Technical and Bibliographic Notes / Notes techniques et bibliographiques

The Institute has attempted to obtain the best original copy available for filming. Features of this copy which may be bibliographically unique, which may alter any of the images in the reproduction, or which may significantly change the usual method of filming, are checked below.

L'Institut a microfilmé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été possible de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-être uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifier une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de filmage sont indiqués ci-dessous.

The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

National Library of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol  $\rightarrow$  (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol  $\nabla$  (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Bibliothèque nationale du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole  $\rightarrow$  signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole  $\nabla$  signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

HYMN TO APOLLO.

Written in the third century, B.C., discovered at Delphi in 1893, the text restored by M. H. Weil, and the music transcribed by M. T. Reinach.

---

I will sing in praise of the glorious son of Zeus!
Who dwellest on the snowy peak of the hills,
Where in sacred oracles to mortal men,
Thou dost proclaim tidings prophetic from the divine tripod seat.
Thou hast driven forth from his place the dragon who watched over the shrine,
And with thy darts hast forced him to hide far in the dark underwood.
Muses came from deeply wooded Helicon,
Beautiful fair-armed daughters, of the loud-singing god dwelling there;
Praising their noble kinsman, even Phoebus, with golden hair,
To the lyre, singing their songs.
He wavers over the twin-headed peak of Parnassus,
And he haunts the rocky places round about famous Delphi.
And Castalia's plentiful springs, full of waters deep and clear,
And presides over Delphi with its oracle true in prophecy.
Come then Attica's noble daughters, come,
Ye who dwell in Tritonis' plain, safe from death-dealing shaft;
Incense and sacrifice offering, Hephaestus kindles sacred fire,
Burning on the altar limbs of bulls,
While the smoke rises and reaches to Olympus;
And from the flute's powerful voice come forth melodious tones, spreading around,
And the lyre's golden notes join in the hymns, aiding in melody,
While, in a throng, Athens sends chosen bands unto the shrine.

Quod faustum felixque omnibus vortat precor
 In scena datur hic vobis Macci fabula,
 Quae quadringentis ante lustris edita
 Antiqua in Roma est urbium celeberrima ;
 Iis temporibus quo loco nunc luditur
 Undique patebant vastae solitudines ;
 Nec spectatorum tunc erat qui crederet
 Trans tanta ignota maria post tot secula
 Fore voluptati genti longinquae ac novae,
 Cui tum frequentes plauderent, comoediam.

Nunc etiam accessit copula altera insuper,
 Qua consociatur cum veteribus seculis
 Nostra academia laude floescens nova,
 Quod praegredientes ceteris coloniis,
 Quot a Britannis sunt ubique conditae,
 Nuper fundatae tulimus auxilium scholae,
 Despectat urbem qua superbus Parthenon
 Matrem artium olim dictam et eloquentiae.

Rudens ab ipso nomen fabulae inditumst
 Agitur Cyrenis res, Graccorum in oppido ;
 Actorum partes accipietis postibi.

Novam rem ordimur ; alios speramus fore
 Exemplum nostrum qui secuti postea
 Alias spectandas praebeant hic fabulas ;
 Libet recordari hic mihi, hoc ut in oppido
 Alia loquentes lingua stirpe alio viri
 Nobile Thebanam facinus ausam virginem
 Graccorum veterem fabulam celebraverint.

Nunc ut Academia haec precamur floreat
 Studiis et ludis, comitate et moribus.
 Quid plura? scitis ipsi quanta gloria Adepti ruper simus id quod omnibus
 Qui folle ludunt praemium proponitur.

Nec praeteribo ceteris hoc additum
 Vitae ornamentis quod nunc hic studentibus
 Aedicula praesto est parva, ubi omnibus licet
 Aequales inter libere versarier,
 Serere sermones mutuos, necnon bene
 Cenare parvi, mox speramus parvulo
 Huic successurum maius et speciosius
 Hospitium, quale in usum mulierum modo
 Donavit nostri praesidis benignitas.

Accessit aliis hoc novum miraculum
 In medio campo cernere est cotidie
 Ingens alumnorum atque alumnarum manus
 Ut certet aequor glacie solidum verrere
 Tenui munita ferre crepidatos pedes.

Imperium nunc precamur ut Britannicum
 Pari augeatur gloria ac concordia
 Porro ut regina quae tot illustres avos
 Tam longo cursu regni uicit prosperi
 Omnes ubique reges atque principes
 Ut jam virtute sic superet potentia ;
 Cuius legatus clarus in republica
 Praesens nobiscum celebrat hunc festum diem.

Valete : Arcturum huc advenientem conspicio.

THE ARGUMENT.

Recovered from the ocean lies a wallet which contains,
Unknown to him who drew it out, intent upon his gains,
Designs in cunning workmanship, a little axe and sword,
Erstwhile the trinkets of a maid, the daughter of his lord ;
Nigh carried off in slavery, but shipwrecked here instead,
She, by the trinkets recognized, is to her lover wed.

THE PROLOGUE.

ARCTURUS.

Of the company of the celestials am I, a comrade of Jove, who sways all peoples and seas and lands. I am, as you see, a constellation, lustrous with a bright star, which ever rises in its season. Arcturus is the name I bear on earth, and in heaven. By night I shine conspicuous in the sky among the gods; my path lies among mortals in the day. Other constellations, too, descend from heaven to earth. Jupiter the lord of gods and men—he it is who stations us throughout the world, one here, one there, to take knowledge of the conduct, character, righteousness and fealty of mortal men, that every one may meet with his deserts. When men institute fraudulent actions on false witness, and when before the magistrate they deny on oath a deposit, their names we enter and report to Jove. Day by day he knows who is plotting mischief here below. When men seek to win a suit by perjury—rascals that they are!—or when by fraud they gain their cases before a judge, the judgment given he judges once again: far heavier the fine he orders than what they reap as litigants. The good he keeps entered on another list. And if the rogues take it into their heads that they can propitiate Jupiter with offerings and sacrifice, they lose their pains and their money too. The reason is this: no sacrifice is acceptable to Jove from a perjurer.

Facilius siqui pius est a dis supplicans
 Quam qui scelestust inueniet ueniam sibi.
 Idcirco moneo uos ego hoc, qui estis boni
 Quique aetatem agitis cum pietate et cum fide :
 Retinete porro, post factum ut laetemini. 30
 Nunc, huc qua causa ueni, argumentum eloquar.
 Primumdum huic esse nomen urbi Diphilus
 Cyrenas uoluit. illic habitat Daemones
 In agro atque uilla proxuma propter mare,
 Senex qui huc Athenis exul uenit, hau malus. 35
 Neque is adeo propter malitiam patria caret :
 Sed dum alios seruat, se inpediuit interim,
 Rem bene paratam comitate perdidit.
 Huic filiola una uirgo periit paruola :
 Eam de praedone uir mercatur pessumus : 40
 Is eam huc Cyrenas leno aduexit uirginem.
 Adulescens quidam ciuis huius Atticus
 Eam uidit ire e ludo fidicinio domum.
 Amare occepit : ad lenonem deuenit,
 Minis triginta sibi puellam destinat 45
 Datque arrabonem et iureiurando adligat.
 Is leno, ut se aequomst, flocci non fecit fidem
 Neque quod iuratus adulescenti dixerat.
 Ei aderat hospes par sui, Siculus senex,
 Scelestus Agrigentinus, urbis proditor : 50
 Infit lenoni suadere, ut secum simul
 Eat in Siciliam : ibi esse homines uoluptarios
 Dicit : ibi eum potesse fieri diuitem. 55
 Persuadet. nauis clanculum conducitur.
 Quidquid erat noctu in nauem conportat domo
 Leno : adulescenti, qui puellam ab eo emerat,
 Ait sese Veneri uelle uotum soluere 60
 (Id hic est Veneris fanum) atque adeo ad prandium
 Vocauit adulescentem huc. ipse hinc ilico
 Conscendit in nauem, auehit mulierculas.

Sooner will the prayer of the righteous prevail with the gods than the prayer of a villain. And so this is my advice to you who are good and live in all righteousness and fealty: Be steadfast in your course that you may have joy in the end. Now—and for this reason have I come—I will set forth our argument

First of all, then, Cyrene was the name given by Diphilus to this city. Yonder dwells Daemones, in the country, in a cottage hard by the sea—an old man who came into exile here from Athens: not a bad man, either. Bad! 'Twas no vice of his that drove him from his home; in attempting to save others, he became involved himself; 'twas kindness that reft him of the estate he had honourably acquired. His only daughter he lost when she was quite a little girl. An arrant scoundrel of a dealer bought the maid from the man who had kidnapped her and carried her here to Cyrene. A young Athenian, a fellow-citizen of hers, saw her going home from her music-school—'twas love at first sight! He goes to the dealer, buys the girl for thirty minæ, makes a payment on account, and gets the seller to swear to his bargain. The dealer, just as you would expect, did not care a straw for his promise or for what he had said to the young man on oath. He had a friend of the same stamp as himself, an old Sicilian,—a villain who would sell his country. This man begins to recommend the dealer to go with him to Sicily, telling him that gay fellows live there, and that he can make a heap of money. His advice is taken, and they secretly hire a vessel. All his belongings the dealer ships from his house at dead of night, telling the young man who had bought the girl from him that he was wishful to perform a vow to Venus (this is her temple here), and, besides, he has asked our young friend here to lunch. Immediately the dealer goes on board ship and carries off the maidens. The young man hears from others

Adolescenti alii narrant ut res gesta sit :
 Lenonem abiisse. ad portum adolescens aduenit,
 Illorum nauis longe in altum abscesserat. 66
 Ego quoniam uideo uirginem asportarier,
 Tetuli ei auxilium et lenoni exitium simul :
 Increpui hibernum et fluctus moui maritimos.
 Nam Arcturus signum sum omnium unum acer-rumum : 70
 Vehemens sum exoriens, quom occido uehementior.
 Nunc ambo leno atque hospes, in saxo, simul
 Sedent eiecti : nauis confractast eis.
 Illa autem uirgo atque altera itidem ancillula
 De nauis timidæ desuluerunt in scapham. 75
 Nunc eas ab saxo fluctus ad terram ferunt,
 Ad uillam illius, exul ubi habitat senex,
 Quoius deturbauit uentus tectum et tegulas.
 Et seruos illic est eius qui egreditur foras.
 Adolescens huc iam adueniet, quem uidebitis, 80
 Qui illam mercatust de lenone uirginem.
 Valete, ut hostes uostri diffidant sibi.

how things have gone,—the dealer was off! He comes to the harbour, and behold! the ship had got far out to sea. As for me, when I saw the girl being carried off, I brought aid to her, and at the same time destruction to the dealer. I blew a wintry blast and tossed up the billows of the main. Arcturus, the most turbulent of all the constellations, am I—tempestuous at my rising, and at my setting more tempestuous still. Now, both the dealer and his friend are sitting side by side upon a rock on which they have been thrown. Their ship has been dashed to pieces. The girl, however, and with her a young friend, have jumped from the ship into a boat. And now the waves are bearing them shorewards from the rock to the old man's cottage, where he is living in exile; its tiled roof has been whisked off by the gale. See, there is his slave, coming out of doors. The young man will soon be here—you will see him—the one who bought the girl from the dealer. So Good-bye, and God confound your foes!

