BEST TOOLS FOR GARDEN

Laying Hens Are More Profitable Than Ever.

Frequent Change of Pasture Protects Lambs from Disease and Ensures Steady Gains — Annual Pasture Has Proven Satisfactory. (Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

MOST gardeners use a hoe, rake, spade, and digging fork in their gardens. The three last are used chiefly during spring preparation of the soil and again in the fall during the harvesting of the crop. The hoe, however, is used almost all summer.

Most people in buying tools simply take what is offered, never considering that in using the heavier types sold in many stores much energy is spent in handling these, that could be used more profitably in doing other garden work. Besides, it is expected that women and children will do much of the garden work this season and it is necessary to give them implements suited to their strength. For these reasons it has been urged on the gardeners to buy a hoe called the triangle, onion or beet hoe, with a cutting edge 4 1/4 inches wide. This hoe is light to handle and does very satisfactory work, especially close in around the plants in the row. With it should be used the "Bucco" type of cultivator with the two outside types removed. These two tools will do better work than any of the ordinary hoes with a great deal less expenditure of strength and in shorter time.

Where one has a larger garden, say 60 x 100 feet, it will be well to invest in a wheel hoe to help out the two above-mentioned tools. With the "Bucco" to make a deeper mulch after a heavy rain or continuous tramping over the soil, the small hoe for those weeding, the wheel hoe makes it much easier to maintain a good mulch during the dry season, thus conserving moisture and advancing plant growth.—A. H. MacLennan, B.S.A., Ontario Vegetable Specialist.

HOT WEATHER POULTRY CALENDAR

The hen that laid 123 eggs in 1917 made the same profit as the 123-egg hen in 1914.

The hen that laid less than 123 eggs in 1917 made a smaller profit than in 1914.

The hen that laid more eggs than 123 in 1917 made a larger profit than in 1914.

In view of the high price of feed can the farmer afford to keep the poor-laying hens in 1918?

The rooster, unless kept for next year's breeding, is too expensive a luxury to keep—and he'll help relieve the meat shortage.

The market for the cull stuff promises to be good this month—and by marketing in June the distribution is more equalized.

The good layer of the yellow-legged breeds at this season loses the color from the feet and bill and these latter becoming almost white. The sleek plumaged, fat yellow-legged hens are usually very poor layers. It will pay to cull them out now.

The abdominal cavity, or the space between the pelvic bones (situated under the tail) and the end of the breast or keel bones should be relatively soft and flexible. If it is full of hard fat the hen is usually a very indifferent layer.

As a rule the earlier maturing pullets are the earlier and most profitable layers. By marking these the best breeders may be selected.

In grading up a laying flock pure-bred eggs should be purchased. From the chicks good female breeding stock may be secured. The male may be secured in very many cases in Ontario, from eggs secured by children taking part in school fairs. Watch the school fair winners this year.

It saves work to let the hens feed themselves. A hopper may be built at home without great expense.

Keep hens that lay over 100 eggs yearly and feed them carefully; kill the rooster and sell infertile eggs; gather the eggs in and keep in a cool place in clean baskets; send the eggs to market quickly and regularly.—Prof. W. R. Graham.

Summer Forage for Lambs

Frequent change of pasture is beneficial to, and relished by, all classes of stock and this applies with special emphasis to the case of sheep. It is true for two reasons. Sheep are subject to parasitic disease which may be prevented to a large extent by not pasturing on any one area for too great a length of time. In addition to this they are possibly more fastidious about their food than some other farm animals. It is not practical on every farm to arrange for a succession of pastures during the grazing season. However, the same area will sustain considerable more sheep if such an arrangement is feasible.

Rye sown early in the fall furnishes a good deal of pasture in the late fall and early spring. After the rye is eaten off in the spring rye may be sown on this land and will come along for pasture in June or July. Alfalfa and red clover are satisfactory pasture crops and will serve until the rye is ready. An annual pasture consisting of one bushel each of wheat, oats and barley together with eight pounds of red clover provides a good pasture for the early summer months, and the clover coming along in the autumn will give a nice picking. This annual pasture may be sown any time early in May. Without a great deal of additional labor it is possible to have a succession of crops ready for seeding throughout the entire season. The increase in health and condition of the flock will amply repay any such outlay of time and expense.—J. P. Sackville, B.S.A., Ontario Agricultural College.

DELCO-LIGHT

ELECTRICITY FOR ANYONE-ANYWHERE

Here's a letter from a local user of DELCO-LIGHT

Glencoe, April 1st, 1918.
A. Pollard, London.
Dear Sir:—I have had one of your Delco light plants installed since August, 1917, which supplies light to two large residences and has given entire satisfaction and has not caused any trouble. Any boy can run it. We have also in use a vacuum sweeper which the plant operates to perfection. It also supplies heat for ironing. The cost is very light considering that two families use the light. The cost since August has been less than $8.00, or $4.25 each, and I consider the light is the best in existence, more steady and brilliant, although soft on the eyes. Respectfully yours,
R. W. OXLEY.
