and down the country doing their work individually.

Last winter and the winter before they got up a theatrical touring company, but expenses were heavy and the Anarchist Amateur Theatre Society put nothing in their pockets.

The one or two militant spirits that remain to run the little printing office and receive casual travellers are high priests of a crumbling altar.—E. Hupers.

MAN'S EQUAL

In another corner of the farmyard one of his lieutenants would expound the same thesis in Flemish, for the principles of liberty and equality were the same in French. Interruptions were plentiful, and the female portion of the audience also had a word to say. The Anarchist said that woman is man's equal, not his inferior; each of the sexes is the complement of the other.

The colony was self-supporting; it had no need of the maintenance of its members, some of whom told me that they had worked as many as sixteen or eighteen hours a day when circumstances required it.

But the day came when the propaganda work proved unpleasant to the neighbors; the large number of people who came on Sunday afternoons included some who did not go to adjoining fields.

NOT WANTED.

Then, again, the landlord found that he wanted the land; perhaps he did not want such "advanced" tenants. They moved to a little village across the other side of the woods. But no land could be obtained, so they were obliged to devote their efforts to outside work.

A black sheep came among the flock, too, and the colonists had to protect themselves in the same way that any organized society protects itself. The policeman was called in.

The colony had its dreamers, who thought more of passing their days discussing Descartes than of mending a chair.

LESSON IN ESPERANTO.

There was no really lazy ones—as there were in many similar colonies; men who argue that "it is only fools and horses that work"—but there were those who were impatient to see immediate results, and, failing, left.

One afternoon when I dropped in on the Anarchist colony, I found Chapelle in front of a roughly improvised blackboard, on which he was writing a lesson in Esperanto—the language which Anarchists are adopting all over the world. Seated around him were a dozen men and women.

"We do not habitually speak Esperanto," said one of the men, "but we have a sufficient mastery of it; but we are all studying it."

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD GIRL ELOPES; MOTHER APPEALS TO POLICE.

Much excitement was aroused in the Syrian district last night when it became known that a Syrian girl, twelve years of age, had eloped with George Mervin, a young man who owns a pool room on the corner of Erin and Brunswick streets.

The mother of the girl, who resides on Brunswick street, was unaware of her girl's intentions, and upon learning the truth cried with grief and indignation up and down the street sobbing.

It appears that Moses has been keeping company with the Syrian girl and it was arranged between them to leave the city yesterday, unknown to the mother, and get married. The girl took the train for Moncton, where undoubtedly by this time the knot has been tied. The Syrian girl appears to be much older than she is.

The mother appealed to the police last night to bring the elopers back, but the pair had already reached their destination.

THEY NEED NOT STARVE.

"There is no reason, save ignorance why shipwrecked sailors die in their open boats of starvation."

The speaker was a botanist. "Let the shipwrecked include a light net in their luggage," he said, "and let them trail net behind them; they will sail or row upon the sea's surface. Every few hours they can haul in and eat some of the small shell-fish or other tiny sea fruit."

"Everywhere the sea's surface teems with animal and vegetable matter capable of sustaining life."

"Notice to Mariners" has been issued in regard to the draught of vessels passing through the Suez Canal. Ships with a draught of 25 feet can now navigate the waterway.

The lowest tide in any large sea is in the Mediterranean. At Toulon there is about four inches, which is the average for the whole Mediterranean.

"You Can Lead a Horse."

Every day in this paper we tell you why we can sell Furniture, Carpets, Oilcloth, etc., at low prices, as we do not have to pay high rents and we buy for cash. Many are taking heed to these little sermons on thrift. If you are not it isn't our fault. You'll some time regret that you didn't let the "horse drink" after we led him to the trough.

DOCK HAND WINS $40,000.

Investment in Lottery Ticket Settles Question of Marriage.

PARIS, July 6.—Fortune has smiled on a young man, a dock hand at Marseilles, who, being out of work there, had gone off to Toulouse last week in search of employment. He was successful in his quest, and proceeded yesterday to La Clotat to bring the cheerful news to a girl to whom he was engaged to be married, and to spend the day with her and her parents, when he found to his joy that they had in even happier surprise in store for him.

He had taken a ticket for the Roubaix lottery, and could scarcely believe his ears when he was told that it had won the big prize of $40,000.