ACT I.

SCENE I.

(Enter SCEPARNIO (R.) from the cottage of DAEMONES, spade in hand.)

Sc. Heavens above us! what a storm Neptune let loose upon us last night! The wind took the roof off the house—wind did I call it? no wind, but a regular tragedy tempest of Euripides; in such wise has it whisked off every single tile. It has made the house better lighted than ever, with the windows it has put in.

SCENE II.

(Enter PLESIDIPPUS (L.), from harbour, accompanied by three friends, wearing chlamydes and bearing swords.)

Pl. Well, I have taken you from your business, but I have not succeeded in the purpose for which I have brought you here: I could not catch the dealer at the harbour. Still, I determined not to give way to any laziness or despair on my own part, and so I have kept you waiting, good friends, longer than I meant. Now, I have come here to visit Venus's temple, where the fellow intended to offer sacrifice, as he told me.

Sc. I shall be a fool if I don't get this clay ready—it'll be the very death of me, else.

Pl. Somebody or other is talking close to me here. (Enter DAE. from cottage, R.)

DAE. Holloa! Sceparnio!

Sc. Who is calling me?

DAE. The man who bought you.

Sc. I suppose you mean to say I'm your slave.

DAE. We want plenty of clay, so dig deep. The whole cottage must be roofed in, I see; for, as it stands, it is more full of holes than a sieve.

Pl. Good-day, father—and so to both.

DAE. Good-day to you.

- SC. Sed utrum tu masne an femina's, qui illum patrem Voces? PL. Vir sum equidem. SC. Quære, uir, porro patrem : 105
- DAE. Filiolam ego unam quam habui, eam unam perdidit.
Virile sexus numquam ullum habui. PL. At di

- SC. Tibi quidem hercle, quisquis es, magnum malum, Qui oratione hic occupatos occupes.
- PL. Isticine uos habitatis? SC. Quid tu id quaeritas? 110 Quo mox furatum uenias uestigas loca?
- PL. Peculiosum esse addecet seruum et probum, Quem ero praesente praetereat oratio,

PL. A man, on my word.

PL. Well, but the Gods will give you one.

DAE. Hold your tongue, Sceparnio! What do you want, young man?

PL. Perdition to catch that slave of yours who is in such a desperate hurry to get in the first word when his master is here. But, if you don't mind, I should like to ask you one or two questions. DAE. At your service, busy as I am.

DAE. (to Sc.) Silence! (to Pl.) Do you say what you wish.

DAE. Plenty of them! Why, it is just by such scamps that my life has been ruined.

PL. I mean here—one who has brought two young women to Venus's temple and was preparing to offer sacrifice, to-day or yesterday.

PL. This fellow has been jeering at me most shamelessly.

DAE. Good gracious! what men are those, Sceparnio, along the shore. I take it, they have been wrecked at sea.

SC. Right you are—and our cottage has been wrecked on shore, tiles and all.

DAE. Whew! Poor souls, what a plight! They are overboard, and how they swim! PL. Dear, dear, where are they?

DAE. Here to the right: don't you see them along the shore?

PL. Why, so I do! (to friends.) Follow me! If only it were the man I seek, that accursed wretch! Take care of yourselves! (Exeunt PLESIDIPPUS and friends to shore, L.) SC. We won't forget that, even without a hint from you. But, O Palaemon, Neptune's holy comrade, what is this I see? DAE. What do you see?

SC. I see two girls sitting in a skiff by themselves. How they are tossed about, poor things! Good, good, excellent! A wave has sheered the skiff from the rock to the shore. No helmsman could possibly have made a better course of it. I don't believe I ever saw a bigger sea. They are all right, if only they get clear of yonder surf. Now is the crisis—now! One of them is washed out by the wave. But she is in shallow water; now she'll easily get ashore. Bravo! she is on her feet and is coming our way. All's well! But the other has leapt ashore from the skiff. See how the poor frightened thing has fallen on her knees in the water! She's all right; she has made her way out and now she's ashore. Ah, she has turned to the right and is going to perdition. Dear me! she'll have a pretty ramble this day. DAE. What's that to you?

SCENE III.

(Enter PALAESTRA from shore, L.)

PA. Man's lot is far less wretched in the telling than the measure of sorrow that falls to his share in real life. Can some deity or other have designed that I, in such a guise as this, should be cast upon this unknown shore, a timid girl? Was it for this—woe is me!—that I was born? Is this the reward I am to get for my great goodness? It would not be hard for me to bear this hardship, if towards parents or towards heaven I had ever acted undutifully. But I have been particularly careful to avoid such conduct: surely, then, all undeservedly and ungently are ye Gods dealing with me. What guerdon will the wicked have hereafter, if innocence is to be rewarded in this way by you? If I were conscious of any sin of mine or of my parents, I should be less sorry for myself. But it is my master's sin that pursues me; his wickedness it is that afflicts me. His ship and all he had he has lost in the sea; this is the sorry remnant of his estate. Ampelisca, too, my companion in the boat, has been washed away. I am now alone. Were she but saved, she would help to lighten my distress. But, as it is, what hope or aid or plan can I find, left thus mistress of this lone, lone spot? On this side, rocks; on that, the sounding sea—and not a soul is nigh! These clothes I wear are positively all I have. I have no idea where I can get food or lodging. What hope have I that should make life worth living? I don't know this place. I never saw it before. Would that somebody would only show a road or path away from here! At present, I have no notion which way to turn, nor is there anywhere at hand a sign of cultivation to be seen. Cold, distraction, fright—there is nothing I'm not a prey to. Of all this, dear parents, you are unaware; alas! you do not know that I am at this moment in such a plight as this. I was of the gentlest of gentle birth, but all in vain. Now how am I less a slave than if I had been slave-born? No comfort has all this ever been to those who brought me up.

SCENE IV.

AM. Could I do anything better or anything more fitting, than make away with myself? So wretched is my life, and so many deadly distresses crowd my heart. It has come to this,—I reckon not aught of life: gone is the hope with which I solaced myself. All around I have wandered, searching every nook, to find my partner in captivity, calling for her, looking for her, listening for her, so as to track her out. Nowhere can I find her, nor can I make up my mind where to go or where to continue my search. Nor can I find anybody anywhere to answer my questions. Surely no desert is more deserted than is this spot and the country round. If she is alive, as long as I live, I will never give up my search.

PA. Whose voice is this that I hear hard by? I am all of a tremble.

AM. Who is speaking so near?

PA. Kind Hope, come to my aid, I pray thee!

AM. Do tell me where you are.

PA. Well, I am in a sea of trouble.

AM. I'm in the same case, nor is my share less than yours. But I am dying to see you.

AM. Let us move forward to where the voice comes from. Where are you?

PA. Here I am! Do you come and meet me.

AM. That's just what I'm doing. PA. Reach me your hand.

AM. There it is. PA. Do tell me! are you alive?

AM. You make me in love with life again, now that I can touch you. I can hardly believe that I have got you. Do take me in your arms, I pray you, dearest. How in a moment you lighten all my load!

AM. What can't be cured must be endured. But, dear me, what have we here ?

PA. Where ?

AM. Do you see this temple, my dear ?

PA. Where ?

AM. On the right.

PA. The place I see is fit for the gods themselves.

AM. There must be somebody not far from here—the spot is so charming.

PA. I pray the God, whoever he may be, to deliver us from this distress ; to lend us a helping hand in our misery, helplessness and woe.

SCENE V.

(Enter PTOLEMOCRATIA from the temple, c.)

Pt. Who be these that have a boon to ask of my patroness ? Suppliant voices have brought me out. The goddess they seek is kind and compliant, an ungrudging mistress, and gracious indeed.

PA. Good-morrow to you, mother.

Pt. Good-morrow, maidens. But whence come you, pray, with dripping garments, in such sorry guise ?

PA. We are just come from quite close by, but far away off from here is the place we sailed from.

Pt. You mean that on shipboard you made your way across the tracks of the blue sea ?

PA. Just so.

Sc. Then were it more fitting for you to come in garments white and bringing victims. This temple is not wont to be visited after such a fashion.

PA. When two women have been shipwrecked, where, pray, would you have them get the victims from ? Now we clasp

ACT II.

SCENE I.

(Enter Fishermen, R., coming from the town to their morning's work on the shore, L.)

F. Poor folks have in every way a wretched life of it, especially when they have nothing coming in and have not learnt any trade. Needs must they be content with what they have. From our get-up you can at once pretty well guess the extent of our wealth. These hooks and these rods are all we have to earn our living by. Day after day we go down to the sea here from the town to get supplies. This is all the athletics and sports we come in for. Sea-urchins, limpets, oysters, barnacles—we catch 'em all—shell-fish, stinging ray, mussels, striped flat-fish. And then we fall to fishing with hooks and from the rocks. The meals we eat we get from the sea. If we have no luck and never a fish comes to our net, very Knights of the Bath we go stealing home and so to bed supperless. And now, with the sea so rough, we can't look for a catch. Unless we get some shell-fish, no supper for us! Now to kind Venus here let us pray that this day may bring us right good luck.

SCENE II.

(Enter TRACHALIO, R., from the town, in search of his master, PLESIDIPPUS.)

TR. I have kept a sharp look-out, so as not to pass my master anywhere. When he went out a little time ago, he said he was going to the harbour. As for me, he told me to meet him here at Venus's temple. But, I say, just in the nick of time, there are fellows of whom I may inquire. I'll

F. Just like fishermen, dying of hunger and thirst!

315 Tr. I say, have you seen a young fellow come here while you were by? a brisk-looking, ruddy, stout youth, with a company of three, dressed in cloaks and carrying swords?

F. We don't know of anyone answering to your description having come here.

Tr. Or a bald-headed, snub-nosed old fellow, well set-up, pot-bellied—a beetle-browed, scowling rascal, the abomination of Gods and men—curse him!—a sink of iniquity and villainy, with two rather pretty girls at his heels?

for him to make straight for the hangman than for Venus's temple.

Tr. Do tell me if you have seen him.

F. He has certainly not been here at all, take our word for
it. Good-bye. (Exeunt FISHERMEN to shore, l.)

325 Tr. Good-bye to you! I thought as much. It has happened just as I expected: my master has been taken in, and that scoundrel of a dealer has fled the country. He's gone aboard ship and taken the girls with him. O my prophetic soul! He invited my master to luncheon here—the fountain of iniquity that he is! Now, what better course for me than to wait here until my master comes? In case I come across her, I'll take the opportunity to see whether the priestess of 330 Venus here knows anything more. She will tell me.

SCENE III.

(AMPELSCA enters from the temple, c., carrying a pitcher in her hand.)

3 AM. I see; you'd have me knock at the cottage next to Venus's temple and ask for water?

Tr. Whose voice is wafted to my ear?

