When someone walks out... who walks in?

The door slams . . . a mother hugs her children closer . . . and maybe one of them starts to weep.

It's all over.

Why? Who can tell? They don't know—people can't see clearly when they're looking through tears.

But this much we know. Someone has to help families like this in our town. Someone has to step in and gather up the pieces, and slowly, understandingly, put them all together again.

Our Red Feather services do just that . . . prevent family crack-ups or repair them. Think of those agencies and the job they do when you make your pledge this year. Then give enough to feel good.
