Negro School Tops Veterinary Field

There are only 20 schools of veterinary medicine in the United States and Canada. Five are in the South. Two are in Alabama. Only one, the Tuskegee School of Veterinary Medicine, is located at a predominantly - Negro school and it is a fully-accredited, dynamic force in the field.

The Tuskegee school which was founded 16 years ago under the administration of former President Frederick D.

HOW HE CAME

He did not go to the temple through,
A-risen, victorious King,
He did not seek those who sought His death,
His judgment on them to bring.

He came to those who had loved their Lord,
He came in a kindly way,
And a woman who wept for a master slain,
Beheld Him, at dawn of day!

He came to disciples filled with fear,
And showed them His hands and side,
He walked with two on a country road,
In the quiet of eventide.

A Guest He was in a humble home,
Where the housewife the meal had spread,
They knew their Lord by His wounded hands,
When He graciously broke the bread.

Hewaited, not in a kingly guise,
On the shore of the Syrian sea,
To disciples wearied with fruitless toil,
A Helper again was He!

We know that He is the Lord of all,
His kingdom will have no end,
And we know He still is our comrade, too,
Our Loving, our faithful Friend!

—Elsie Duncan Yale.

Patterson (a veterinarian), stresses quality and blue-ribbon performance. Dean Theodore S. Williams believes that a combination of circumstances has made it possible for the school to turn out superior graduates. He stresses the low teacher-student ratio and emphasizes the school's theme of "maximizing the pragmatic." He adds: "We started out with the basic philosophy that if (a student) graduated, we would not have to apologize for him."

Graduates of the school have justified the faith of the founders. Most of the 142 graduates are in private practice, but a large number hold responsible positions as inspectors and researchers with federal and state government agencies and private industry. "There are far more places of employment," says Dr. Williams, "than we have graduates."

Are Negroes "missing the boat" in veterinary medicine? Dean Williams thinks so. "The biggest idea about this is that (veterinary medicine) is a terrific opportunity for young Negroes. This is one the young Negroes are asleep on . . . I don't know of a Negro veterinarian who graduated from anywhere who is walking the street."

Students at the Tuskegee School of Veterinary Medicine accept the field as an unusual challenge. John P. Beckley, freshman student and former practicing pharmacist in Washington, D. C., says: "There is more challenge in diagnosing an animal than in diagnosing human beings . . . Human beings diagnose their own cases when they talk to the medical doctor. Animals can't talk."