- Vox mi aduolauit? AM. Obsecro, quis hic loquitur quem ego uideo?
- TR. Estne Ampelisca haec, quae foras e fano egreditur? AM. Estne hic
- Trachalio, quem conspicio, calator Plesidippi? 335
- TR. East. AM. Is est: Trachalio, salue. TR. Salue, Ampelisca:
- Quid tu agis? AM. Aetatem haud malam male. TR.
Melius ominare.
- AM. Verum omnis sapientis decet conferre et fabulari.
Sed Plesidippus tuos erus ubi amabo, est? TR. Heia uero,
- Quasi non sit intus. AM. Neque pol est neque huc quidem ullus uenit. 340
- TR. Non uenit? AM. Vera praedicas. TR. Non est meum, Ampelisca.
- Sed quam mox coctumst prandium? AM. Quod prandium, obsecro te?
- TR. Nempe rem diuinam facitis hic? AM. Quid somnias, amabo?
- TR. Certe huc Labrax ad prandium uocauit Plesidippum, Erum meum erus uoster. AM. Pol haud miranda facta dicis: 345
- Si deos decepit et homines, lenonum more fecit.
- TR. Non rem diuinam facitis hic uos neque erus? AM.
Hariolare.
- TR. Quid tu agis hic igitur? AM. Ex malis multis metuque summo
- Capitalique ex periculo orbas auxiliique opumque huc Recepit ad se Veneria haec sacerdos me et Palaestram. 350
- TR. An hic Palaestrast, opsecro, eri mei amica? AM.
Certo.
- TR. Inest lepos in nuntio tuo magnus, mea Ampelisca.
Sed istuc periculum perlubet quod fuerit uobis scire.

AM. Mercy on us! who is speaking? Whom do I see?

TR. Can this be Ampelisca coming out of the temple?

AM. Can this be Trachalio whom I behold—Plesidippus's man?

TR. 'Tis she.

AM. 'Tis he. Good-morrow, Trachalio.

TR. Good-morrow, Ampelisca! Well, how are you?

AM. Sadly, in life's gay morn!

TR. Hush!

AM. In talking to one another, every sensible person ought to speak the truth. But where, my dear sir, is your master Plesidippus?

TR. Fie! fie! just as if he were not inside there!

AM. Indeed he's not; he has not been here at all.

TR. Not been here?

AM. And that's the truth!

TR. An unusual thing for me. But how long is it till lunch?

AM. Mercy me! what lunch?

TR. You are offering sacrifices here, aren't you?

AM. What are you dreaming about, my dear sir?

TR. All I know is that your master, Labrax, invited my master, Plesidippus, here to luncheon.

AM. Well, there's nothing odd about that. If he has swindled gods and men, he has done no more than dealers usually do.

TR. Are you not offering sacrifices here—you and my master?

AM. You are a teller of dreams.

TR. What are you doing here, then?

AM. Out of the depths of woe, from the extremity of fear and from mortal peril we were harboured here by Venus's priestess, Palaestra and I, helpless and destitute.

TR. Mercy me! is my master's friend, Palaestra, here?

AM. She is.

TR. What a delightful bit of news, Ampelisca mine! But I should dearly like to know what that peril of yours was.

AM. Confractast, mi Trachalio, hac nocte nauis nobis.

TR. Quid nauis? quae istaec fabulast? AM. Non audiuisti, amabo,

Quo pacto leno clanculum nos hinc auferre uoluit
In Siciliam et quidquid domi fuit in nauem inposiuit?
Ea nunc perierunt omnia. TR. Io! Neptune, salue:

Ne te aleator nullus est sapientior. profecto
Nimis lepide iecisti bolum: perierum perdidisti.

Sed nunc ubist leno Labrax? AM. Periiit potando, opinor:

Neptunus magnis poculis hac nocte eum inuitauit.

TR. Credo hercle, anancaeo datum quod biberet. ut ego amo te,

Mea Ampelisca: ut dulcis es: ut mulsa dicta dicis.
Sed tu et Palaestra quo modo saluae estis? AM. Scibis faxo.

De naui timidae ambae in scapham insuluimus, quia
uidemus

Ad saxa nauem ferrier: properans exolui restim, Dum illi timent. nos cum scapha tempestas dextro-uorsum

Differt ab illis. itaque nos uentisque fluctibusque Iactatae exemplis plurumis miserae perpetuam noc-tem:

370

Vix hodie ad litus pertulit nos uentus exanimatas.

TR. Noui, Neptunus ita solet: quamuis fastidiosus Aedilis est: si quae improbae sunt merces, iactat omnis.

AM. Vae capiti atque aetati tuae. TR. Tuo, mea Ampelisca.

375

Sed nunc ubist Palaestra. AM. I sane in Veneris fanum huc intro:

Sedentem flentemque opprimes. TR. Vt iam istuc mihi molestumst:

AM. Trachalio, our ship was wrecked last night.

TR. Ship? What are you talking about?

AM. Did you not hear, my dear man, how the dealer was going to take us off on the quiet from here to Sicily, and how he put on board ship all his belongings? They are now at the bottom of the sea, all of them.

TR. My blessing on you, good Neptune! Faith, you are the cunningest of dicers! 'Twas a very pretty cast of yours. You have wrecked the wretch. But where now is the dealer Labrax?

AM. He has drunk himself to death, I fancy. Neptune treated him to regular bumpers last night.

TR. Yes, indeed, he did get something to drink—no heel-taps! How fond I am of you, Ampelisca! How nice you are! Your words are like honey! But how did you and Palaestra get saved?

AM. I'll tell you. We jumped in a fright, both of us, into the boat, because we saw that the ship was running on the rocks. I hurried to loose the rope; panic had seized the crew. The storm drove us in our boat away from them to the right. And so we were tossed by wind and wave, enduring every form of wretchedness the whole night long. To-day the wind just managed to carry us ashore, more dead than alive!

TR. Yes, yes; that's Neptune's way! He is quite the most particular of inspectors. Whenever he finds good-for-nothing stuff, he pitches it overboard.

AM. Plague take you!

TR. And you, too, Ampelisca dear! But where is Palaestra?

AM. Just go into Venus's temple here and you'll find her sitting crying.

TR. I am sorry for that. But what are the tears for?

- Sed quid flet? AM. Ego dicam tibi: hoc sese ex-cruciat animi,
 Quia leno ademit cistulam ei, quam habebat ubique
 habebat,
 Qui suos parentis noscere posset: eam ueretur
 Ne perierit. TR. Vbinam ea fuit cistellula? AM. 399
 Ibidem in naui
 Conclisit ipse in uidulum, ne copia esset ei Qui suos parentis nosceret. TR. O facinus impudi-cum,
 Quam liberam esse oporteat, seruire postulare.
 AM. Nunc eum cum naui scilicet abisse pessum in altum. 395
 Et aurum et argentum fuit lenonis omne ibidem.
 TR. Credo aliquem inmersisse atque eum excepisse.
 AM. Id misera maestast,
 Sibi eorum euenisse inopiam. TR. Iam istoc magis usus factost,
 Vt eam intro consolerque eam, ne sic se excruciet animi.
 Nam multa praeter spem scio multis bona euenisse. 400.
 AM. At ego etiam, qui sperauerint spem decepisse multos.
 TR. Ergo animus aequos optimumst aerumnae condimentum.
 Ego eo intro, nisi quid uis. AM. Eas. ego quod
 mihi imperauit
 Sacerdos id faciam atque aquam hinc de proxumo rogabo.
 Heus, ecquis in uillast? ecquis hoc recludit? ecquis prodit?

SCEPARNIO. AMPELISCA.

- SC. Quis est qui nostristam proterue foribus facit iniuriam, II 4 AM. Ego sum. SC. Hem, quid hoc bonist? eu, edepol specie lepida mulierem. 415

AM. I'll tell you. She's racked by the thought of the dealer having taken away a casket of hers in which she kept the tokens whereby she might be able to discover her parents. She's afraid it is lost.

TR. Where, then, was the casket?

AM. On board the ship with them. Labrax stowed it away in his wallet to prevent her from getting at what would help her to find her parents.

TR. What a scandalous shame to want to make a slave of a girl who ought to be free!

AM. Now, it is plain that the wallet has gone to the bottom in the ship; and all the dealer's gold and silver was inside.

TR. Perhaps somebody has dived in and got it out.

AM. This is just why the poor girl is so unhappy; her belongings are lost to her.

TR. Then all the more reason for my going in and comforting her; I must keep her from distressing herself. Be sure, "Thousands have blessings won beyond their hopes."

AM. Say rather, "Hope hath befooled a thousand votaries."

TR. But, "A cheery heart goes all the way and savours every sorrow."

TR. I am going in unless I can do anything for you. (Exit TRACHALIO into temple, c.)

AM. Yes, go! I'll do what the priestess bade me, and beg a little water from the neighbours here. She said they would give it at once, if I mentioned her name. Ho there! Is any one at home? Open the door, won't you? Is no one coming?

SCENE IV.

(Enter SCEPARNIO from cottage, r.)

SC. Who is this that does despite to our door in such headstrong fashion?

AM. It is I.

SC. Holloa! Here's a bit of luck! Well, by my troth, a pretty woman!

AM. Salue, adulescens. SC. Et tu multum salueto, adulescentula.

Sed quid ais, mea lepida, hilara? AM. Ah, nimium familiariter

420

Me atrectas. SC. Pro di immortales, Veneris ecfigia haec quidemst.

Vt in ocellis hilaritudost: heia, corpus quouis modi: Subuolturiumst—illud quidem 'subaquilum' uolui dicere.

AM. Nunc, quam ob rem huc sum missa, amabo uel tu mi aias uel neges.

430

SC. Quid nunc uis? AM. Sapienti ornatus quid uelim indicium facit.

SC. Meus quoque hic sapienti ornatus quid uelim indicium facit.

AM. Haec sacerdos Veneris hinc me petere aquam iussit cito.

SC. At ego basilicus sum: quem nisi oras, guttam non feres.

Nostro illum puteum periculo et ferramentis fodimus. Nisi multis blanditiis a me gutta non ferri potest.

AM. Quor tu aquam grauare amabo, quam hostis hosti commodat?

SC. Quor tu operam grauare mihi, quam ciuis ciui commodat?

AM. Immo etiam tibi, mea uoluptas, quae uoles faciam omnia.

SC. Eugepae, saluos sum: haec iam me suam uoluptatem uocat.

Dabitur tibi aqua, ne nequiquam me ames. cedo mi urnam. AM. Cape:

Propera amabo ecferre. SC. Manta: iam hic ero, uoluptas mea.

AM. Quid sacerdoti me dicam hic demoratum tam diu?

Vt etiam nunc misera timeo, ubi oculis intueor mare.

Sed quid ego misera uideo procul in litore?

450

AM. Good-day to you, young man!

SC. And a very good-day to you, young woman! But, I say, my pretty sweet—

AM. Go along! You make too free with me!

SC. Heavens above! Why, here we have the very image of Venus! See her sweet smiling eyes! Jove, what a figure!—black as bruin,—I beg pardon, I meant to say bruinette.

AM. Come now, you'll oblige me by giving me an answer, yea or nay, to my errand.

SC. Well, what do you want?

AM. A sensible person would only have to look at this to see what I want.

SC. And a sensible person would only have to look at me to see what I want.

AM. The priestess of Venus here has sent me to get some water from you.

SC. Ah, but I'm master here! If you don't beg of me, you'll not get a drop. It was at our own charges and with our own tools that we dug that well there.

AM. Why do you make a fuss, my dear man, about water—a favour which strangers freely give to strangers?

SC. Why do you make a fuss about a favour which friend freely bestows on friend?

AM. Nay, then, sweetheart, I'll do anything you like to oblige you.

SC. Bravo! I'm all right!—she has taken to calling me her sweetheart. You shall have your water. I couldn't let you love me for nothing. Reach me your pitcher!

