COUNT CAVOUR'S CONFE ope.—A correspondent Brother Giacomo, who attended the late Count Cavour on his death-bed has had an interview with the Pope, who exhibited some displeasure on the occasion. After having heard the account of the last moments of Count Cavour, and learned that he had made no retractation, the Pope and those who surrounded him were of opinion that the only way of settling the matter was to obtain from the monk an acknowledgment that he had failed in his duty; but this, though threatened with the terrors of the Holy Office, he declined to give. He said, moreover, that he followed the dictates of his conscience, and that he should be glad to see all his parishioners die in as Christian a manner as Count Cavour."

were we not so childiship impatient, were we not willing to wait his time, instead of demanding our own imperative now?—Could we sleep sweetly, and trust Him for the waking? Be the sky bright or cloudy, could we only trust? Ah! many a hard lesson must we learn, many a rebellious tear choke down, many a despairing "why hast thou forsaken me?" stifle, ere we learn that sweet, transpill lesson—"God over all!"

Page, of Washington, communicates the following to the Republican of that city:—
"The following simple remedy, long known in family practice, was recently tried in the camp of the New York Twenty-Second Regiment, where there were from eight to one hundred cases daily of dysentery, and with rapid cures in every case:—

and with rapid cures in every case:

"Recipe.—In a tea-cup half full of vinegar dissolve as much salt as it will take up, leaving a little excess of salt at the bottom of the cup. Pour boiling water upon the solution till the cup is two-thirds or three quarters full. A seum will rise to the surface, which must be removed, and the solution allowed to cool.

"Dose.—Tablespoonful three times a day till relieved.

"The rationale of the operation of this simple medicine will readily occur to the pathologist, and, in many hundred trials, I have never known it to fail in dysentery and protracted diarrhea."

Hope writes the poetry of the boy, but Memory that of the man. Man looks forward with smiles but backward with sighs. Such is the wise providence of God. The cup of life is sweetest at the brim, the flavor Leave Smith's Falls for Perth is impared as we drink deeper, and the dregs are made bitter that we may not struggle as it is taken from our lips.

Vicious habits are so great a stain in human nature, and so odious in themselves, that every rson actuated by the right reason would avoid them, though he were sure that they would be always concealed from God and man, and had no future punishment entailed upon them.

"Jack is a good fellow, but I will not lie for any man. I love my friend but I love the truth still more." "My dear said a by-stander, "consider now! Why should you prefer a stranger to an old acquaintance?"

When a generous man is compelled to give a refusal, he generally gives it with a worse grace than the ungenerous—first because it is against his nature; and secondly because it is out of his practice.