AM. There it is! Make haste and bring it out, there's a good man!

SC. Wait, I'll be back in a moment, sweetheart! (Exit SCEPARNIO into cottage, R.)

AM. How can I excuse myself to the priestess for having stopped so long? What a wretched fright I get into, even now, when I cast my eyes upon the sea! But what, alas, do I behold yonder upon the shore? My master, the dealer, and Meum erum lenonem Siciliensemque hospitem,

 Quos periisse ambos misera censebam in mari.
 Iam illud mali plus nobis uiuit quam ratae.
 Sed quid ego cesso fugere in fanum ac dicere haec Palaestrae, in aram ut confugiamus prius quam is huc 455
 Scelestus leno ueniat nosque hic opprimat ?

SCEPARNIO.

Pro di immortales, in aqua numquam credidi, II 5
 Voluptatem inesse tantam : ut hanc traxi lubens!
 Nimio minus altus puteus uisust quam prius. 460
 Vt sine labore hanc extraxi ! praefiscine,
 Satin nequam sum, ut pote hodie amare inceperim ?
 En tibi aquam, mea tu belliata : en, sic uolo
 Te ferre honeste, ut ego fero, ut placeas mihi.
 Sed ubi tu's delicata ? cape aquam hanc sis. ubi's ? 466
 Amat hercle me, ut ego opinor : delituit mala.
 Vbi tu's ? etiamne hanc urnam acceptura's ? ubi's ?
 Commodule ludis. tandem uero serio.
 Etiam acceptura's urnam hanc ? ubi tu's gentium ?
 Nusquam hercle equidem illam uideo : ludos me
 facit. 470
 Adponam hercle urnam iam ego hanc in media uia.
 Sed autem quid si hanc hinc abstulerit quispiam
 Sacram urnam Veneris ? mi exhibeat negotium.
 Metuo hercle ne illa mulier mi insidias locet,
 Vt comprehendar cum sacra urna Veneria. 475
 Nempe optumo me iure in uinclis enicet
 Magistratus, si quis me hanc habere uiderit.
 Nam haec litteratast : eapse cantat quoa sit.
 Iam hercle euocabo hinc hanc sacerdotem foras,
 Vt hanc accipiat urnam. accedam huc ad fores. 480
 Heus, exi, Ptolemocratia, cape hanc urnam tibi :

his friend from Sicily, both of whom, alack, I thought had been lost at sea! Well, well, so much more trouble for us than we had thought! Don't let me lose a moment in fleeing into the temple and telling Palaestra, so that we may take refuge at the altar before this scoundrel of a dealer comes and finds us here. [Exit AMPELISCA into temple, c.]

SCENE V.

(Enter SCEPARNIO from cottage, r.)

Sc. Heavens above us! I never thought that water was so delightful! How my heart was in the drawing of it! Methought the well was ever so much shallower than before. How easily I drew it! save the mark! Am I not a dog of a fellow for never having fallen in love till this day? Here's the water for you, my beauty! There! that's how I would have you carry it—properly—as I do—and so will you gain my good graces. But where are you, honey? Here, take the water, won't you? Where are you? She's in love with me: by the powers, I really believe it! She's playing hide-and-seek, the rogue! Where are you? Are you not going to take this pitcher? Where have you got to? A passable joke! But now, really and truly, are you going to take this pitcher? Where in the world are you? Faith, I don't see her anywhere; she's making fun of me. Faith, I'll put the pitcher down here, right in the middle of the road. But softly! What if somebody should make away with it, this sacred pitcher of Venus? He would get me into a mess! Faith, I'm afraid that this woman is setting a trap for me to have me arrested with the goddess's sacred pitcher in my hand. Sure enough, the magistrate would have the best of grounds for locking me up and taking my life, if anybody saw me with it in my possession! Why, there's writing on it: that tells to whom it belongs. I' faith, I'll call the priestess out here to take the pitcher; I'll go up to the door. What ho! come out, Palaestra, and take this pitcher of yours!

Muliercula hanc nescio quae huc ad me detulit.
Intro ferundast. repperi negotium,
Si quidem his mihi ultro intro adgerunda etiamst aqua.

LABRAX. CHARMIDES.

- LA. Homo qui sese miserum et mendicum uolet, II 6
Neptuno credat sese atque aetatem suam : 406
Nam si quis cum eo quid rei commiscuit,
Ad hoc exemplum amittit ornatum domum.
Sed ubi ille meus est hospes qui me perdidit?
Atque eccum incedit. CH. Quo malum pro-peras, Labrax ?
Nam equidem te nequeo consequi tam strenue.
- LA. Vtinam te prius quam ego oculis uidissem meis
Malo cruciatu in Sicilia perbiteres, 495
Quem propter hoc mihi optigit misero mali.
- CH. Vtinam quom in aedis me ad te adduxisti tuas
In carcere illo potius cubuissem dic :
- LA. Malam fortunam in aedis te adduxi meas.
Quid mihi scelesto tibi erat auscultatio ?
Quidue hinc abitio? quidue in nauem inscensio?
Vbi perdidisti etiam plus boni quam mihi fuit.
- CH. Pol minime miror, nauis si fractast tibi, 505
Scelus te et sceleste parta quae uexit bona.
- LA. Pessum dedisti me blandimentis tuis.
Mendicitatem mi optulisti opera tua,
Dum tuis ausculto magnidicis mendaciis. 515
- CH. Bonamst quod habeas gratiam merito mihi, Qui te ex insulso salsum feci opera mea.
- LA. Quin tu hinc is a me in maxumam malam cruccem.
- CH. Eas : easque res agebam commodum.

Some young woman or other brought it here to me. I must take it in-doors. My work's cut out for me, if I must carry the water for them into the bargain. (Exit SCEPARNIO into temple, c.)

SCENE VI.

(Enter LABRAX from the shore (L.), followed after a brief interval by CHARMIDES.)

LA. Anybody who wants to be a poor wretch of a beggar should just hand himself over, body and soul, to father Neptune. When a fellow has anything to do with him, this is the sort of quandary in which he lands him at home. But where is that friend of mine who has been the ruination of me? See him! there he comes!

CH. Where the mischief are you hurrying to? Why, I can't keep up with you at such a pace.

LA. How I wish that before I ever set eyes upon you, you had come to a bad end in Sicily, you gallows-bird! 'Tis all owing to you that this trouble has fallen on my unhappy head.

CH. How I wish that on the day when you brought me to your house, I had rather made my bed in the common jail!

LA. 'Twas an evil day for me when I brought you to my house. What possessed me ever to listen to you, or to go away from here, or to go on board ship?—where I have lost all I ever owned, and more too.

CH. 'Pon my word, I am not a bit surprised at the ship's being wrecked, when it carried a rascal like you and your rascally gains.

LA. You have done for me with your wheedling talk. It is all owing to you that I've been reduced to such a beggarly state, listening to your high-sounding mis-statements.

CH. You have every reason to feel obliged to me, for its owing to me that you have developed such a pretty wit.

LA. You go and be hanged!

CH. Go yourself! That is just what I was about to say.

- LA. Eheu, quis uiuit me mortalis miserior? 520
 CH. Ego multo tanto miserior quam tu, Labrax.
 LA. Qui? CH. Quia ego indignus sum, tu dignu's qui sies.
- LA. O scirpe, scirpe, laudo fortunas tuas,
 Qui semper seruas gloriam aritudinis. 525
 CH. Equidem me ad uelitationem exerceo :
 Nam omnia corusca prae tremore fabulor.
- LA. Edepol, Neptune, es balineator frigidus :
 Cum uestimentis postquam abs te abii, al-algeo.
 Ne thermopolium quidem ullum in-instruit :
 Ita salsam praehibet potionem et frigidam. 530
 CH. Vt fortunati sunt fabri ferrarii,
 Qui apud carbones adsident : semper calent.
- LA. Vtinam fortuna nunc anetina ut-uterer, Vt, quom exissem ex aqu-aqu-aqua, ar-arerem
 tamen. 535
 CH. Quid si aliquo ad ludos me pro manduco locem?
 LA. Quapropter? CH. Quia pol clare crepito dentibus.
- Iure optumo me el-el-elavisse arbitror.
 LA. Qui? CH. Qui-quia auderem tecum in nauem ascendere,
 Qui a fundamento mi usque mouisti mare?
 LA. Eheu, redactus sum usque ad unam hanc tuni-culam
 Et ad hoc misellum pallium : perii oppido. 550
 CH. Vel consociare mihi quidem tecum licet :
 Aequas habemus partis. LA. Saltem si mihi
 Mulierculae essent saluae, spes aliquae forent.
 Nunc si me adulescens Plesidippus uiderit,
 Quo ab arrabonem pro Palaestra acceperam, 555
 iam is exhibebit hic mihi negotium.
 CH. Quid, stulte, ploras? tibi quidem edepol copias, Dum lingua uiuet, qui rem soluas omnibus.

520

LA. Alack, alack ! Show me a more miserable wretch than I.

CH. I am this much more wretched than you, Labrax—

LA. How ?

CH. Because I haven't deserved it and you have.

LA. Happy, happy the lot of those rushes there that ever keep so jolly dry !

CH. Faith, I'm getting into trim for a word-scrimmage ; I'm trembling so that every syllable I utter has the shivers.

LA. On my conscience, Neptune, you are a chilling bathman : when I leave you, even with my clothes on, I ch-ch-chatter with cold. Not even hot drinks anywhere does he s-s-s-supply. Such a briny draught he provides, and with a chill on, too !

CH. Lucky fellows, blacksmiths, sitting ever beside the fire ! They're always warm.

LA. Would that I were a d-d-d-duck, so that when I came out of the water I should be as d-d-d-dry as ever !

535

CH. What if I were to hire myself out as a bogey at some show ?

LA. What for ?

CH. Because my teeth chatter so loudly. It serves me quite right. I deserve to be cl-cl-cl-cleaned out.

LA. How so ?

CH. B-b-because I was fool enough to go on board with you. 'Tis you who have turned the sea upside down for me.

LA. Alack ! I am reduced to this bit of a shirt and this scurvy cloak. I am utterly done for !

CH. I'll go into partnership with you, if you care to ; we are both in the same boat.

LA. If only the girls were safe, there would be something to hope for. As things are, if young Plesidippus catches sight of me—he who gave me part-payment for Palaestra—he'll lose no time in making things hot for me !

CH. What are you blubbering about, you ass ? You will always have enough, heaven knows, to pay your debts in full with, so long as you have that tongue of yours in your head.

SCEPARNIO. LABRAX. CHARMIDES.

- SC. Quid illuc opsecro negotist, quod duae mulierculae II 7
 Hic in fano Veneris signum flentes amplexae tenent, 560
 Nescio quem metuentes miserae? nocte hac uero

 Se iactatas atque eiectas hodie esse aiunt e mari.
- LA. Opsecro hercle, adulescens, ubi istae sunt quas memoras mulieres?
- SC. Hic in fano Veneris. LA. Quot sunt? SC. Totidem quot ego et tu sumus.
- LA. Nempe meae? SC. Nempe nescio istuc. LA. Qua sunt facie? SC. Scitula. 565
- LA. Nempe puellae? SC. Nempe molestus es: i, uise, si lubet.
- LA. Meas oportet intus esse hic mulieres, mi Charmides.
- CH. Iuppiter te perdat, et si sunt et si non sunt tamen.
- LA. Intro rumpam iam huc in Veneris fanum. CH. In barathrum mauelim. 570
 Opsecro, hospes, da mihi aliquid ubi condormiscam loci.
- SC. Istic ubi uis condormisce: nemo prohibet, publicumst.
- CH. At uides me ornatus ut sim uestimentis uuidis.
 Recipe me in tectum, da mihi uestimenti aliquid
 aridi,
 Dum arescunt mea: in aliquo tibi gratiam referam loco.
- SC. Tegillum eccillud: mihi unum id aret: id si uis, dabo. 576
 Eodem amictus, eodem tectus esse soleo, si pluit.
 Tu istaec mihi dato: exarescent faxo. CH. Eho, an te paenitet,
 In mari quod elauit, hic in terra ni iterum eluam?

SCENE VII.

(Enter SCEPARNIO from temple, c.)

Sc. Mercy o' me! what's ado there? Two girls in this here temple tightly clasping Venus's statue! They are in tears, poor things, and there must be somebody or other that they are afraid of. Last night, they say, they were storm-tossed; they were cast ashore this morning—that's their story.

LA. Do tell me, I beg, young man, where are these women you speak of? Sc. Heie in Venus's temple.

LA. How many of them are there?

Sc. As many as you and I together.

LA. They're mine, I'm sure? Sc. I'm sure I can't tell.

LA. What do they look like? Sc. Very nice girls.

LA. They're young girls, I'm sure?

Sc. I'm sure you're a nuisance. Go and look for yourself, if you want to.

LA. These girls inside here must be mine, friend Charmides.

CH. Deuce take you in either case, whether they are or whether they are not.

LA. I'll fling myself at once into the temple. (Exit LABRAX into temple.)

CH. I had rather you'd fling yourself to perdition. (To SCEP.) I pray you, sir, give me some corner to sleep in.

Sc. Sleep where you are—anywhere you like—no one will hinder you: it's a thoroughfare.

CH. Nay, but you see what wet clothes I've got on. Take me indoors and give me some dry clothes while mine are drying. Some day I'll do as much for you.

Sc. See, here's a wrap! 'Tis the only thing I have that's dry. I'll give it you, if you like. This serves me for coat—yes, and for great-coat, too, when it rains. Give me your toggery; I'll have it dried.

CH. 'Sdeath! Are you not satisfied after I have been cleaned out at sea but that I must be cleaned out on shore again?

- SC. Eluas tu an exunguare, ciccum non interduim. 580
Tibi ego numquam quicquam credam nisi si accepto pignore.
Tu uel suda uel peri algu, uel tu aegrota uel uale.
Barbarum hospitem mi in aedis nil moror : sat li-

Non est misericors. sed quid ego hic asto infelix uuidus? 585
Nunc lenonem quid agit intus uisam, conuiuam meum.

580 Sc. Whether you are cleaned out or wiped out, I don't care a pip. I'll never entrust anything to you without getting a pledge from you. You can frizzle or freeze to death ; you can be well or ill—I want no guests from foreign parts in the house, and there's an end of it! (Exit SCEPARNIO into cottage, R.)

585 Ch. So you're off, are you? That man, whoever he is, has been a slave-trader. He hasn't a spark of pity. But why am I standing here, poor soaked wretch that I am? Now I'll go see what my friend the dealer is doing. (Exit CHARMIDES into temple, C.)

ACT III.

SCENE I.

(Enter DAEMONES from his cottage, R.)

DAE. Strange are the ways that the gods have of playing tricks on men. Even when we sleep they will not let us rest. Now, last night, for instance, I had a strange, uncanny dream. An ape, methought, was trying to climb up into a nest of swallows: but she could not clear them out. Thereupon, I thought the ape came up to me and begged for the loan of a ladder. I made answer to the ape as follows: Swallows, I said, were the descendants of Philomela, an Athenian. I charged the ape not to do any harm to my fellow-countrymen. With this she became much more aggressive. She looked as if she were actually going to give me fits. She summoned me into court. Then, somehow or other, methought in anger I seized the brute round the waist—I succeed in chaining the villainous beast. Now, as to what this dream may portend, I have been unable, so far, to divine. But what racket is this getting up in Venus's temple hard by? I'm all amaze.

SCENE II.

(Enter TRACHALIO from the temple (C) in great haste.)

help to the helpless and aver! a dastardly deed! Champion my cause, that the might of the wicked shall not prove stronger than that of those blameless ones who shrink from the distinction of being the victims of an outrage! Make an example of insolence and reward virtue. Enable us to live here according to law rather than under the constraint of brute force. Hasten to Venus's temple here! Again I implore your aid, you who are standing here near at hand, and who hear my cry. Come to the rescue of those who, claiming a time-honoured privilege, have entrusted their fortunes to the protection of Venus and her priestess. Choke off this outrage before it can touch your own marrow.

DAE. What's the matter there?

TR. Claspng you by the knees, I beseech you, sir, whoever you are—

DAE. Never mind my knees, and let me know what this uproar is about.

30
TR. I beg and beseech you, if you are hoping to have plenty of silphium and assafœtida this year and to get your consignments to Capua safe and sound, and never to suffer from rheumy eyes—

DAE. Are you in your right mind?

TR. If you are hoping for a good harvest of seed, don't hesitate, good sir, to give the aid I beg.

DAE. And I beg and beseech you by your shanks and shins and your hide, too, unless you want to have fine crops of elm rods and lashes this year,—tell me what the cause of all this uproar is.

35
TR. Why should you give me the rough side of your tongue? I wished you nothing but good luck.

640 DAE. But I am giving you the smooth side of my tongue, when I pray that you may get your deserts.

TR. Well, look to this, I beg you. DAE. What's the matter?

TR. There are two innocent girls inside here who need help of you. In defiance of law and justice, they have been scandalously maltreated in Venus's temple—and it's still going on. Besides, the priestess of Venus is being shamefully handled.

645 DAE. What villain has the effrontery to lay violent hands on a priestess? These girls, who are they? what wrong is being done to them?

TR. Listen to me and I'll tell you. They're clinging to Venus's statue; at this very moment the brazen-faced rascal is bent on tearing them away. By rights they should both be free.

650 DAE. Who is the man that holds the gods so cheap?—briefly now.

TR. A very sink of iniquity and crime, blood-guiltiness and perjury! A lawless, shameless, dirty, most obscene rascal—in a word, a trafficker in human beings. What need of further description?

655 DAE. That's the description of one who would be the better for a horse-whipping.

TR. Yes, and the wretch took the priestess by the throat.

DAE. By the powers, he will pay dear for that! (goes to the door of his cottage.) Come out here, Turbalio, Sparax! where are you? TR. Go inside, pray, and rescue them.

DAE. Must I speak twice? this way.

TR. Come on now; tell them to knock his eyes out just as cooks do to cuttle-fish. (Exit DAEMONES into temple, and slaves (LORARI) follow him.)

DAE. Pull him out by the feet, just like a stuck pig.

TR. (listening.) Hark at that noise! They are taking their fists to the dealer, and I fancy he is getting a good combing down. I only hope they have knocked the rascal's teeth down his throat. But, see, there are the two girls coming out of the temple, scared and pale as death.

(PALAESTRA and AMPELISCA rush out of the temple in despair.)

PA. Now, now are we bereft of every resource and aid, and destitute of help and protection. There is no hope; there is no way of deliverance, and we know not where to turn our steps.

AM. Alas, we are now in an extremity of fear, both of us. Such brutality, such outrage has just been offered us inside here by our own master.

PA. Yes, and the infuriated wretch has hustled the aged priestess up and down in the most shameful manner, and has dragged us by force from the statue in the inmost shrine.

AM. As things are and as our fortunes now stand, we might just as well be dead. There is no remedy in misfortune better than death.

TR. What's the matter? What sort of talk is that? Let me hasten to comfort them. Ho, Palaestra!

PA. Who calls?

TR. Ampelisca!

AM. Who' calls my name?

TR. Look round, and you'll know.

PA. O promise of deliverance!

TR. Hush! Keep up your spirits. Just sit down here. I will protect you from this quarter, come what may. Let this altar be your castle. This hand shall guard it. I will defend you on this side. By Venus's help, I will out-general the slave-dealer's evil strategy.

AM. and PA. (kneeling before the altar.) We obey; and, gracious Venus, we both implore thee, and, clasping this thine altar, in tears and on bended knee, beseech thee to take us under thy protection and keep us safe. TR. Venus, methinks their prayer is reasonable. 'Twere meet for thee to grant their petition; fitly mayst thou pardon them. Fear forces them to this step. But, see, yonder comes the old man in the very nick of time—my protector and yours.

SCENE IV.

(Enter DAEMONES from the temple (c.), followed by LABRAX in the custody of the LORARI.)

DAE. Out of the temple there, you most impious of scoundrels ever born! (To the girls.) Do you go and sit down by the altar. But where are they?

TR. Look here, this way.

DAE. Capital! exactly as I wished. Only let him come near them. (To LABRAX.) Do you expect us to look on while you outrage all that is holy? (To slaves.) Give him one between the eyes! (They beat him.)

LA. You shall pay for this affront.

DAE. What, does the rascal venture to threaten?

LA. I am robbed of my rights. You are robbing me of my girls in my own despite.

TR. Name an arbitrator from the senate of Cyrene—a responsible man—to decide whether these girls ought to be your slaves or ought to be free, and whether you ought not to be clapped into prison—there to lie until you have worn out your cell.

LA. I did not come prepared to day to hold converse with a gallows-bird. (To DAEMONES.) I appeal to you, sir.

LA. My business is with you.

TR. Nay, you must deal with me. Are these girls yours?

LA. Yes.

TR. Come on then! Just you touch one of them with the tip of your little finger!

LA. What if I do?

TR. Zounds! I'll hang you up for a punching-bag—right off, and pummel you with my fists, you liar!

LA. Can't I take away my own girls from the altar?

DAE. You can't! There is a law in our country—

LA. I've nothing to do with your laws. I will take both of them away at once.

DAE. Just you begin to offer them the least little bit of indignity, even in fun, and I'll send you home such a beauty that you won't know yourself.

LA. This is assault and battery.

TR. Assault and battery, you scoundrelly scamp?

LA. Such impudence to me, you double-dyed villain?

TR. All right, I am a double-dyed villain—and you are a highly honourable gentleman. Is that any reason why these ladies should not have their freedom?

LA. Freedom, say you?

TR. Yes, and what's more, they are your betters, and come of the pure Greek stock, for this one here is a native of Athens, of free-born family.

DAE. What's that you're saying?

TR. (pointing to Palaestra.) This is a free-born lady of Athens.

DAE. Dear me! is she a country-woman of mine?

TR. Don't you belong to Cyrene?

DAE. No, I was born, bred and brought up at Athens—Athens in Attica.

DAE. O daughter mine, as I look upon this maid, the memory of one who is far away brings back my grief. I lost her when she was three years old, and now she must be just that age, I am sure, if she is alive.

LA. I paid money down for both of these girls to the master who owned them. What care I whether they were born at Athens or Thebes, so long as they are my lawful property?

TR. Say you so, knave?

DAE. (aside.) When I put two and two together, this must be the ape that wants to snatch these swallows from their nest in my despite—as I dreamed in my dream.

TR. I have a favour to beg of you, sir. Keep those girls safe, guard them from ill-usage, while I go and fetch my master.

DAE. Go find him and bring him here.

TR. But don't let him—

DAE. He'll get it precious hot if he lays a finger on them, or tries to.

TR. Be watchful!

DAE. That's all right, you be off!

TR. Keep an eye on this rascal as well, that he doesn't give you the slip. We have promised the hangman an Attic talent if we fail to produce him this day.

SCENE V.

DAE. Which will you have, dealer—take a thrashing to make you quiet or keep quiet without one? Take your choice!

LA. I don't care a jot for your threats. I will carry off both of them, willy, nilly!

LA. Alack, alack, what a fool I was to lose my head-piece on board ship! It would come in handy at this moment, if it were to the fore. Well, I may, at least, go up and speak to them.

DAE. No, you may not! (Enter TURBALIO, bearing two clubs.) Ha, ha! Here comes my club-man, i' faith, in the very nick of time.

LA. I' faith, my ears begin to tingle at that.

DAE. Here, Sparax! Take one of those two clubs there! Here, stand one of you on this side—the other on that! As you are, now, both of you! Attention! If the rascal lays a finger upon those girls this day against their will, and you fail to take your will of him with your clubs, till he doesn't know his way home—then it's all up with both of you. If he accosts either of them, do you answer in her name from where you stand. If, on the other hand, he tries to make off from here, do you lay about his shins with your clubs, there and then, with all your might.

LA. What! are they not to let me budge from here?

DAE. I have spoken. And when Trachalio gets here with his master—he has gone to fetch him—then do you both come indoors without delay. Be very careful about this, if you please.

LA. Odds clubs! How quickly these here temples change hands. A moment ago our patron saint was the Queen of Hearts,—now it is the King of Clubs, to judge by the two club-armed effigies which this old gentleman has set up. I' faith, I know not where in the world to be off to. Things are hot for me now, either way—sea and shore alike. Palaestra!

Lo. What is it?

LA. You get out! I'm not friends with you! That's not my Palaestra who answers. Ho, Ampelisca!

Lo. Just you keep out of mischief!

LA. Pretty good advice from poltroons,—so far as that's possible! But, ho you there!—will there be any harm if I go a bit nearer to them?

Lo. O, you may go, if you like.

LA. It's very good of you ; I am much obliged. I had rather not go. Do you stay just where you are. Gad ! I've had wretched luck at every turn. I am determined to keep up the siege to-day, till I gain the victory over them.

PL. And so the dealer tried to tear my lady from Venus's altar by might and main, did he ?

TR. That's so.

PL. Why didn't you slay him on the spot ?

TR. I hadn't a sword.

PL. You should have got hold of a club, or else a stone.

TR. What ! would you have me chivy him with stones, as though he were a dog, arrant rascal that he is ?

LA. (catching sight of him.) Gad ! I'm done for now. See, here's Plesidippus. He'll make a clean sweep of me now, to the last speck.

PL. And you tell me they were sitting at the altar—the girls—when you started to find me ?

TR. Yes, and they're sitting there still.

PL. Who's looking after them now ?

TR. Some old gentleman or other—Venus's next-door neighbour—he has been extremely attentive. At this moment he and his slaves are looking after them. I put them in his charge.

PL. Take me straight to the dealer. Where is the fellow ?

LA. Good morning.

PL. Plague take your good mornings ! Quick ! Make your choice—will you be rushed off to prison by the scruff of the neck, or will you wait to be arrested ? Choose, while you may.

LA. Neither, please.

PL. What a question! Was it not you who got me to give part-payment for the woman, and then carried her off?

LA. I did not carry her off. PL. Why deny it?

LA. Faith, because I brought her on; unfortunately, I could not carry her off. I told you I would be on hand at 865 Venus's temple. I'm keeping my word, am I not? I'm here?

PL. You can state your case at the station; we've had enough chatter here. Come along! (lays hold of him.)

LA. (aloud.) To the rescue, Charmides, I beg of you! I am being rushed off to prison by the nape of the neck.

CH. (Entering from the temple. c.) Who is shouting for me?

LA. Just look at the way they're rushing me off.

CH. I'm looking; it's a pleasing spectacle.

LA. Won't you try to rescue me?

CH. Who is it that's hustling you away?

LA. Young Plesidippus.

CH. Well, you've made your bed and you must lie on it.
875 If you have to go to the lock-up, you may as well put a good face on it. Luck has put in your way what many a man earnestly desires. LA. What's that?

CH. Why, to reach his proper goal.

LA. Come with me, there's a good fellow.

CH. Just like you! You're being run in, and you are begging me to go along with you.

PL. Palaestra dear, and Ampelisca, too, stay just where you are till I come back.

LO. Really, sir, I recommend that they come to us rather, 890 till you get back. PL. All right.

LA. Dear friend—(To Charmides.)

CH. I'm not your dear friend; I renounce your friendship.

LA. Is it thus you spurn me?

CH. Yes, that's my line: once bit, twice shy. (PLESIDIPPUS drags LABRAX off. The LORARI and the women go into Daemones' cottage, r.) For all that I'll go and give him my backing, in the hope that I may help to get him more quickly—convicted.

895 DAE. It's a good thing that I helped these girls to-day, and I'm glad of it. I've chanced on a couple of protégées, both of them young and pretty. But that shrew of a wife of mine keeps her eye on me at every turn, to prevent me from making the slightest sign to my young friends. Well, I wonder what on earth my man Gripus is up to—he went off to the fishing late at night. Gad! he would have had more sense, if he had slept in his bed at home. For as it is, he's fooling away his energies, and his nets too, to judge by the weather now and over-night. I'll fry on my fingers his whole day's catch, there's such a heavy sea running. But here's my wife, calling me to lunch. I'll to the house. She'll soon be stuffing my ears with her empty chatter. (Exit DAEMONES.)

My smack, too, is safe and sound; though there was a heavy sea on, it brought me a strange take and a rich one. It's marvellous and past belief, the lucky catch that I've had. And yet I haven't taken an ounce weight this day, barring what I carry here in the net. I jumped with right good will out of bed, at dead of night, thinking more of gain than of sleep and rest. It was foul weather, but I was bent on trying to make things easier for my poor master and his slave as well. I did not spare myself, I tell you. A lazy servant is not worth his salt—that's the kind I utterly abominate. You must do with little sleep, if you mean to get through with your work betimes. You can't wait for your master to prod you on to your work. Why, your lie-a-bed makes nothing by his snoozing, and suffers for it. Look at me, now! I was up and doing, and so I have found something that will let me take it easy, if I like. This I found in the sea—whate'er it be, 'tis wondrous heavy. Gold! there must be gold inside, and not a soul knows anything about it except myself. Now, Gripus, now's your time to get magistrate and people to give you your freedom. Here's my notion of what I'll do. I'll go to my master, like the clever crafty fellow that I am. I will make him short offers for my freedom; then, when I'm a free man I'll get me lands and houses and slaves. I'll build great liners, and do a big trade. I'll be Sir Gripus—with the best of them! Next, for my pleasure, I'll build a yacht and play Stratonicus doing the grand tour. When I have made a name for myself, I'll build a great big city and call it Gripusville, to immortalize my glorious career; there will I found a great empire. Such vast designs do I cherish in my heart. For the nonce, I shall put this wallet out of sight. (Takes his breakfast out of his scrip and looks at it.) But poor Sir Gripus must have vinegar and salt to his lunch and go without a relish.

GR. There was quite a storm yesterday. Nary a fish have I got, young man; don't you be looking for any. It's a drenched net that I'm taking home—don't you see?—none of the finny tribe.

TR. Gad-zooks! I don't want any of your fish. I just want a little talk with you.

GR. I loathe the very sight of you, whoever you are.

TR. That wallet there—I have known its owner for ever so long.

GR. What's that?

TR. Yes, and how it was lost.

GR. Ah, but I know how it was found and I know the man that found it, and I know who owns it at this moment. That's nothing to you—any more than what you said is anything to me. I know who owns it now. You know who owned it before. Nobody will get it from me—you take your oath on that!

TR. Won't the owner get it if he should come?

GR. Owner? Never a mother's son is the owner of this, you bet! I got it at the fishing.

TR. Say you so?

GR. A fish in the water—could you call that mine? When I catch it, if I do catch it, it becomes mine. I treat it as my property. No one can lay a finger on my fishes or claim a share of them. I sell them all in open market as my own wares. The sea is surely open to everybody.

TR. It is.

GR. Then, why, I ask, shouldn't this wallet be open to me?

GR. I can't control my catch. When I let down net and line, I pull up the catch, whatever it is. All's fish that comes to my net,—and it all belongs to me.

TR. No, by the powers, it does not!—when you catch a bag, for instance.

GR. O you sophist!

TR. But you, you miracle-monger, have you ever seen a fisherman catch a wallet-fish or put one on the market? You must either show me what a wallet-fish is like, or else you'll not walk off with a thing that wasn't grown in the sea and hasn't got scales.

GR. What! Have you never heard tell of the wallet-fish till now?

TR. You rascal!—there's no such thing!

GR. Yes, but there is! I'm a fisherman, and I know. But 't isn't often caught. There's no fish they take so few of.

TR. Bosh! Do you think you are able to gull me, you gallows-bird? What colour is it?

GR. It's only quite little ones that are caught of this colour. There are others with a bright red skin, big ones, and there are black ones too.

TR. Yes, yes. I' faith, I've a notion that you'll be turning into a wallet-fish unless you look out. That hide of yours will be red, yes, and black and blue too.

GR. And I stark mad, but not so mad as to let go this wallet. Do you want to fight?

TR. What's the use. Hadn't we better go halves?

GR. Now I'm off (going off.)

TR. But I will put the ship about, so that you'll have to bring up where you are.

GR. If you are to be bow-oar aboard this craft of yours, I'll take the helm. Let go the rope, you rascal.

TR. I will: you drop the wallet.

GR. Gad-zooks! you will never be one scrap the better for this to-day.

TR. Say "no" as often as you like, you can't get over me—unless you go shares or refer the matter to an arbitrator or put the article in the hands of a receiver.

GR. What, when 'twas I that fished it up at sea—

TR. But 'twas I that watched you from the shore.

GR. With my own toil and trouble, with my own net and my own boat?

TR. But if the owner were now to come, should I be any the less a thief than you, when I stood by and watched you keeping his property? GR. Not a whit! (starts off again.)

TR. Stop, you scoundrel! Just let me hear from you how you prove that I'm not to share and yet am a thief.

GR. Can't say; I know nothing about those city laws of yours. All I say is that this is mine.

TR. And I just as much say it's mine. GR. Stop now, I see how to work it; you needn't be a thief or get a share either.

Nec tu me quouquam indicassis neque ego tibi quicquam dabo.

Tu taceto: ego mussitabo. hoc optunum atque acquissimumst.

TR. Ecquid condicionis audes ferre? GR. Iam dudum fero: 1030

TR. Mane, dum refero condicionem. GR. Te, opsecro hercle, aufer modo.

TR. Ecquem in his locis nouisti? GR. Oportet uicinos meos.

TR. Vbi tu hic habitas? GR. Porro illic longe usque in campis ultimis.

TR. Vin qui in hac uilla habitat eius arbitrato fieri? 1035

GR. Paulisper remitte restem, dum concedo et consulo.

TR. Fiat. GR. Euge, salua res est: praeda haec perpetuast mea.

Ad meum erum arbitrum uocat me hic intra praesepis meas.

Numquam hercle hodie abiudicabit ab suo triobulum.

Ne iste hauscit quam condicionem tetulerit: cibo arbitrum. 1040

TR. Quid igitur? GR. Quamquam istunc esse iure meum certo scio, Fiat istuc potius quam nunc pugnem tecum. TR. Nunc places.

GR. Quamquam ad ignotum arbitrum me adpellis, si adhibebit fidem, Etsi ignotust, notus: si non, notus ignotissimumst.

TR. How do you work it ?

GR. Let me be gone ; you go your own way and keep it close. Don't you give me away to anybody and I won't give anything away to you. You hold your tongue ; I'll keep mum—that's fair and square.

TR. Won't you make an offer ?

GR. I've been doing so this long time. You be off ! Drop the rope, and don't bother me.

TR. Stop, while I make an offer to you.

GR. Faith, I only wish you'd offer to be off.

TR. Do you know anyone here about ?

GR. My neighbours, of course.

TR. Where do you live ?

GR. Away there ever so far—quite on the edge of the flats.

TR. Will you let the man who lives in this house settle the matter ?

GR. Let go the rope a bit, while I just go off and think it over.

TR. (Lets go the rope.) Very well.

GR. (aside.) Bravo ! we're all right ! I've bagged this thing for good. It is my master that our friend here is making our arbitrator. I'll be on my own ground here. Never in the world will he give it against his own man to-day, even for a farthing. Sure enough, he has no idea what sort of proposal he has made. I'm on for the umpire.

TR. Well, then ?

GR. I'm quite clear that the wallet is mine by right, but rather than fight you, I'll let you have your way.

TR. I like you now. GR. Although the umpire you're taking me to is a stranger to me, yet if he acts on the square, however strange he may be, he's my friend ; if he doesn't, friend though he be, I'll have none of him.

SCENE IV.

(Enter DAEMONES, PALAESTRA and AMPELISCA from the cottage, R.)

DAE. Well now, really, ladies, although I am quite ready to oblige you, I'm afraid my wife will show me the door because of you. I'd rather you took refuge at the altar—not I.

PA. and AM. Alas, we're undone! (They go to the altar.)

DAE. I'll see you through—never fear. (To his servants) But why are you following us about? Now I'm here myself, no one will harm them. Home with you both,—you're off duty now. GR. Good-day, sir.

DAE. Good-day, Gripus. What is it?

TR. Is this fellow a slave of yours?

GR. Yes, and no shame to me.

TR. I'm not talking to you.

GR. Well, then, be off and away!

TR. Pray answer my question, sir: is he a slave of yours?

DAE. Yes, he is.

TR. So, so! Capital! He belongs to you, does he? Let me again bid you good-morning.

DAE. The same to you. It was you, wasn't it, who went off to fetch your master a little while ago?

TR. The same.

DAE. Well, what do you want now?

TR. So he is one of your slaves?

DAE. He is.

TR. Capital! He belongs to you?

DAE. Why, what's the matter?

TR. The man is a rogue.

DAE. Why, what has the rogue done to you?

TR. I'd like to see every bone in his body broken.

DAE. What's the matter? What are you squabbling about now? TR. I'll tell you.

GR. No, I'll tell you. TR. I lead off in the case, I think.

- Sis pudicus, hinc facessas. DAE. Gripe, animum aduorte ac tace.
- GR. Vtin istic prius dicat? DAE. Audi. loquere tu.

- GR. Non habeo. TR. Negas quod oculis uideo? GR.
At ne uideas uelim.
- Habeo—non habeo: quid tu me curas quid rerum geram?
- TR. Quo modo habeas, id mea refert, iurene anne iniuria.
- GR. Ni istum cepi, nulla causast quin me condones cruci. 1070
- Si in mari reti prehendi, qui tuom potiuist quam

- TR. Verba dat: hoc modo res gestas, ut ego dico.
GR. Quid tu ais?
- TR. Quod primarius uir dicat, conprime hunc sis, si

- GR. Quid? tu idem mihi uis fieri, quod erus consueuit

- Huius mulieris, quam dudum dixi fuisse liberam.
- DAE. Nempe tu hanc dicis, quam esse aiebas dudum popularem meam? 1080

GR. If you had any sense of shame, you'd lead yourself off. DAE. Attention, Gripus! Hold your tongue!

GR. What, and let him speak first?

DAE. (to GRIPUS). Do you listen. (to TRACHALIO.) Speak you.

GR. You are going to let another man's slave have the first word, before your own?

TR. There's no stopping him. As I was saying, he has got hold of a wallet belonging to the dealer whom you turned out of the temple a little while ago.

GR. No, I haven't.

TR. Do you say "no," when I see it with my own eyes?

GR. (aside.) Plague take your eyes! Suppose I have, suppose I haven't, why should you be minding my business?

TR. The question is how you came by it—rightly or wrongly.

GR. If it wasn't a lawful take, I'll give you leave to hand me over to the hangman. If I fished it up in my net at sea, how can it be yours more than mine?

TR. That's all gammon! The thing happened according to my account of it.

GR. How say you? TR. Till the first speaker has had his say, shut this fellow up, please, if he is your servant.

GR. I daresay you want me to get what your master is always giving you. It may be his way to be always shutting you up, but that's not so with us.

DAE. Ha, that's one for you! But what do you really want now?

TR. Well, I don't ask to go shares in that wallet, and I have never said that it is my property; but it contains a casket belonging to the woman whom I have been telling you is free-born.

DAE. You mean the one, don't you, of whom you were saying that she was a country-woman of mine?

- TR. Admodum : et ea quae olim parua gestavit cre-pundia
Isti in ista cistula insunt, quae isti inest in uidulo.
Hoc neque istic usust et illi miserae suppetias feret,

- GR. Nihil hercle ego sum isti daturus. TR. Nil peto nisi cistulam 1085
Et crepundia. GR. Hem, quid si ea sunt aurea ?
TR. Quid istuc tua ?
Aurum auro expendetur, argentum argento exaequabitur.
- GR. Fac sis aurum ut uideam : post ego faciam ut uideas cistulam.
- DAE. Caue malo ac tace tu : tu perge ut ocepisti dicere.
TR. Vnum te obsecro, ut ted huius commiserescat mulieris, 1090
Si quidem hic lenonis eiust uidulus, quem suspicor.
Hic nisi de opinione certum nil dico tibi.
- GR. Viden scelestus aucupatur ? TR. Sine me ut occepi loqui.
Si scelesti illius est hic quouis dico uidulus,
Haec poterunt nouisse : ostendere his iube. GR.
Ain ? ostendere ? 1095
- DAE. Haud iniquom dicit, Gripe, ut ostendatur uidulus.
GR. Immo hercle insignite inique. DAE. Quidum ?
GR. Quia, si ostendero,
Continuo hunc nouisse dicent scilicet. TR. Scelerum caput,
Vt tute's item omnis censes esse ? periuri caput.
- DAE. Cedo modo mi uidulum istum, Gripe. GR. Concedam tibi :
At, si istorum nil sit, ut mihi reddas. DAE. Red-detur. GR. Tene.
- DAE. Audi nunciam, Palaestra atque Ampeliska, hoc quod loquor :

TR. Quite so, and the toys that she had when quite a little girl are in the casket that is inside the wallet. They are of no use to him, but if he hands them over, they will be of great assistance to this poor girl in her search for her parents.

DAE. Enough, I'll make him hand them over.

GR. Not a scrap will I hand over to him.

TR. All I ask for, is the casket and the toys.

GR. Well, but what if they're all gold?

TR. What's that to you? You should have gold for gold, and for silver an equal weight of silver.

GR. Let me see the colour of your gold and then I'll let you have a look at the casket.

DAE. Look out, Gripus, and hold your tongue! Do you go on with your story.

TR (to DAE.) One thing I ask: that you will have pity on this girl, if this wallet really belongs to the dealer, as I fancy it does. So far I am only conjecturing; I can't say positively.

GR. Mark how the rogue is setting his snares.

TR. Just you let me go on. If the wallet belongs to the rogue I was speaking about, surely these girls will know it. Tell him to show it them.

GR. What! Show it?

DAE. It's quite fair, Gripus, to ask that the wallet be shown.

GR. Not at all! It's the height of unfairness.

DAE. How so?

GR. Because if I show it, they will say right off, of course, that they know it.

TR. Thou sink of iniquity! Dost think that everybody is like thyself? Thou prince of liars!

DAE. Here with that wallet, Gripus!

GR. I'll let you have it, but on condition that you'll give it me back, if it does not contain what you say.

DAE. Good! You shall have it. GR. There!

DAE. (to PALAESTRA and AMPELISCA.) Listen, now, to what I omnia

Quidquid inerit uera dicet? anne habebit hariola?

1140

DAE. Non feret, nisi uera dicet: nequiquam hariolabitur.

Solue uidulum ergo, ut quid sit uerum quam primum sciam.

TR. Hoc habet. GR. Solutust perii: uideo cistellam.

DAE. Haccinest?

PA. Istaec est. o mei parentes, hic uos conclusos gero:

GR. Tum tibi hercle deos iratos esse oportet, quisquis es,

Te ad uerum conuorti, nugas, mulier, magnas egeris.

say. Is this the wallet which you said contained your casket?

PA. It is.

GR. Alas, I'm quite done for! You declared it was yours right away on the spot, before you had a fair look at it.

PA. I'll make all this plain sailing for you. There should be a wooden casket in the wallet. I'll give you a list of its contents, one after another—don't show me any of them. If I go wrong, I shall have lost my breath in vain! But, all the same, you will get back everything that's in the wallet. If I am right, then I beg that you will hand back to me what is mine.

DAE. Agreed! Your request is only right to my thinking.

GR. Gad, to my thinking, it's all wrong. What if she is a witch or a wise woman and can tell everything that's in the casket without a mistake! Are we to let the things go to a witch?

DAE. No, she won't get it unless she is correct. Her witchcraft will be all in vain. Now, untie the wallet and let us know at once how matters stand.

TR. That's one for Gripus!

GR. Untied it is; I'm done for! There's the casket.

DAE. What, is this it?

PA. That's it. Dear parents mine, for me ye are underneath that lid. There did I store away the means and hope of finding you.

GR. Then, if faith, the Gods must be wrath with you, whoever you are, for having crammed your father and mother into so small a space.

DAE. Come here, Gripus, this touches you. You, young lady, stand where you are and tell us the contents, and say what each is like. Don't omit anything. If you make the least slip, egad, and then expect to put yourself right afterwards, you will have utterly wasted your breath, my girl.

- PA. Ius bonum oras. GR. Edepol haud recte orat : nam tu iniuriu's.

GR. That's quite fair.

TR. No, by my troth, it's not—you're going beyond all bounds.

DAE. Now, girl, speak. Gripus, you attend and keep quiet.

PA. There are toys.

DAE. Yes, I see them.

GR. I'm knocked out in the first round. Hold hard! don't let her see them.

DAE. What are they like? Go through the list.

PA. First of all, there is a little gold sword with writing on it.

DAE. Say what the writing is.

PA. My father's name. Then in another corner there's a little two-handed axe, also of gold, and with writing on it: that gives my mother's name.

DAE. Stop! what's your father's name on the sword.

PA. Daemones.

DAE. Immortal powers! what may I look for next?

GR. Yes, egad, and what may I?

TR. Go on, for goodness' sake; don't wait.

GR. Gently, gently, now, or plague take you! Tell us what's your mother's name on the axe.

PA. Daedalis.

DAE. The gods have my welfare at heart.

GR. (aside) Yes, and my destruction.

DAE. This must be my daughter, Gripus.

GR. (to DAEMONES.) Yes, for all I care. (to TRACHALIO.) And may all the gods confound you for having set eyes on me this day,—yes, and confound me, too, ass that I was, for not looking round a score of times to see that nobody was watching before I hauled my net out of the water.

PA. A little silver sickle and two tiny hands, clasped together, and a windlass.

GR. Go to the deuce with your windlass and your windy talk.

PA. Et bulla aureast, pater quam dedit mi natali die.
 DAE. East profecto : contineri quin conplectar non queo.
 Filia mea, salue : ego is sum qui te produxi pater :
 Ego sum Daemones, et mater tua eccam hic intus Daedalis.

PA. Salue, mi pater insperate. DAE. Salue : ut te am-plector lubens. 1175

TR. Volup est quom istuc ex pietate nostra uobis contigit.

DAE. Capedum hunc, si potes, fer intro uidulum, age, Trachalio.

TR. Ecce Gripi scelera : quom istaec res male cuenit tibi,

Gripe, gratulor. DAE. Age eamus, mea gnata, ad
 matrem tuam,

Quae ex te poterit argumentis hanc rem magis exquirere : 1180

Quae te magis tractauit magisque signa pernouit tua.

TR. Eamus intro omnes simul, quando operam promiscam damus.

PA. Sequere me, Ampelisca. AM. Quom te di amant, uoluptatist mihi.

GR. Sumne ego homo scelestus, qui illunc hodie excepi uidulum ?

Aut quom excepi, qui non alicubi in solo abstrusi
 loco ? 1185

Credebam edepol turbulentam praedam euenturam

Quia illa mihi tam turbulenta tempestate cuenerat.
 Credo edepol ego illic inesse argenti et auri largiter.

Quid meliust quam ut hinc intro abeam et me suspendam clanculum,

Saltem tantisper dum abscedat haec a me aegri-monia ? 1190

PA. There's a golden locket, too, which my father gave me on my birthday.

DAE. 'Tis she, without a doubt. I cannot keep from clasping her in my arms. Bless you, my daughter! I am the father that reared you. I am Daemones, and see, your mother, Daedalis, is indoors here.

PA. Bless you, my father, whom I never hoped to see!

DAE. Bless you! and glad I am to hold you in my arms.

TR. I am delighted that your goodness should have brought you such good luck.

DAE. Ho, Trachalio, see if you can take this wallet and carry it indoors.

TR. Poor old Gripus! Best congratulations, Gripus, on your bad luck!

DAE. Come, daughter, let us go to your mother. She will be the one to sift this business and make it all clear; she had more to do with your up-bringing, and she will know your tokens off by heart.

TR. Indoors, then, all of us, since we all have a hand in the affair.

PA. Follow me, Ampelisca.

AM. I am delighted that heaven sends you such luck.

(Exeunt all, except GRIPUS into cottage, R.)

GR. Am not I an ass for fishing up that wallet this day, or rather for not hiding it away in some corner after I had fished it up? Faith, I thought it would turn out a troublesome haul for me, seeing it had turned up in such troublous weather. Faith, I think it must have a lot of gold and silver inside it. Best for me to go away home and hang myself on the quiet—well, at all events, till I can put this chagrin from me. (Exit GRIPUS into cottage, R.)

SCENE V.

(Enter DAEMONES from cottage, R.)

DAE. IMMortal powers, was ever man more blest than I, who never expected to have found my child? Surely, when Heaven is ready to show favour to men, good people somehow get the good they wish. As for me this day—I never hoped or looked for this—and yet, unexpectedly, I have found my child. And now I'll give her to a youth of the best family, a noble Athenian and a kinsman of my own. I should like to have him brought to me here at once, and have told his servant to start out and go to the forum. I am surprised he has not set out by now. I'll to the door, I think. What is this I see? My wife has clasped our daughter to her breast, and is holding her there. This fondling is out of place, and almost more than I can stand.

SCENE VI.

DAE. (to his wife within). 'Twere well, good wife, to bring this hugging to an end, and get things ready for me to offer sacrifice, when I come indoors, to our household gods for favours shown to our house. We have lambs and porkers for an offering. (to women within.) But why are you keeping Trachalio back, good women? Ah, here he comes, just in the nick of time. (Enter TRACHALIO from cottage, R.)

TR. Wherever Plesidippus may be, I'll hunt him up and bring him to you along with me.

DAE. Tell him this bit of luck about my child. Ask him to drop everything else, and come here.

TR. Yes, sir.

DAE. Dico daturam meam illi filiam uxorem. TR.

DAE. Sed propera. TR. Licet. DAE. Iam hic fac sit, cena ut curetur. TR. Licet.

DAE. Omnian licet? TR. Licet. sed scin quid est quod te uolo? 1215

Quod promisisti ut memineris, hodie ut liber sim.
DAE. Licet.

TR. Faç ut exores Plesidippum, ut me manu emittat.
DAE. Licet.

TR. Et tua filiã facito oret: facile exorabit. DAE.
Licet.

TR. Atque ut mi Ampelisca nubat, ubi ego sim liber.
DAE. Licet. 1220

TR. Atque ut gratum mi beneficium factis experiar.
DAE. Licet.

TR. Omnian licet? DAE. Licet. tibi rursum refero gratiam.

Sed propera ire in urbem actutum et recipe te huc rursum. TR. Licet.

Iam hic ero. tu interibi adorna ceterum quod opust.
DAE. Licet.

Hercules istum infelicet cum sua licentia: 1225
Ita meas repleuit auris, quidquid memorabam, 'licet.'

GRIPVS. DAEMONES.

GR. Quam mox licet te compellare, Daemones? IV 7

DAE. Quid est negoti, Gripe? GR. De illo uidulo, Si sapias, sapias: habes quod di dant boni.

DAE. Aequom uidetur tibi, ut quod alienum quod est 1230 Meum esse dicam? GR. Quodne ego inueni in mar?

DAE. And that I'll let him have my girl to wife.

TR. Yes, sir.

DAE. And that I know his father and that he is a relative of mine. TR. Yes, sir.

DAE. But hurry up! TR. Yes, sir.

DAE. And tell them here to get dinner ready at once.

TR. Yes, sir.

DAE. Nothing but "Yes, sir's?"

TR. Yes, sir. But I say, do you know what I want? I want you to remember your promise to get me my freedom this day. DAE. Yes, sir.

TR. And make your daughter ask my master; she will easily get it out of him.

DAE. Yes, sir.

TR. And I want Ampelisca to marry me when I am free.

DAE. Yes, sir.

TR. And I hope I may get a substantial reward for my services. DAE. Yes, sir.

TR. Nothing but "yes, sir's."

DAE. Yes, sir, I am paying you back in your own coin. But hurry up to town at once, and haste you back again.

TR. Yes, sir. I'll be back directly. Meanwhile do you see to all that's wanted. (Exit TRACHALIO to town, l.)

DAE. "Yes, sir!" Plague take the knave, so free is he with "yes, sir's;" for every word of mine, my ears were dinned with "yes, sir's."

SCENE VII.

(Enter GRIPUS from cottage, r.)

GR. Can I have a word with you, Daemones?

DAE. What's the matter, Gripus?

GR. As to that wallet, stick to what heaven sends you; no nonsense, now.

DAE. Is it fair, do you think, Gripus, to claim as mine what's another's?

GR. Why, I found it in the sea.

- DAE. Tanto illi melius optigit qui perdidit :
Tuom esse nihilo magis oportet uidulum.
- GR. Isto tu's pauper, quom nimis sancte piu's.
- DAE. O Gripe Gripe, in aetate hominum plurumae
Fiunt transennae, ubi decipiuntur dolis. 1236
Atque edepol in eas plerumque esca inponitur :
Quam siquis auidus poscit escam auariter,
Decipitur in transenna auaritia sua.
Ille qui consulte, docte atque astute cauet, 1240
Diutine uti bene licet partum bene.
Mī istaec uidetur praeda praedatum irier,
Ut cum maiore dote abeat quam aduenerit.
Egone ut quod ad me adlatum esse alienum sciam 1245
Celem ? minime istuc faciet noster Daemones.
Semper cauere hoc sapientis aequissimumst,
Ne conscii sint ipsi malefici suis.
- GR. Spectaui ego pridem comicos ad istum modum Sapienter dicta dicere atque is plaudier, 1250
Quom illos sapientis mores monstrabant poplo.
Sed quom inde suam quisque ibant diuorsi domum,
Nullus erat illo pacto ut illi iusserant.
- DAE. Abi intro, nam molestus : linguae tempera.
Ego tibi daturus nil sum, ne tu frustra sis. 1255
- GR. At ego deos quaeso, ut quidquid in illo uidulost, Si aurum, si argentumst, omne id ut fiat cinis.
- DAE. Illuc est quod nos nequam seruis utimur.
Nam illic servos si cum iniquo congressus foret,
Et ipsum sese et illum furti astringeret, 1260
Dum praedam habere se censeret, interim
Praeda ipsus esset : praeda praedam duceret.
Nunc hinc intro ibo et sacrificabo : postibi
Iubebo nobis cenam continuo coqui.
- CANTOR. Nunc, spectatores, bene valet et plaudite.

DAE. So much the better luck for the man who lost it ; but that doesn't make the wallet any more your property.

GR. That's why you're a poor man—you're too much of a saint for this world.

DAE. Ah, Gripus, Gripus ; man's life is everywhere beset with snares, wherein he is craftily caught. And in good sooth most of them are baited with a tempting morsel, and whoso in his greed greedily snaps at the bait is taken in the snare for very greed. But whoso warily, cleverly and craftily takes heed, to him it is given long to enjoy what has been well earned. That prize of yours, I fancy, will be so made prize of as to bring a greater blessing in its going than in its coming. (indignantly.) What, am I the man to conceal what I know was another's property before it came to me ? Far, indeed, will that be from the Daemones I know. It is the bounden duty of wise masters ever to be on their guard against being privy to the wrong-doing of their people.

GR. I have lately heard players utter wise saws of that sort and get applauded for it, when they preached to the people their sage maxims. But when they left the place and went, each to his own home, nobody was what they had told him to be.

DAE. Go indoors and cease your bother. Restrain your tongue. I'm not going to give you anything ; make no mistake about that !

GR. I pray heaven that everything in that wallet, be it gold or silver, will be burned to ashes. (Exit GRIPUS into cottage, R.)

DAE. That explains why slaves are rogues. For if that slave had happened to come across a dishonest master, he would have implicated both in theft ; while seeking to plunder others, he would find himself the plundered man—the biter would be bit. Now, I'll go away into the house, and then I'll order our dinner to be cooked at once. (Exit DAEMONES into cottage, R.)

CANTOR. Now, farewell, friends, and give us your applause !
